THE WEATHER.

The weather last night was generally fair, though a storm seemed to be developing in the west and the southwest. It was colder in the northwest and northeast, with freezing temperatures in the northern sections of these districts. The fair, cool weather in New England will probably last till Tuesday morning, followed by unsettled and probably showers, with slowly rising temperatures; winds becoming variable.

A BAD ACCIDENT

Occurred on the Boulevard Yesterday.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL INJURED IN COLLISION.

And His Valuable Pacer, Lizzie M. Killed.

A serious driving accident occurred on the boulevard yesterday afternoon as a result of which Charles H. Campbell, the Centralville house dealer, lies seriously injured at the Lowell General hospital, while his valuable pacing mare, Lizzie M., whose record was in the 20's, is dead.

As is usual on Sundays, there were many fast drivers on the Boulevard yesterday afternoon, some with fast ones, all trying to go fast as Mr. Campbell went up with a friend behind Lizzie M. It is customary for the racers to drive slowly up the right side of the Boulevard and come down fast on the speedway. Mr. Campbell, it is said, instead of adhering to the custom, turned into the speedway and started to drive up.

He had not gone far when he noticed a couple of drivers coming toward him at a 2.30 clip. He tried to get out of the way of one, but in doing so, drove into the path of the other. It was too late for the other driver to pull up and the two came together with a crash. Mr. Campbell and his friend were thrown out, the latter turning a complete somersault, while horses and carriage were thrown together in a hopeless mix-up.

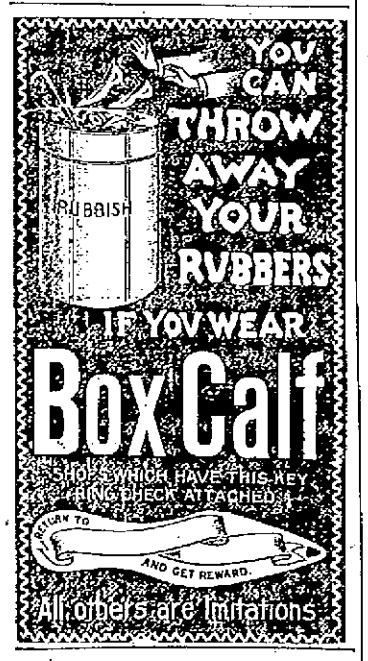

Lizzie M., upon finding herself free of the harness started off and for a short distance gave a beautiful exhibition of riderless pacing, but she had not gone far when she ran into another carriage and fell to the ground with a broken foreleg and other injuries. Shortly afterward the animal was shot. She was valued at $600.

Mr. Campbell in the meantime was carried to the Lowell General hospital, and was found to be badly injured. His leg was badly torn and it is supposed that a shaft entered his body, for a deep wound requiring many stitches was inflicted.

Mr. Campbell's companion and the driver of the other horse were not injured.

B.T.I.'S MEMORIAL

Impressive Service at Michael Sexton's Grave.

EXERCISES IN THE BURKE'S HALL LAST NIGHT.

Addresses by Rev. Fr. McDonough and Mr. Hogan.

Memorial Sunday, the one day in the whole year sacred and dear to the members of the Burke Temperance Institute, had a fitting observance yesterday.

The program usual to Memorial day was carried out.

Early in the afternoon, the members assembled in front of the society building on Middle street and formed for the march to the graves of deceased members.

The Lofell Military band played sorrowful dirges as the line of 175 men marched slowly down Merrimack, to Central, to Gorham to the Catholic cemetery. These streets were crowded with people and many followed the procession to the cemetery.

The grave of Michael E. Sexton, ex-president of the Burkes, was first visited. Rev. Fr. McDonough prayed after which he spoke briefly on the uncertainty of life and of the immortality of the soul. The Mozart quartette sang an appropriate selection and the dirge by the band ended the service.

The grave of Joseph McEvoy was then visited. He was also a member of the band and the service here consisted of prayer by Rev. Fr. McDonough and selections by the band.

The line then formed and returned to the Burkes' hall where it was dismissed.

EVENING EXERCISES.

The exercises in the Burkes' hall last night attracted a large audience. James J. Dacey, the president, delivered the opening address, in which he said:

"In our meetings we endeavor to teach the members to be good and true. When one of our members departs this life, we want it said that he was a good man. The good and the true never die. We always call the attention of each other to the fact that those who have gone from us still live. Today we have endeavored to present a creditable appearance and I think we have been successful.

"I hope that many people will receive a lesson from us and will join in the noble work. Our object is commendable. We have succeeded to a great extent, in rescuing men who would otherwise cause sorrow and suffering to their friends and relatives. Let us hope that others will come into our society. The organization is on a good, firm footing and we expect to have from 300 to 500 men in our ranks instead of 175 as we had today. I hope that this work will continue. It is something to know that our graves will always be kept green."

Then James E. Donnelly, a member of the Burkes, sang with grand expression and effect the hymn, "I Love to Hear My Savior's Voice."

William A. Hogan, Esq., was introduced and said:

"It is to commemorate and keep alive in your hearts, not alone the good which you and your deceased brothers have accomplished as humble followers in the footsteps of the great apostle of total abstinence, Father Mathew, but also to bring to mind the many other good qualities which you know they possessed as sons, husbands and fathers, that once a year you have consecrated to your dead one of these latter autumn days, when nature herself is sad because the beauties of her spring and summer have passed away, leaving her naked and unadorned on the threshold of winter.

"What sweet sad memories today must conjure to each of you, of the many whose life oil has burnt out. Here in this hall you meet in friendly greeting, day after day, year after year, those whose memory you honor today; here you have listened to their counsel and advice and been guided by it, and here you have shared with them those fleeting worldly pleasures which we now enjoy, but now you mourn for them. They have left this dull, plodding world; the hand which was wont to clasp yours in hearty greeting is now lifeless clay; the voice which you loved to hear has become hushed in death. It soothes you to mind their many characteristics, the kind words which they have spoken, their many acts of benevolence and charity, their upright, God-fearing life, and it strengthens your determination to be ever faithful and true to your obligations, it teaches you to

"Act well your part,
There all the honor lies."

"Though their deeds may never be told of in story or in song they were true heroes. Just as the Spartan band of old held the pass at Thermopylae to save their altars and their sires, so they stood with you shoulder to shoulder and fought for the home and the family against the ever vigilant and implacable enemy, intemperance, who is no respecter of persons or places; who has made the highest and the lowest his slaves who separates husband and wife, children and parents, who has filled our jails with criminals and our institutions with paupers. With no blaring of trumpets and roll of drums did they seek to drive out this insidious foe, but quietly and unostentatiously by force of moral suasion and their own example, they strove to gain recruits in the workshops, in the factories, in the homes, and though their field was limited to our own city, there are many tonight, some within sound of my voice, who have reason to bless you and them for a father rescued from the abyss down which he was plunging, for a son turned from the paths of inebriety and dishonor to those of sobriety and honor.

"And while it is fitting that on this day you should sorrow for those who have gone out from among you, whose friendship you miss, whose assistance you need, the thought should comfort you who are left to fight life's weary battles, that they died not sulking in their tent, but on the battlefield with their face to the foe, a true soldier's death.

"Could I but interpret the voice of your dead, it would bid me tell you to push on and fear not, to strive ever upward, ever onward, to write on your hearts in letters of gold the principles on which your institute is founded, to sink all personal aggrandizement, to have none but honest differences among you, to follow firmly, unfalteringly, the star of temperance."

The Mozart quartette sang "The Vacant Chair," and Miss Adelaide Sullivan rendered "Calvary" after which Rev. Fr. McDonough spoke.

After speaking of the lessons to be learned in the contemplation of the dead, Fr. McDonough said We should be prepared at any time, for we are to enter upon a life which is eternal. What that future will be for us depends upon the character of our life in this world. For all we do, good or bad, we must be held accountable to the God who gave us life. Are there no men who can serve as a pattern for us? Yes. These men are speaking from their graves and are telling a story of a noble life.

"There has just died in New York a man named Henry George. I do not want to discuss him from a political standpoint. I simply wish to impress upon you the honesty and the honor of the man. His character must always live as a model, an inspiration to mankind. We must be honest with our fellowmen if we wish to live in this world.

"You may look upon Michael Sexton as a model. He was a self-sacrificing man who gave his time and energy to a noble work. Among yourselves you may find men who are worthy of emulation."

The quartette closed the program with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

RESIGNATION WITHDRAWN.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

VISITED BY REV. LOUIS WALSH, INSPECTOR FOR THE ARCHDIOCESE.

Rev. Louis Walsh, inspector of parochial schools in the archdiocese of Boston made his first official visit to Lowell last week to visit the local parochial schools. The office of inspector was recently created and Fr. Walsh who was a professor at St. John's seminary was chosen to fill it.

He has commenced his work by studying the methods of teaching used by the different religious teaching orders within his jurisdiction. In Lowell St. Joseph's and the Immaculate Conception schools are taught by the Gray Nuns, St. Joseph's college by the Marist Brothers, St. Patrick's school by the Xaverian Brothers. St. Patrick's schol for girls and Notre Dame academy by the Sisters of Notre Dame St. Michael's school by the Sisters of St. Dominick and the Sacred Heart schol by the Sisters of Mary. Each of these orders has a method of teaching. To select the best from all and secure a uniform method of teaching will be the first aim of Fr. Walsh. When this is done, he will be able to visit the school rooms and inspect the work personally.

TENTH BIRTHDAY

Of the Fr. Mathew Temperance Institute

OF NORTH BILLERICA WAS OBSERVED LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Slattery the Founder Assists in Exercises.

The Fr. Mathew F. A. society of North Billerica celebrated their tenth aniversary on Saturday evening at their hall, to which all the townspeople were invited.

An elegant banquet was served in the upper hall, after which a concert program was rendered by the following well known Lowell artists.

The opening of the program was an address of welcome by the president, M. J. Coughlin, followed by an address of congratulation for their porgressive work in the temperance cause for the past en years by County Director Edward F. Slattery of Lowell, founder of the society and a life-long friend.

Piano solo, Miss Julia Kenney; song, Miss Laura Bernier; quartette, C. Hickey; J. B. McAloon, M. Nestor; J. J. McKenna; song, Mr. M. Gorman; reading, Mr. D. Donahue; song, Mr. C. Hickey; duet, the Misses Maggie and Katie McCaffrey; reading, Mr. J. J. McKenna; quartette, C. Hickey, J. B. McAloon, M. Nestor, J. J. McKenna.

Afterwards the guests assembled in the lower hall and indulged in dancing for the remainder of the evening. The committee in charge consisted of the following members: General manager, M. J. Coughlin; assistant, J. B. Kearney; floor director, ... E. Costello, assistant, P. J. Mahoney; ... F. E. Hannon, E. T. Morris, J. S. Welch, E. Costello, J. J. Mahoney; reception committee, E. Costelo, M. J. Coughlin, J. S. Welch.

This society was organized Nov. 1, 1887, with thirty members and has since grown to a prosperous society whose proud boast is that they have one of the finest monuments dedicated to the temperance cause in the state of Massachusetts. The society has had but two deaths in its large roll of membership, which is constantly increasing, as the younger element grows to manhood. A word must be said for the splendid assistance of the Ladies' Auxiliary connected with this society. On entering the hall you can see the results of their zealous labor, for they have by their thrifty hands and inventive brains beautified that hall which is the pride of the members of the society.

Miss Kittie Garvin, a prominent young lady of the town, is president of the auxiliary and she is ably assisted by a large corps of able workers. This society has had for its presidents the following well known young men: Richard J. Conway, John R. Conway, Lawrence Buckley, Edward L. McMahon, Robert Crawford, John J. Mahoney, Thomas Mullen and J. J. Mahoney. Rev. Fr. Paquette, spiritual director, in every way and manner renders all aid and assistance in making the organization the leading one in the state.

Mrs. Mary Kerrigan Pushes Her Daughter

THROUGH A WINDOW OF THE SECOND STORY.

Latter Sustained a Fracture of the Ankle.

Mary Kerrigan, an aged woman whose mind is believed to be affected was taken to the city farm last night after she had thrown her daughter out of a window.

She lives in Fox's yard, off Davidson street and shortly after 9 o'clock last night she picked up her daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Breen, who was in the house, and threw her out of a second story window. The young woman's ankle was fractured and she was removed in the ambulance to St. John's hospital. Afterwards it was learned that Mrs. Kerrigan had thrown the daughter out of the window Saturday night also, but she was not injured.

KELLEY'S TRIAL NOW ON

The Somersworth Murders to Occupy the Courts Attention.

JOSEPH A. STICKNEY, the Murdered Cashier.

JOSEPH E. KELLEY, the Boy Murderer.

Insanity Will be the Plea for the Defense—The Prisoner Insists That His Intellect is all Right—But He Says He is Under Contract With Satan.

Dover, N. H., Nov. 8.—Saturday evening all preliminaries were completed for the trial of Joseph E. Kelley, the murderer of Joseph A. Stickney, cashier of the Great Falls National bank at Somersworth, on April 16 last. The trial began here just before noon with the impanelling of the jury from a list of 55. It promises to be one of the most interesting cases in the history of Strafford county, or in the granite state. It is expected the trial will last from 10 days to two weeks. The government is represented by Attorney General E. C. Eastman of Exeter and Mayor William F. Nason, solicitor for Strafford county, while James A. Edgerly of Somersworth and Postmaster James Ryan of Dover are looking after the interests of the murderer.

The residents of Amesbury, Mass., where the youthful murderer passed his boyhood days, are greatly interested in the case and not a small number are already here. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley, the father and mother of the prisoner; Frank W. Kelley, a brother, and his two sisters, Annie and Lizzie Kelley, will be the only relatives from Amesbury, while there will be at least 11 more witnesses, including Drs. Murphy and Fitzhugh, who attended Kelley during sickness while he was under the parental roof. The defense have been unable to secure an important witness in the person of Dr. Norton, who attended Kelley when he is said to have fallen from the roof of a building and injured his head several years ago. Dr. Norton, when last heard from, was in Washington, but a most diligent search failed to locate him.

Since Kelley's arrest he has frequently told how he took the life of Cashier Stickney and accomplished the theft of the money belonging to the bank after the deed was committed. The trial will be of unusual interest from the fact that his counsel will endeavor to show that their client was not responsible for the murder on account of insanity.

"I was hard up and wanted money," said Kelley. "I had thought of going to my father at Amesbury to ask him to help me. The idea of robbing the bank had not entered my head at that time. On the Wednesday before the murder, while sitting at my window opposite the bank, I saw Cashier Stickney putting great piles of bills and rolls of gold into the vaults of the bank. It seemed to come as a sort of inspiration that only a few feet away, across the street, was a large quantity of the very cash I needed so much. Then I knew I should rob the bank."

The most careful preparation had been made for carrying out the crime. The murderer entered the bank at a time when he knew the cashier would be alone, as it was Mr. Stickney's practice to let his assistant, Miss Parcher Swasey, go to dinner first. Having seen Miss Swasey leave, the murderer went up the stairs without being observed by any person. He softly turned the knob in the unlocked door, and entered the banking room. Stepping up to the wicket behind which the cashier was at work, he demanded money. Mr. Stickney refused and the desperado then sprang against the light door in the partition, burst it open with one tremendous kick, and fell upon the aged bank official before that person could make an outcry. Blows were rained upon his head in quick succession, until the blackjack broke and was dropped from the hands of the murderer to give place to a razor with which to finish the work. The blows from the leather-covered ball of lead were sufficient in themselves to cause death, for the first one must have rendered the victim unconscious, but the murderer apparently wished to make sure that he would not be interrupted. After dispatching the cashier it was quick work then to seize the money in sight, about $4100 in all, and leave the place.

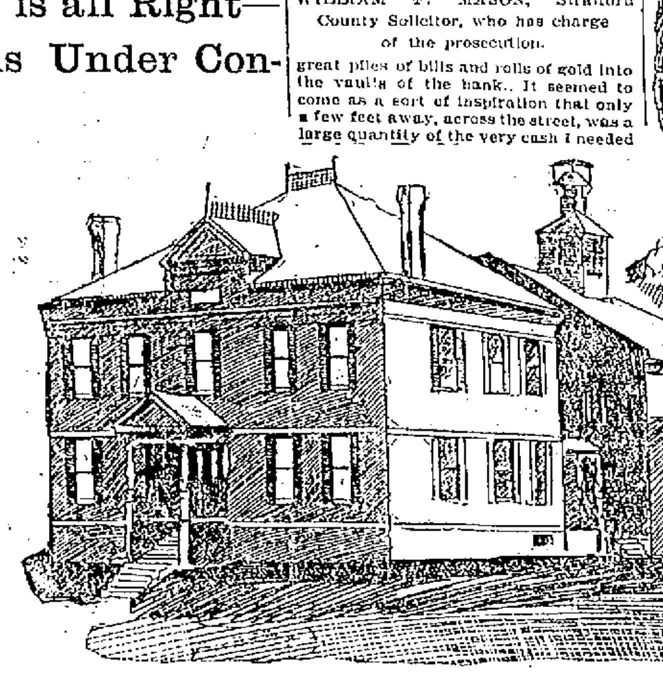

The murderer went up a street which runs along one side of the bank and threw a pollow case, into which he had placed the money, over a wall. Then he went back to the business section of the city, ate dinner, hired a team, drove along and picked up the bag and disappeared. He was followed to Milton, N. H., where he left the team and took a train for Montreal, at which place he was arrested, in a house which he had entered disguised as a woman. About $2700 were found on him at that time. Kelley at once acknowledged that he was the man wanted and later confessed his guilt.

CATARRH CURED

And in Lowell Too; Full Report of the Case.

Nasal catarrh must be cured by local treatment, and in this, cleanliness of the nasal passages is the chief end and aim. The custom of habitually hawking and snuffing should be immediately stopped; besides being disgusting, it is unecessary and productive of positive injury.

As proof that this disease can be easily and quickly cured, we present to you the testimony of people in your own city, from whose lips, if you wish you can learn if it is true. Here is a case:

Mrs. Annie Burns, who lives at 88 Elm street, says, "I got C. C. C. for my daughter Lizzie, who has suffered for the last two years with catarrh, it causing her much trouble and annoyance, by keeping her continually snuffing, hemming, hawking and spitting to keep her voice clear. She also had severe headaches. Now all these symtoms have entirely vanished and to C. C. C., California Catarrh Cure, we give credit and canont speak too highly in its praise."

California Catarrh Cure is for you, too; in case of colds it is invaluable, as it helps in breaking them up, and entirely prevents a cold "hanging on" as well as attacks of acute catarrh which so often follow a severe cold in the head.

whether from the elongated palate, In the case of tickling in the throat or superabundant secretions, gargling with California Catarrh Cure will afford relief and cure. Remember two things: Catarrh in any form is a local not a blood disease. It can be cured by California Catarrh Cure.

All dealers, 50 cents; three times as much, one dollar.

ALBIONS PLAYED WELL.

SUCCEEDED IN DRAWING WITH THE ANDOVER TEAM.

The Albions took the following team with them to Andover Saturday to play the team of that place, a team which thought itself invincible, having played several games this season, two of which were won by 10 to 1, and 13 to 1, whereas the Albions had not even practised together: Jesse Whitworth, goal; Crane and Townsend, backs; Summerscales, E. Whitworth, and J. Aspin, half backs; Nelson W. Flinn, H. Ellison, Waterhouse and Broadbent, forwards. Each side scored a goal and the game ended a tie.

OF POLICE DOINGS

Application Made for Officer's Arrest.

CLARA HAMILTON ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED LARCENY.

Other Larceny Cases—Runaway Boys Returned.

A very interesting fight is on between Harry Doherty, a well known and respected employe of the lands and buildings department and Lieut. Kew and Officer Denis Breen.

It seems that Mr. Doherty has in his family a young orphan nephew, whom he has given a good home. But the boy, according to the police, had committed an offence which necessitated his arrest.

A few nights ago Lieut. Kew and Officer Breen called at Mr. Doherty's house in Adams street and arrested the boy. There was some hot discussion in the house at the time, owing to what Mr. Doherty claimed was an illegal entrance to his house by the officers. The next day he went down to court and he claims that on the way thither and in the police station Officer Breen abused him and called him mean names, while he did not reply to the abuse. Whatever passed between them will probably come out later, when the case is tried, for Mr. Doherty, while sitting in court a few minutes later, awaiting the calling of the boy's case, was much surprised when an officer stepped up to him and placed him under arrest for alleged profanity on the complaint, it is said, of Officer Breen. Mr. Doherty was taken down stairs and registered, after which he was returned to the court room where he pleaded not guilty of profanity, and asked for a continuance until Monday, which was allowed. E. D. McVey, Esq., was his counsel and he was speedily bailed.

On Saturday Mr. Doherty applied for the arrest of Lieutenant Kew and Officer Breen for alleged illegal entry of his house and a warrant for Officer Breen's arrest on the charge of profanity. Judge Hadley, it is said, declined to issue a warrant without giving a hearing on the matter and tomorrow is the date fixed for the hearing.

A $14 TOUCH.

A woman giving her name as Clara Hamilton was arrested Saturday night for alleged larceny of $14 from a man whom she picked up on the street and took to a room on Church street where she robbed him.

Lieut. Kew and Officer Ingalls arrested her and while waiting for the wagon, she threw herself on the ground and appeared to go into a fit or swoon, which, however, didn't work with the officers. Her "angel" was taken to the station with her. The police recovered $12 of the money.

LINNEHAN HOUSES RAIDED.

Inspectors Goodwin and Donaldson and several other officers were out after liquor law volators late Saturday night at about midnight visited the house of Michael Linnehan, 4 New street, where they seized two cases of beer and two gallons of whiskey.

The officers then visited the house of Patrick F. Linnehan, 151 Crosby street, where they seized a case of beer.

THOMPSON LIKED BUTTER.

Edward Thompson, residing over the Union market on Middlesex street, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of larceny, and the circumstances of the case are odd. Thompson, it seems, went into a neighboring shoe store and purchased a pair of shoes for a child. Soon after he returned, expressing a desire to exchange the shoes. While the exchange was being made, it is said that Thompson purloined another pair. Complaint was made to the police and Lieut. Kew and Officer Corcoran visited Thompson's room, where they found a new pair of shoes and a sleeping baby. Investigation showed that while the baby's feet were undoubtedly mates, the shoes were not, one being three sizes larger than the other. As the officers were looking over the room they spied a new five-pound box of butter without a cover. In the market there was a cover without a box and the clerks on having their attention called to it, concluded that it had been "pinched." Thompson was arrested and taken to the station.

WANDERING BOYS RETURNED.

"Just till we see Woodsey. We'll punch his face full of holes," was the remark of the three Lowell boys who ran away from home, to Secretary Martin J. Courtney of the Overseers of the Poor, at the Chardon Street Home in Boston Saturday, when he went for them to take them home. They are Harry Etu, 148 Cushing street Walter Ford, 15 Rock street, and William McCarty, 15 Broadway, all about 14 years of age.

It seems they were induced to go to Boston by another boy named Woods, who painted for them a very gorgeous picture of life in Boston. Since they were arrested in Boston, their parents appeared to take no interest in them and accordingly Secretary Courtney went to Boston for them. They were perfectly willing to return having had all they wanted of Boston life. They would like to meet "Woodsey," however, for as soon as he got them in Boston he shook them most unceremoniously.

DIONNE DISCHARGED.

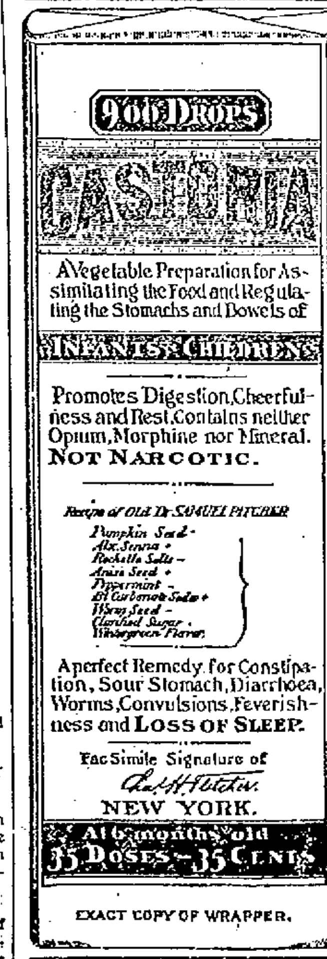

In the municipal court at Lewiston, Saturday, Constable Dionne was discharged from his recognizance in the case brought against him for alleged cheating by false pretences in this city. The case was nol prossed by the district attorney of Middlesex county and on notification of this, the court discharged Dionne.

READY TO FIGHT

Local Democracy Armed for the Fray.

CITY COMMITTEE WILL CONDUCT CAMPAIGN.

A Meeting of That Body Tonight.

Hon. Fisher H. Pearson has found no rest the past few days.

Democrats have poured into his office to offer congratulations and many came to suggest means of conducting the campaign. Mr. Pearson is in fine fettle and ready for the siege to come. He had little to say of his plans, but stated that from now till the close of the polls next month, his every effort will be for the election of a democratic Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

"I have many good friends in Lowell," he said, "and I feel grateful to them. The real fight comes next month and I do not fear its result. I will have a united democracy at my back and with such a phalanx I must win. Mr. Cummings is a loyal democrat and always has been. He is my friend and I am his. Of course two of us could not be chosen at the caucuses."

The campaign begins in earnest this evening. It will be directed from city committee headquarters where all business relating to the campaign will be transacted. The first few weeks of the campaign will be devoted to registration and it is expected that at least 700 names will be added to the list.

Registration will open this week and will close about November 24. This will leave a few weeks intervening till election day and during this time an active canvass of the city will be made, and possibly some rallies held.

It has not been decided when the mayoralty convention will be held. Many friends of Mr. Pearson advise an early convention, possibly during this week.

At the convention besides the mayoralty candidate the candidates for purchasing agent and aldermen will be placed in nomination. Several candidates have been spoken of for the place and yesterday a quiet boom for John J. Riordan was started.

Mr. Riordan is a representative of the young democracy. He was a Cummings man in the campaign. From personal acquaintance with Mr. Riordan, it may be said that he possesses qualities that recommend him for the place and he has the judgment of one more advanced in years. He would prove strong with the business element of the city. It is not certain that he would accept the nomination but his friends intend to bear down upon him with a request to allow the use of his name. Friends of Henry Hamer have already started an active canvass of the delegates elected in behalf of their candidate for aldrman. The other candidates have not as yet approached the delegates.

The city committee will decide on the time for the councilmanic caucuses, but they will possibly not be held till after registration closes.

CITY COMMITTEE MEETING.

Saturday, Chairman Hennessey and Secretary Muldoon issued a call for a meeting of the city committee to-night. The meeting will be held in Jackson hall. While the object of the meeting is not given, it may be stated, that it is to decide on a date for the councilmanic caucuses. The sentiment among some members of the committee is that the caucuses should not be held till after registration closes. Such a course they argue will keep all the candidates hustling for registration and naturalization.

Editor of The Sun—Allow me to say a word to Ward Five voters in behalf of Councilman Michael Sullivan, who seeks a nomination and deserves it. He is a democrat who stands by his party every time. He is now serving his first term and according to an unbroken custom is in line for a second term.

He is one of the young democrats who has buckled on the armor to make the fight that will land the democratic party a winner. His service to the party has always been freely rendered and has been valuable in aiding democratic success. During his term in the Common Council his conduct was such as to earn praise from his constituents and believe that they will reward such service by giving him a nomination and re-election. Councilman Sullivan is a prominent member of Court Wamesit, F. of A., and the Young Men's Catholic Institute.

—Ward Five Voter.

The friends of John C. Wilson held a meeting in Runels' hall, Saturday evening, and gave his candidacy quite a boom.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor of The Sun—It is with pleasure that I notice the candidacy of a gentleman that Ward Four may well feel proud to honor. In the person of Daniel F. Reilly, the democrats of the fourth ward have a man, who, if elected, as their representative in the councilmanic chamber, will serve their interests such as a democrat should: a man well versed in municipal affairs, having given much thought and study to the management of a city government and one not inclined to spend the city's money without due deliberation, as to the expendiency of appropriations that may be called for.

Mr. Reilly is an excellent parliamentarian, in consequence of his years of affiliation with fraternal organizations, he having served faithfully and efficiently in every position the Mathew Temperance Institute could accord him, including that of president. He is also associated with several other local organizations.

In consequence of the infamous gerrymander the democrats are a small minority in the council. We can, however, by sending faithful and efficient men who are not afraid to speak for the rights of their constituency, call a halt upon many a scheme and trick that our republican brethren may seek to levy upon us. Such qualifications, I have no hesitancy in saying Mr. Reilly possesses. Now, then, to my democratic brothers of Ward Four, I would say, let us see to it that the next caucus night we shall place in nomination Daniel F. Reilly and thus secure a faithful representative of our interests in the lower branch of the city government.

—Democrat of Ward Four.

THE Y. M. C. I. BAZAAR

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE BY REV FR. McMANUS.

The bazaar of the Y.M.C.I. will open this evening in Huntington hall. Last night an introductory lecture and concert were given in the hall with a large audience present. Rev. Fr. McManus of St. Peter's church delivered his illustrated lecture on his tour of Ireland. Many of his views were very beautiful, especially those of Killarney Glendalough, Gougane Barra on the River Lee, the Giant's Causeway, and the ruined towers and cathedrals of Ireland. The lecture was interspersed with songs. Mrs. Williams sang the Kerry Dance; Mrs. Walker, Killarney; Miss Murphy, The Harp, with harp accompaniment by herself, and Mr. Martin, the Meeting of the Waters. The gem of the evening was The Girl of Kildare, by Miss McCaffrey. Tonight there will be dancing at the hall. Tomorrow night the tables will be all in readiness to do business. The young men are working hard for the success of the bazaar.

FAT A BURDEN.

Dr. Edison's Obesity Pills and Salt Will Take it Off—Some Reduced a Pound a Day.

Mrs. James B. (Fanny) Donovan, of the Donovans' Irish Sketch Artists, took Dr. Edison's Obesity treatment with the best results:

Messrs. Loring & Co., New York City:

Gentlemen:—About the first of January my stoutness had become burdensome and ungainly and my being in the theatrical profession it interfered with my acting, singing and dancing. I had tried everything to reduce me but could get no relief. I began to use Dr. Edison's Pills and Salt, and at once commenced to reduce, until now I am down to my normal weight. That distressed, heavy and languid feeling is entirely gone, and I feel like a new woman. Shortness of breath, with which I was greatly troubled, has been completely cured. I can safely recommend the Pills and Salt as the only true and effective flesh reducers in the world. Yours truly,

READER GETS OUT

On Account of Marrying a Couple

IN A LION'S DEN AT BOSTON.

The Methodists Don't Want Such Exhibitions.

Boston, Nov. 8.—Rev. George A. Reader, who officiated at the recent sensational wedding in a den of lions, has withdrawn from the Boston university school of theology at the request of the faculty of that institution. President Warren stated that Mr. Reader had ample warning from the faculty that his action, if he took any part in the proposed wedding, would not be sanctioned. President Warren says Mr. Reader was not expelled, though the effect of the faculty's action in the matter is virtual expulsion.

FUNERALS.

BATCHELDER—The funeral of the late Orrin S. Batchelder of Chelmsford took place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family home in Westford street, many relatives and neighbors being present. Rev. E. C. Bartlett of the Central Congregational church officiated. Two selections were sung by Misses Harriet Woodworth and Alice M. Stearns. Beautiful floral tributes rested upon and around the casket. The bearers were W. W. Kilbourne, A. B. Wodworth, P. F. Litchfield, and Samuel Hagerman. Burial was in the cemetery at North Chelmsford.

McCRANN—The funeral of Lawrence McCrann took place from the home of his parents, 145 Church street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The bearers were William Gookin, Frederic McSorley, Peter McManiman, Edward Caffrey, Frank Duggan and Frank Murphy. Among the many beautiful flowers sent by loving friends were: Pillow, inscribed "Lawrence" from the family; cross Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Meigs; sprays of chrysanthemums, Thomas Fee, Jr., A. J. Doyle, Miss Boulger, Miss Kittie and Master John Queenan, Miss Bessie Lynch; sprays of pinks, Miss Ethel Johnson and John W. Simonds; spray of asters, classmates of the Immaculate Conception school, harp inscribed "Rest," Miss B. Surtis.

The ushers were Joseph McCaffrey of Holy Cross college, Thomas F. Fee, Jr., and Augustine J. Doyle. The burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

BOY'S DEFECTIVE SIGHT.

When He Tried to Study in School the Letters Became Transposed.

A strange case of defective vision was recently diagnosed by an eye and ear specialist of Auburn, N. Y. A bright 13-year-old boy was brought to the doctor's office a few days ago by his parents, who told a remarkable story of the youth's affliction. The boy had been dismissed from school a few days previous by his teacher, who said that the youth's mind was a blank and that it was impossible to teach him anything. The boy complained that when he tried to study the letters in his textbook would apparently become transposed. For instance, the word C-A-T would appear to him A-T-C or T-A-C. In consequence, when the youth came to recite his lessons as he had learned them the teacher did not know what to make of the strange words and sentences.

The trouble is believed to be due to a weakness of the optic nerve, and by careful treatment the physician believes that the boy's eyesight can be corrected so that he will be able to see things as they really are.—New York Sun.

FOR COMPROMISE

Fred Lawton's Friends Want Wilson to Withdraw.

AND UNITE IN FIGHT AGAINST BENNETT.

All Candidates Catering for French Vote.

The republican mayoralty fight is becoming complicated.

Alderman Chas. Howe is no longer a factor in the contest, for after announcing his withdrawal from the contest, his friends immediately went over to Lawton. It is understood that such a course is to the big alderman's liking.

Mr. Howe's friends conceded that he had no chance to win and it was due to their advice and the change in his business plans that he decided to abandon politics, for a time at least.

During the past week John Wilson has gained strength and the concensus of opinion among republicans is that the real fight will be between Col. Bennett and Hon. Frederick Lawton.

At present the Colonel seems to have the lead and if that is really so, then he will be nominated for Colonel Bennett never loses any advantages and is always eager and ready to grasp any strength that may be within reach.

It is true that the candidacy of Mr. Lawton has caused some defection in the Bennett ranks, but he has more than made up for this loss by receiving support from quarters that opposed him last year.

Prominent republicans are now trying to arrange a deal between Lawton and Wilson, by which the latter will withdraw from the contest in favor of the former. They claim that Lawton stepped aside last year for Wilson and that now "Honest John" should reciprocate. But Wilson will not hearken to this and members of the good government club with which Captain Milten, Dunklee, and some more of the "boys" are associated are urging Wilson to refuse to accept any such overtures. The "good government" club, by the way, is playing a game worthy of political novices and their attempt to straddle the span between Col. Bennett's office and the home of John Wilson is very laughable.

The caucuses will be held some time between November 16 and 22, and the candidates will establish down town headquarters this week. Several meetings in the interest of the different candidates are slated for this week, and the active workers will be asked to report the result of their labors.

All three are catering for the French vote and are making all sorts of promises and pledges. Bennett apparently has been most persuasive and convincing with the French republicans and will probably receive their support. On this account, he figures on carrying Ward Seven, Lawton's own ward, where the bulk of the French vote is located.

PURCHASING AGENT.

The friends of Purchasing Agent Barnard are canvassing the democratic ranks for support for Mr. Barnard. They confess that he will meet with violent opposition from republicans who are in business in this city because he has failed to accord them a share of the city trade. They will oppose him at the polls and republican friends of Mr. Barnard, realizing that the defection will be great, are making a special and particular effort to get democratic votes.

AN EVENTFUL TRIP.

STORY OF AN OVERLAND JOURNEY IN ALASKA.

William K. Dubell of Columbus, N. J., who recently returned from the Klondike region, started on his homeward journey before navigation down the Yukon closed. But an intimate friend of Dubell, who also tried his fortune in the Klondike and expects to return next spring, did not get away from Alaska without some unpleasant experiences. He tells the following story of his journey from Dawson City:

"Our party consisted of Judge John Miller, Lawyer Frank Simms and Charles Brown of Seattle and Charles Harrison of St. Joseph, Mo., and myself. We left Dawson City on the steamer Margaret, Captain Hanson, with the intention of going down to Fort Yukon and bringing back a load of provisions. We started on the morning of Sept. 2 and arrived at Fort Yukon two days later. On the way down we found the water very shallow, and after we had the vessel loaded and tried to get back up the river the Margaret was stopped by the sand bar across the stream above the fort.

"Captain Hanson, seeing the situation we were in, offered to take those of us down the river who wished to go and to have carpenters build rafts for those who desired to return to Dawson City. In the meantime the captain said he would go back to Dawson City in a canoe and warn the people of the situation, so that they would arrange to come after food.

"After the captain left us a party of 17 started down the river. When we reached Manook, the new mining camp, we found 800 people there who had tried to get up the Yukon, but could not on account of the ice. They were building huts and were preparing to spend the winter there. At Manook we took on board Charles Stevenson, Charles Bruce and William Moran of San Francisco. When we got within 30 miles of the mouth of the river, we found the small steamer Yukon, which had tried to get up, but was stopped by the ice. The river was fast freezing over, and as we could not get either up or down the stream and as our food was fast giving out we held a council of war and decided to make the journey to St. Michael's overland, a distance of 125 miles. On Oct. 8, each man carrying 65 pounds of provisions, we began the trip across the tundra, an immense ice plain covered with moss and lakes.

"Soon after we began the journey Bruce sprained his ankle. He wanted to stop, but we helped him along and made him travel as best he could. That night we came to a small river on which the ice was very thin, and we had to lie flat and push our packs ahead of us in order to get over without breaking the ice. On the other side of the bank was a deserted Indian hut, in which we spent the night, after nearly suffocating ourselves while trying to cook something to eat.

"The next morning we took up the journey again, helping Bruce along as well as we could. That day we came to the Little Postolick river and again we had to crawl across, being kept in constant dread of breaking through the ice, which was cracking all around us. We spent that night in a kiosim, or large hut, which served for sleeping quarters, living room and eating place for an entire Indian village of 40 or 50 people. There are shelves arranged around the kiosim, and on these the men, women and children sleep. In the middle of the earth floor a hole is dug, and in this is built a great fire. The opening in the roof is covered with sealskin, and when our party of 17 was added to those already in the kiosim, the blazing fire started and with no ventilation and the surroundings of the most filthy kind we were almost suffocated.

"The next morning Bruce was a little better, and we made pretty good progress. About noon we reached the ocean. There we saw two steamers frozen in the ice. They were the Mervine, from San Francisco, and the Alice, belonging to the Alaska Commercial company. While we were considering what next to do two young men and an old man came off the Mervine and told us they were going to St. Michael's. We decided to follow them. The weather was very cold at this time, and the temperature must have been about zero. That night we managed to keep from freezing by building a large fire, and the next morning we started anew for St. Michael's.

"That night we reached an Indian camp called Pitmatalluk, and we slept in a kiosim packed like sardines in a box with dirty Indian men, women and children. The next morning snow began to fall, and we waited until there was enough to carry a dog team, when we made another start for St. Michael's, which the Indians said was about 40 miles distant. Bruce and the old man who were compelled to leave in the care of the Indians, as they were unable to go any farther. Charles Harrison and William Moran, with their packs, started on ahead, and Miller, Brown and myself followed them at a distance of about two miles, supposing that the rest of the 40 would follow. We had put our provisions on the dog teams.

"Soon after we started it began to snow, and we did not see any more of Harrison and Miller. We also lost track of the dog team and the rest of the party, and we did not know where we were, and we had the hardest kind of a time to keep our bearings. Several times we had to cross what they call the canal, a crooked salt water sound, and we became so fatigued that about 4 o'clock in the afternoon Moran gave out and dropped to the ground and refused to go any farther. Half an hour later Harrison also played out. We had had nothing to eat since 9 o'clock in the morning. We wrapped Moran and Harrison up in blankets and scraped the snow away and built a fire. Miller happened to have some loaf sugar in his pocket, and he divided it with the rest of us, relieving our hunger to some slight extent. I wanted to leave the party and go to St. Michael's that night for help, but they would not allow me.

"We passed a miserable night, and to add to our other sufferings a cold rain began to fall. There were only four blankets for the five of us. The next morning I went up on a hill, and after taking my bearings I concluded that if we could reach another hill about five miles distant we would be in sight of St. Michael's. This renewed the strength of the party, and we plodded slowly along and up to the hill, when great was our joy to see the town lying just below us. We arrived at St. Michael's about 10 o'clock, but if we had 25 miles farther to go we would have been beyond help. The rest of the party, with the dog team and the Indians, came into St. Michael's the same night."—Philadelphia Press.

Even the Middlesex Women's club will acknowledge that Nansen is an expensive fad.

The assassin has reached Brazil, and the president of that republic has had a most narrow escape from death at his hands. It is another proof that one political crank will imitate the acts of another.

There is a general feeling that the withdrawal of $50,000,000 of circulating medium at the present juncture will cause a slight stringency in the money market. This is a result of the sale of the Union Pacific railroad.

The republican press of Lowell will now turn its attention to undermining Mr. Pearson's candidacy. It was very successful during the ante-caucus canvass in causing dissensions in the democratic ranks. It may have enough to do, however, in harmonizing the factions headed by Bennett, Lawton, Miller and Wilson.

Hon. Fisher H. Pearson has now an opportunity to carry out his promises in regard to swelling the check list of democratic voters. The party will look for the edition which he has promised and we have no doubt it will not be disappointed. He has an opportunity, to be elected if he only carries out his promises and if the party gives him its undivided support.

The case of General Weyler shows how little appreciation there is for a man's services to his country unless he succeeds. Weyler was cruel and tyrannical in Cuba and he did all perhaps that any man could do in the service of his country, yet because he failed and became ill-tempered over the treatment accorded him by the home government, he is now to be tried by court martial yet no one would be sorry to see Weyler punished for the heartless crimes he committed in Cuba.

ELECTION RESULTS.

The republican press of the country is now endeavoring to belittle the showing made on election day by the supporters of free silver and to magnify the vote of the gold democrats. The Boston Herald is assiduously harping on this key and misrepresenting the results of the election in the most flagrant manner. For example, it says that the vote received by Everett does not represent the full vote of the gold democrats, claiming that many of the latter voted the republican ticket. Now if they voted for Governor Wolcott, why should they be called democrats at all, or if the vote received by Dr. Everett does not represent the full strength of that element, why should not the Herald also say that the vote received by George Fred Williams did not fully represent the strength of the free silver democrats. There is just as much reason for the one statement as for the other. But there is the evident effort to disparage the results of the free silver vote and to magnify the opposition, but the fact remains that throughout the country there was a distinct and decided advance in the direction of the free silver cause on election day. This is evidenced first of all in the New York election, next in the defeat of Gorman in Maryland because he never endorsed the free silver movement and had on several occasions straddled the financial issue, refusing either to approve or condemn the free silver party. It is also evidenced in the election in Ohio where McKinley's chief lieutenant has been all but beaten; in Kentucky, in Michigan and in Chicago, where the municipal election is to be conducted on free silver lines. These are but indications, however of the general trend of sentiment throughout the country, but still they are indications which have alarmed the republican party. They encouraged democrats and proved conclusively that the fight between the gold standard and bimetallism must be fought to a finish, that it will come up again next year and for a final contest in 1900. Mr. Bryan as a leader of the free silver forces is more confident than ever and he has good ground for his confidence in the returns of last Tuesday's election throughout the country.

TRUE DEMOCRATIC POLICY.

After his nomination, Mayor-elect Van Wyck of the Greater New York outlined the policy he intends to put in practice when he shall have assumed the reins of government. It is worthy of study by every democrat in the land as an ideal policy for democrats to follow as a party and to demand of the officials they raise to power. It is the exact policy which The Sun has been preaching to democrats for years but which has heretofore never been so well enunciated. In order that it may be read and studied by every Lowell democrat who has not as yet seen it we reproduce it here. It is as follows:

"As to the men I shall call to fill office under me, I will be frank and plain. 'Put none byt democrats on guard,' shall be the motto of my administration. 'Put none but democrats on worth as a citizen shall together make up my first demand in selecting a man for an office. The man I appoint to office must own this trio of requisites. I must have proof that the public is to be honestly, faithfully, efficiently served, and that no call of duty on the part of an official is to be denied I must know that the man I name will do his whole, full duty to this city.

"But to find such a man for every place of appointment under me I need not leave the ranks of the democracy and I will not. The man for office under me must be honest, worthy, fit, yes; but he must be a democrat and the record of that man's democracy must be pure and must be straight.

"This is my notion of city government and by that idea I will guide. I do not do this on any 'To the victor belongs the spoils of the enemy' sentiment. It is not a question of victory or of spoils. The sole proposal is good government according to the expressed will of the people. These latter have declared for the democracy, they have elected its candidates and accepted its platform of principles. With those as the conditions, what fashion of political man should be named to carry out those principles and keep the promises of that platform? Should he be a republican? Or should he be a democrat who aided to make the platform, who believes in the principles set forth, who has fought for their success, and who has a heart to carry them into expression? There can be but one answer to all this. My appointees will be democrats; none but democrats. I do not understand the policy or the justice of going to the enemy to select your officers. In the ranks of the democracy can be found thousands who answer every requirement that the public weal demands and from the ranks of the democracy shall come my whole list of appointments.

"From first to last it will be my work to execute the principles laid down in the platform upon which I ran, and to enforce the law. In doing my full duty to the public in that behalf neither I nor those over whom, by my office, I have control, will know any difference of race, color, creed, or politics. As all share the burdens, so, too, shall all share the benefits of government and find aven, equal protection under the law."

If Van Wyck lives up to this declaration of executive policy, he will indeed be the model democratic executive of the country.

CRISP GOSSIP.

Those half-hour trips to Tyngsboro on the electrics, provided there are no face punching inconveniences going with them, will be a great treat to poor people in the summer weather. The ride to Tyngsboro is prettier than to Lawrence and not long enough to be tiresome. It has become popular already with the Tyngsboro young ladies who attend High school here. The people of Tyngsboro and vicinity were out in force on the opening day to welcome the first cars and the town cannon was fired off from the Merrill house in honor of its appearance. The cannon, however, was out of practice and kicked so when fired that the shock smashed all the windows in the side of the car. The people, however, gave their word that such an occurrence will never be heard of again, and that all may visit the pretty little town without fear.

Recently a young couple came to the parsonage and signified their desire and intention to become one. The young man was a stalwart broad-shouldered youth with an exceedingly kindly and honest face. She was small and dainty and pretty. When the clergyman put the question to her, "Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" she dropped the prettiest little courtesy imaginable, and with a modesty which lent to her beauty an additional grace, said softly, "If you please, sir."

The richest hoax of years is "Major" Garland, the spurious "powder boy of the Constitution," who was wined and dined and feted at Boston during the celebration of the old ship's centennial and who now proves to have been a glorious old fakir who never served on the Constitution, never fought in the war of 1812, never acted as chaplain of a Maine regiment and never did anything worthy of note except to gull the Boston people to the top of his bent.—Concord Monitor.

But it's Lowell people who will appreciate the bad part of the joke. Garland was not only carried around Boston in a barouche with bowing multitudes on all sides and wined and dined but he also had a poem written in his honor by P. J. Lynch, formerly of the Mail and well known in this city. It's regularly moved and seconded that Percy sets 'em up when we meet again.

Judging by the names of those elected to office, the Dutch, as well as the Tammanyites have taken New York. Van Wyck, Guggenheimer, Haffen, Sohmer, Wuest, Fromme, and Van Brunt are some of the leading candidates chosen.

The Taunton Herald says that the editor of a Bath newspaper caught the measles by kissing a Boston girl. Serves him right. He ought to have kissed a Bath girl.

Edward F. Brady formerly wine clerk at Joseph Clark's Emblem saloon in Liberty Square, has taken the management of James Cawley's saloon at the corner of Thorndike and Worthen streets.

William H. Harrigan and William J. Reardon of this city were bearers at the funeral of Mrs. Catharine Hamilton, the victim of the Worcester murder, in Lawrence, on Friday.

A BURGLAR SHOT

By an Officer While Resisting Arrest.

THE LITTLE TOWN OF HOLBROOK ALARMED.

The Burglar May Not Recover.

Holbrook, Mass., Nov. 8.—James Boyle of Randolph, 23 years old, while attempting, it is supposed, to burglarize the store of George F. Wild, was shot by Officer Webster. The officer used his revolver only after a long tussle with Boyle, who fought savagely in resisting arrest. Webster had expected a break in the store and was prepared for Boyle when the latter, breaking a front window, entered the building. As soon as the man was inside the officer jumped out and told Boyle to throw up his hands. Instead of doing so, Boyle made a rush for the officer, and for a few minutes there was the liveliest kind of a fight.

At last the officer fired, the bullet entering Boyle's side below the heart, where it glanced upward so as to be removed easily. The alleged burglar was too weak to resist arrest afterwards.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Sunday morning the Green mountains were snowcapped for the first time this season. The first fall last year was three weeks earlier.

Friday night the general supply store of George A. Rowe of China, Me., was broken into and a large amount of general merchandise stolen, together with a small amount of cash.

While a number of students and officers were lounging in a coffee house at Vienna a dispute arose which culminated in a serious affray. Three of the students and a waiter were badly wounded.

Captain Robert H. Coombs, a prominent ship captain in the days when shipping boomed at Belfast, Me., dropped dead last evening while walking with his grand-daughter. The summons came unexpectedly, as he had been in good health up to this time.

James Ranger of Holyoke, Mass., a freshman in Amherst college, in attempting to board a train from Northampton to Amerst slipped under the cars and his left foot was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. His head was also badly injured.

WANTED—MURDERER.

Boston, Nov. 8.—The police spent all Sunday in running down clues on the murder of Alice Brown, who was found strangled in a lodging house last Thursday, and the only one which gave them any encouragement was that relating to a man who was seen in a restaurant with the girl on the night when the murder is supposed to have been committed. A fairly accurate description has been obtained of this man, and the police think that when apprehended he may be able to give some definite clew to the perpetrator of the crime, if indeed he does not prove to be the murderer himself.

A number of persons visited the morgue, among them being Owen Brown of New Bedford; he, as well as all the others, was unable to identify the body. Mr. Brown said at once that she was not his daughter, whom he stated he had not seen or heard from since last July.

It did not take long to clear James McMillan, who was arrested Saturday night as a possible witness of the crime, from all connection with it. Some one heard a blind singer use rather peculiar language in speaking to McMillan, and the latter was arrested on suspicion. Sunday, however, he was released, as he was able to prove to the police that, while knowing the girl, nevertheless he knew nothing of the crime. The mystery surrounding the whole affair appears as thick as ever, and the police are singularly baffled in trying to identify the woman.

SUICIDE OF A MURDERER.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 8.—Charles Pinkerton, under sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of his nephew and son-in-law, cut his throat in the county jail. Death was almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Pinkerton was an inmate of the same cell with her husband, the precaution being taken to prevent the prisoner from carrying out threats of suicide, but there is evidence that she furnished the knife with which her husband killed himself.

SUGAR SCHOONER SANK.

Halifax, Nov. 8.—The ship John McLeod, Captain Stewart, with a cargo of sugar bound to this port, struck on Black rock, entrance of this harbor, Sunday morning, during a thick fog. The ship sank soon after the crew left, going down in about 30 fathoms, and is a total loss. She was 1519 tons and 12 years old, and owned by Troop & Son of St. John. She was worth about $40,000, and her cargo was valued at about $100,000.

ACCEPTED THE SITUATION.

Columbus, Nov. 8.—There have been no new developments in the legislative situation, the Democrats having apparently abandoned all further efforts to contest the election of Republican representatives in close counties. The Republican majority of five on joint ballot in the general assembly will probably not be changed unless the fusionist members in Cincinnati vote with the Republicans.

TECHNOLOGY WON.

AN INTERESTING GAME WITH THE LOWELLS.

The Technology freshmen defeated the Lowell team in an interesting game of football on the Fair grounds Saturday afternoon. Tech scored 10 points, while the Lowell boys were blanked.

The Glenmores were to be the opponents of the Lowell team but they did not play, and there are two stories as to the reason. One is that the Glenmores kicked late Friday night for more than the agreed purse. The Lowells threw up the game and telephoned Tech to come up and play, which they did. The other story is that the Lowells failed to keep their engagement and called the Glenmores hard names.

The local men kicked off and the ball was sent 30 yards down the field, and Tech held it till Kennard scored a touch down.

Evans kicked against the wind and failed to make a goal.

Lowell kicked off again and Smith got the ball and went out of bounds five yards into the Lowells' territory; Tech lost the ball on a forward pass. Lowell tried a punt and got 25 yards. Tech pushed the ball for ten yards on the next few downs; then Danforth got the ball for a fine run around the right end, throwing a lot of tacklers on the way, for a touchdown; Evans kicked the goal; Lowell kicked off for 30 yards. Tech pushed to enter and got five yards on an off side. Time was called with the ball on Lowell's 26-yard line.

Tech kicked off in the second half for 25 yards; Ford Coburn for Lowell punted to center; Smith of Tech fell on the ball, but fumbled; Danforth made a run for the goal, but the referee said the ball was down at center.

Smith of Tech made a pretty play, jumping over the runner and tackling the quarter before the could pass the ball.

Banks punted for 15 yards; Tech got the ball and pushed to within one yard of the goal when time was called.

COUNTING SILVER.

IT WILL COST THE GOVERNMENT $20,000 TO DISCOVER THE LOSS.

Washington Nov. 8.—The count of the silver in the treasury may show a larger deficiency than was anticipated when treasurer Roberts ordered it begun months ago.

The big vault contains $101,000,000 in silver and all but $28,000,000 of these dollars have ben counted in the two dollars have been counted in the two months. Treasury officials will not give out the amount of the shortage fund, but admit that it is over $200.

The count will last for several months yet. It progresses at the rate of about $750,000 a day. Twenty-eight women do the counting of the silver dollars. They sit at four long tables and the jingle of silver is heard in all directions. Each counter has a tray before her. With dollars stacked high, this tray holds $100. As a tray is filled a sealer takes charge of it, puts the dollars in bags, and sends them to the weighers, any discrepancy in weight calling for another count.

Whatever loss the count shows will fall on former Treasurer D. N. Morgan. The count will cost the government $20,000.

MUSIC HALL.

"PAY TRAIN" TONIGHT.

"The Pay Train" will, no doubt, be received tonight by a very large audience at Music Hall, as there has been considerable interest taken in the appearance of this splendid company here. One of our exchanges speaks of the performance as follows: The play is rich in exciting situations and thrilling climaxes, while a liberal sprinkling of pure comedy brightens the whole play in a pleasing manner. The several specialties by Ollie Hanford, Roch & Whiting, and Elliott & Zackert add their share of interest to the production. The scenery of the "Pay Train" is magnificent and the mechanical effects very realistic. The first act represents the deck of the big ocean steamer, City of New York, with the Brooklyn bridge and New York harbor in the distance. This set is illuminated by hundreds of electric lights making it a most beautiful scene and requires the entire stage from wall to wall for its production. The thrilling incline railroad wreck and the marvelous boiler explosion are the greatest mechanical devices ever presented on the stage. The company is the strongest ever seen in this city. Tonight at Music Hall.

The beautiful burlesque queen, May Howard, who has created a furore and won a name second to none in the vaudeville, is announced to appear at Music Hall next Thursday, Friday and Saturday accompanied by twenty-five well known comedians and burlesque artists. Miss Howard has been recognized as a leading singing comedian for the last five seasons. Her engagements at Hammerstein's, the Casino, and Koster & Bial's being one of the most successful ever shown any artist in New York. This season she heads her own company of merry makers, who will present two burlesques written up to the minute by Fred Solomon, entitled "The Naughty French Girl." It will be seen as the opening and after a strong olio, the closing act of "The Three Lost Brothers."

BITTERNESS IN SPAIN.

New York, Nov. 8.—Captain William Wyndham, who has been transferred as British consul at Chicago after three years service in a similar capacity at Barcelona, Spain, was a passenger on La Bretagne, which arrived here from Havre yesterday. He said: "The feeling in Spain against the United States is one of great bitterness, particularly so in Barcelona. Before the Cuban war Barcelona, one of the great manufacturing centers of Spain, prospered chiefly on its trade with Cuba and Manila. The war in Cuba and the Philippine Islands has cut off this trade. Barcelona has lost the best and most lucrative market she enjoyed. Only one-third of the men hitherto employed in her factories are now working, and they are on reduced time. All over the manufacturing centers of Spain there is similar commercial prostration. The Spanish cannot understand why the United States, a friendly nation, should allow so many filibustering expeditions to get off safely to Cuba. That fact makes them additionally bitter."

Lowell Mothers Keep Them, But With a Little Light There Need be None.

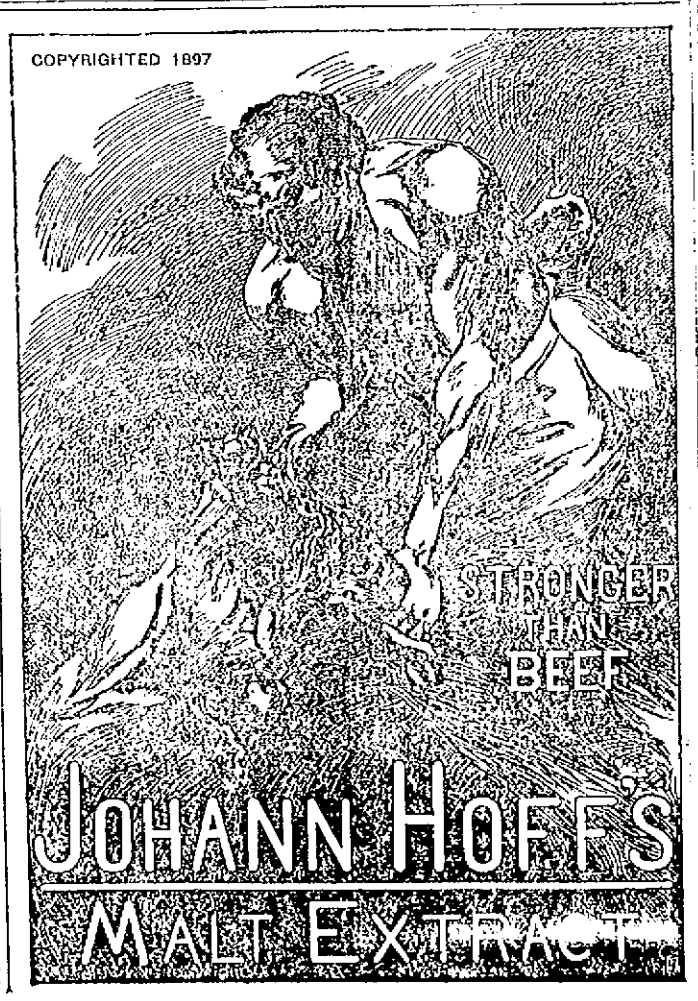

How carefully mother guards the secrets of her boys and girls. At night as she carefully tucks the bed clothes round them she chides and warns that mother will be angry if they repeat last night's offence, softly saying to herself, it's only a habit, but I must break them of it. This is mother's mistake. The children cannot help it, and sweet, clean dry beds can be the resting place of every child when it is understood that the cause is not a habit, but a weakness that can be cured. Active life of the little ones tends to weakening of the kidneys, and weak Kidneys means inability to retain the urine. This is a condition, not a habit, and should have the same prompt attention you would give to the marked symptoms of any disease. One Doan's Kidney Pill taken twice a day and at bed-time will strengthen the kidneys of a child and in a short time there will be no cause to scold, for the so-called habit will disappear promptly.

Here's a grateful mother that adds her endorsement to our words:

Mrs. Wm. Wood, who lives at No. 30 Colony street, Meriden, Conn., says: "My little boy of ten years of age has always been troubled with weakness of the kidneys, causing him to wet the bed. So many mothers punish their children for this, but I knew he couldn't help it. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills curing an incontinence of urine in adults and thought they might help the little fellow. I procured a box and their use produced a marked benefit at once. It is very seldom he does it now. I shall continue giving him Doan's Kidney Pills until the kidneys are strong. It is only out of gratitude that I permit publication but this trouble is a very prevalent one, and most people from a matter of modesty or diffidence do not speak of it. Physicians don't appear to be able to cope with this trouble, and I consider it a mother's duty to tell others about it when she has found a specific for this terrible annoyance."

THE ARENA OF POLITICS

ATTENTION, REPUBLICANS!

A Few Propositions That Should Have Careful Thought.

Republicans, the last Republican platform pledged the party to endeavor to secure international bimetallism. That plank was a condemnation of the gold standard. To promise to rid the nation of the gold standard is a confession that it is bad. President McKinley asked congress for authority to appoint a commission to visit Europe and ask the leading nations of the old world to help the United States to let go of a gold standard. The commission went to France, and France consented to bimetallism, thereby declaring the gold standard to have been injurious to France. The commission went to Germany and found Germany disposed to wait on England. The commission went to England and remained there for three months, hoping for aid. When the government and the Bank of England intimated that England might be willing to make some slight concessions, the bankers of London met in secret session on Sept. 22 and protested. Now the English government has bowed to the will of the London bankers and refused to lend any assistance.

Republicans, your party turned over the control of our finances to Europe, Europe turned the matter over to England, England turned the matter over to the London bankers, and the London bankers declared against bimetallism and pledged themselves to secrecy.

Republicans, are you willing to allow the London bankers to meet in secret and determine the financial policy of the American people?

Republicans, are you willing to allow the London bankers to meet in secret and determine the conditions which shall surround your children?

Republicans, are you not now ready to join those who favor the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation?—Omaha World-Herald.

THE FEDERAL COURTS.

By Their Arbitrary Rulings the Will of the People Is Annulled.

"Government by injunction" was first invented in the federal courts in this country in order to suppress labor strikes and terrify the working population from demanding increase of wages, diminution of hours of labor and similar regulations for its benefit and advantage. It was seldom or never resorted to by state courts, the reason, as it is generally believed, being that the judges of the latter are mostly elected by popular vote for terms of office, while the federal judges are appointed by the president of the United States and hold their places for life, irresponsible to the people.

From labor troubles the next step was not a long one to take to interfere in officeholding troubles. It was taken when, lately, a federal court issued an injunction forbidding the renewal of two officeholders of the internal revenue, and it was followed up by another construction of law by which was maintained the right of a head of department to change a civil service employee from a high salary to a small one, although he was supposedly protected in his first place by his appointment after competitive examination. In this last case the court and the department dealt a pretty nigh fatal blow at the supposed immunity of the civil service appointees.

As we are going on in this experience of injunctions it is evident that we shall soon reach a point where we will have nothing to do but to obey them. As every statute passed by the elected representatives of the people is subject to "construction" by the life tenure judges of the federal courts, as injunctions are issued upon ex parte affidavits and applications, and as contempts are adjudged without indictment or trial, we are all marching forward to a condition of things which leads—whither?—New York News.

FRUITS OF PROTECTION.

High Tariffs Enrich a Few at the Expense of the People.

Prices of the necessaries of life have all gone up. The rise in the price of flour is due to the famine abroad, but it should not be forgotten that if the famine were in this country the people would have to pay a heavy tax on the imports of food stuffs. In other cases the rise is due to protective tariffs.

Higher prices in foods are matched by higher prices in shoes, clothing and household goods. The poor will suffer.

While the Dingley law is now burdening the people and is putting millions of their hard earned dollars in the coffers of trusts and combines it is putting little money in the treasury. Imports have fallen off. The increased prices the people pay are not paid in taxes to the government, but in tribute to the favorites of the government.

Instead of promising prosperity high tariffs blight it. They enrich a few plutocrats at the expense of the people and with a loss to the revenues.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sound Money Patriots.

The Louisville Post deplores the fact that a "sound money" Democrat was removed by McKinley to make room for "a sound money" Republican and declares that because of such things the administration is becoming obnoxious to "sound money" Democrats. This gives us a deep pain, for we were assured that the "sound money" Democrats were not actuated by any desire to hold on to the offices when they supported McKinley, but were impelled by an ovi- helming patriotism to succor and support Republicanism. The Louisville Post is giving the "sound money" Democrat snap dead away.

CREW OF NINETEEN LOST

On a Lake Erie Steamer Through Vessel's Weakness.

The Captain Thought His Ship was Much Stronger Than She was—Terrific Fate of the Entire Crew.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—The Western Transit company's steamer Idaho, which left Buffalo Friday afternoon for Chicago, laden with package freight, foundered on Lake Erie during a furious gale. The first mate and one sailor, who succeeded in reaching the rigging, were rescued by the Mariposa Saturday afternoon, and were brought here. The balance of the crew, numbering 19, were undoubtedly drowned.

Captain Root had this to say regarding the storm on the lake and the rescue of the two men, who are Louis Laforce and William Gill: "It was one of the worst gales I ever experienced in all my years on the lakes. We started from Chicago with a load of oats. All the way down the lakes we had to fight with the storm, and I thought once or twice of putting in somewhere until it blew over. I am glad I did not, for I fear that if I had these two men would have joined their mates.

"It was about 12:30 Saturday afternoon when I first learned of the wreck. I was on deck when my first mate came to me and told me that he had sighted a spar off to the north, and he thought there was a couple of men clinging to it. When I got my glasses on it I could distinguish the men plainly. We were running under a good head of steam, and I put on more and headed for the spar. When I got near I was puzzled how to help the men off, for I could not lower a boat in such a storm. Finally I circled about the spar until I ran alongside and my men picked the poor fellows off. They had to drag them away from the spar by force, for they had been there so long that their arms had become almost paralyzed and were twisted about the mast and almost frozen fast to it. When we got them on board we put them in bunks and gave them warm food and soups, and had them feeling pretty good physically when we reached harbor."

The Idaho went out of commission three or four years ago, but this summer she was thoroughly overhauled, after which she was placed at the disposal of the Naval Veterans' association and by that organization used as the flagship during the G. A. R. encampment in August. At the close of the encampment she was put into commission again as a freighter. The captain of the ill-fated steamer, Alexander Gillies, was one of the most widely known of the lake seamen. He was 41 years old and knew the lake waters like a book.

The lost comprise the following: Alexander Gillies, captain, Buffalo; George Gibson, first mate, Buffalo; William Clancy, chief engineer, Buffalo; John D. Taylor, steward, Buffalo; Nelson Skinner, first assistant engineer; Louis Gilmore, watchman; Richard McLean, wheelsman; Robert Williams, wheelsman; J. J. Richard, lookout; Henry Thompson, lookout; Conrad Blanker, fireman; William Gregory, fireman; John Healy, assistant steward; Frederick Miffort, oiler; Edward Smith, deckhand, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. Bell, deckhand. The names of three of the men drowned are unknown to the steamship company. One was a fireman, another a deckhand and a third a porter.

A Thrilling Recital.

William Gill, the rescued deckhand, has sailed on the lakes for many years. His story of the disaster is a thrilling one. He said: "We left here Friday night bound for Chicago with a cargo of general merchandise. Everything seemed to be all right until we got outside the breakwater, and then we were struck by the worst storm that I ever saw. When the first big wave struck us we were tossed into the air like a top, and a second later a big roller came over the port bow and rolled down amidships a foot deep. The wind shrieked and howled, but we did not pay much attention to the storm. We had felt the wind before. The captain consulted with the mate and decided that we could weather it, and he kept on his course.

"As we headed up the lake, dead against the gale, it appeared to be getting worse every minute. The waves were running high and the wind threw the tops from the breakers like dust. We moved slowly against the heavy wind and sea, and when we were well up the lake we found the boat was making water. It kept coming faster and faster, and the bilge pumps were put to work, but the water gained, and every minute the ship kept getting less buoyant and the big combers kept breaking over her.

"We were near Long Point at this time, and the captain started to put in there with the intention of beaching her, but the water gained so rapidly that it was too late. She was already laboring, and the two men at the wheel could do nothing. A couple more men went to work with them, and brought her around and headed her towards land.

"Captain Gillies started the pumps and ordered the men to the fire buckets. We formed a line and began to bail, but it was no use. The water gained on the pumps and the buckets, and soon the water put the fires out. When it was found that the power had gone and that she could not move, we knew we could not live in the trough of the fearful sea, and the only hope left us was to run out the anchor and bring her head up to the sea and let her ride out the gale. Every seaman realizes the danger of attempting to do that in the face of a hurricane, and when Captain Gillies decided to do it he ordered the lashings of the boats cut and told the men that they were forced to take one last chance for their lives.

"At the word the anchor dropped from the bow and the chain began to pay out; but the sea was too heavy, and instead of the anchor catching with a firm grip and bringing the ship's head up to the storm with a jerk, it went too slow, and she simply tumbled into the trough of the seas, which broke over her in torrents. In an instant she was as helpless as a log, and she was tossed here and there and taking every wave aboard. From port to starboard the great mountains of water poured, rolling into the hold, and this added to the quantity already weighting her down. The load was too much, and after a moment, when we all felt that we were lost, the ship keeled over to starboard and went down, stern first.

"What became of my mates I do not know. I remember that the boats had been loosened, and that some of the men were ready to take to them if the vessel went under, but no boat could have lived for a minute in that terrible sea, and if any of them did get in the boats it was simply to be swamped as soon as the first wave struck them. Maybe they did not leave the ship at all. I was near the spar, and when the stern of the vessel began to go under I went for the rigging and went up as fast as I could. Another man went with me—the second mate—and I thank the Lord that he was with me, or I would have gone mad during all the long hours that I was up there hanging on and trying to keep off the frightful cold that was surely killing us both.

"There was a rolling to and fro as the vessel struck the bottom and slowly righted to an even keel, and then a second later she rolled over to one side. I thought she was going all the way over, but she did not. She settled on the bottom, and though the waves rolled her from port to starboard the spar remained out of the water, with my mate and myself clinging to it. All this time the hail and sleet was coming down in a cutting sheet and we were covered with ice in a few minutes, for though the top of the spar on which we were hanging was 25 feet above water, the big waves struck us and broke over us, and the hail cut us like shot. I knew that it was about 3 o'clock when we went down, and it seemed to me that daylight would never come. For what seemed to be an age we hung on to the rigging, and we twisted our arms about the spar and let them freeze in position, for we would have fallen into the fearful sea.

"When daylight came we could not see a sail anywhere near us, and the sea was as bad as ever. There did not seem to be any chance of it going down. Hour after hour we waited there, and then we saw the Mariposa coming. For a long time we did not know whether she would sight us, and we watched her from the time she was a little, smoky haze up the lake until we could see that she was a big vessel. When she finally sighted us and we saw her head for us, I tried to tell my mate, but I could not, and he looked at me with a happy look in his face. It was a terrible time to us before she came up to us, and then I knew we were not yet safe, for the sea was running mountains high and the big steel boat was rolling like a skiff. Every wave sent her up in the air until we could see her white bottom under her waterline. We knew at once that her captain would not attempt to lower a boat, for it would have been chewed up. When the Mariposa got within a cable length of us a man with a strong voice yelled to us to hang on. Then the boat circled around us, coming as near as she could, but then she went off to starboard, rolling heavily when she got in the trough of the sea. Then she came back again and again missed us, and we could not take a line had one been thrown to us. Again she went around, and we watched her and watched the men on her rail waiting to give us a lift when they could. On the third trip around she ran right alongside our spar, and as she went past a dozen men reached for us. I do not know who got the mate, but Mr. Smith, the engineer, got hold of me and dragged me from the spar and over the rail of the Mariposa. An instant later we had passed the little stock on which I and the mate had been hanging almost a day, although it seemed a week."

The second mate, Louis Laforce, told a harrowing story. He said that in the rush of the men from the hold, one of them, a watchman, was trampled to death. The crew was frantic to get out of the place. Six or eight, he said, must have been drowned like rats in the hold. They were not warned of the sinking of the boat. The first long dip of the stern was the first intimation they had that the final danger was at hand, and then they made a grand rush to get on deck. The hatchway was too small to let them through together, and the result was that one of them was trampled to death and several were left to drown.

LIVELY FIRE AT LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Nov. 8.—A fire of considerable proportions broke out at midnight this morning in the wholesale business district. The flames originated on the top floor of a building occupied by Bareford & Lawson, wholesale millinery dealers, and quickly spread to the four-story building on the west occupied by Benjamin S. Weller, wholesale dealer in boots and shoes. The flames were fed by a large quantity of wax used in making flowers, and despite the fact that tons of water were thrown into both buildings continued to blaze furiously for an hour. At 1 o'clock the fire was brought under control. A conservative estimate places the total loss at $150,000, fully covered by insurance.

VENGEANCE OF A MOB.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 8.—Saturday night a large mob broke into and looted the office of The Republican. Although the plan was generally known, the police were powerless to prevent the attack. The Republican had made itself particularly obnoxious by its criticisms upon the government policy in connection with recent campaign against the fanatics, and upon its attacks upon President Moraes and General Marcado Bittencourt, the minister of war, who was fatally stabbed during the disturbance that followed the attempt upon the president's life last Friday afternoon.

FELL AND WAS KILLED.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 8.—William Robinson, 63 years old, fell from a bridge over the Boston and Albany track Sunday afternoon and died a few minutes afterward from the effects of his injuries. Robinson was standing one one of the buttresses of the bridge, and it is supposed he slipped and fell a distance of 25 feet, striking on his head. He was a widower and leaves one child.

Oh, How They Hurt.

Neuralgic pains are often so acute, that the poor sufferer becomes, almost, frenzied with the intensity of the pain. Salvation Oil will instantly relieve and effectually cure neuralgia, so there is no reason why a moment's pain should be endured. Mr. Jacob Klein, 1036 Main St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "My wife suffered from neuralgia for seven years and since she used Salvation Oil, she has not had a spell. I think it is the best liniment I have ever tried, and I would not be without a bottle of it in the house. I had the rheumatism for five years and had tried a great many liniments, and must say that Salvation Oil did me more good than any other remedy." Salvation Oil is sold everywhere for 25 cents.

ROBBED THE SAFE

Hold-Up by a Gang of Highway Men.

WHO OPENED THE WRONG SAFE.

And Consequently Missed a Big Haul.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Nov. 8.—No. 2 passenger train of the Santa Fe Pacific, which was held up at Grant's station Saturday night, reached this city at 11:30 Sunday morning. Conductor Aldrich states that just as the train came to a halt at Grant's, a fusilade of shots rang out in the air, and several men boarded the train, one going on the engine. He and Engineer McCarthy were on the platform, but caught the train as it was moving out. The fireman, Henry Abel, was compelled, at the point of a revolver, to pull the train up to the stock yards, about two miles distant. The conductor realized that something was wrong and left the train at the stock yards, where the robbers had ordered the train stopped. He ran back to the station and telegraphed the news to Division Superintendent Hubbard at Gallup and Sheriff Hubbell.

In the meantime the robbers cut the mail coach, the day and chair coaches and the Pullman sleeper from the engine and express car, and the fireman was ordered to pull the latter further up the road. They commenced dynamiting the express car, and the third explosion blew out one end of the car, Abel being forced to assist the robbers. Once inside, they picked out the safe which they surmised contained considerable money and valuables, and placed it on a stick of dynamite.

A few lumps of coal were put on the dynamite, a fuse was attached to the safe and lighted, and in this way the robbers blew a hole in the safe. They helped themselves to a number of packages containing gold and silver coin, which they placed in a sack, and then left the car, going in the direction of Malpoirt rocks, where their horses were picketed. The express car was on fire and Abel, thoroughly frightened, backed the engine and express car into the other portion of the train at the stock yards. In consequence the express car, day coach and chair car were telescoped, and all three destroyed by fire.

Express agents who went out to the scene state that the robbers did not get into the most valuable safe, which, with two others, was badly warped by the fire. They think, however, that the robbers secured several thousand dollars, but the exact amount will not be known for some time, as all the papers and records of the car and safe were burned. The baggage was all removed before the fire got under headway. The passengers were not molested. The robbers are thought to be desperate cowboys who are familiar with that section of the road. A posse of officers is in pursuit.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 8.—A soap factory belonging to the estate of Edward F. Marsh was burned Sunday morning. The fire was probably of incendiary origin, and the loss is about $2000.

Halifax, Nov. 8.—The residence of George Tullock, about three miles from Halifax, was burned to the ground Saturday night. Maria Walker, sister of Mrs. Tullock, and a 4-year-old child of the Tullocks, who were sleeping together, were burned to death.

POPULAR FOOTBALL GAMES

Witnessed by Thousands on the Pacific Coast Yesterday.

The Baltimore Team Outplayed—New Record for Entire Days Wheeling on the Bicycle—Other Notes From Sporting Fields.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—The aggregation of ball players from the east made its appearance Sunday at Recreation park. The All-American players played all around the men from Baltimore. It was an ideal day, and the size of the crowd was only limited by the capacity of the grounds. Every seat in the grandstand and the bleachers was taken, and a fringe of humanity surrounded the entire field, greatly interfering with the fielding of the players and being partly responsible for the large score. The grounds, too, were very rough, having been used for football when soft and slushy.

Dr. Pond, for the Baltimores, did not prove much of a puzzle to the nine gathered from the cream of the National league. They batted him hard and often, and after the sixth inning the crowd set up a continuous howl for Joe Corbett, but the latter did not respond. All the Californians, namely, Lange, Reitz, Clark and Nash, received a warm welcome from the 12,000 or more spectators. Lange was fairly smothered with floral tributes, the most attractive of which was a large shield of white roses, with the words, "Little Eva," in carnations. Lange responded by lining out the first ball pitched against the centre field fence for two bases.

The fielding of the All-Americans was clean and snappy. The only feature in the playing of the Baltimores was Jennings' quick and clean fielding. He made a remarkable double play, catching a straight liner by jumping in the air and throwing the batter out at first. Donahue's work behind the bat for Baltimore was very slow. Score:

		R	H	E
All-Americans	3 0 3 1 1 6 0 2	16	19	3

READY TO MEET JACKSON.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—Joe Choynski, the California heavyweight, has arrived in San Francisco. He announces that he is in perfect condition and ready to fight Jefferies at any time. The meeting will probably occur on the 15th of Nov. He was asked about the prospect of a meeting between Jackson and himself. "I am ready to meet Jackson," he said, "as soon as my present engagement is over. I have never shirked anyone, and stand ready to meet any man in the business."

While Choynski is here to meet Jefferies, it is the opinion of sporting men that he is anxious for another match with Goddard. At all events it is likely that Choynski will have as many engagements on his hands before he leaves San Francisco as he can take care of.

FREAKISHNESS OF BICYCLISTS.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Charles D. Campbell and William J. Nixon, members of a local cycling organization, have left this city on a tandem for a 15,000-mile ride. They were escorted as far as Wilmington by about 300 riders. The men ride as the result of a wager that they cannot complete the distance inside of one year and on their return show $1000, the start to be made without any money and only the necessary clothing that can be carried in a traveling case. They are required to visit the leading southern cities and to strike westward and be in Indianapolis at the National L. A. W. meet next year. The men expect to earn the $1000 by selling bicycle sundries.

BICYCLE RECORDS BROKEN.

Brockton, Nov. 8.—Frank B. German of this city broke the American 24-hour bicycle road record by riding 342 miles. He started at 4 p. m. Friday. The former record was held by Davis of Cleveland at 316 miles.

German also broke Davis' 12-hour record of 176 by riding 192 miles in the same time. The course was from this city to Franklin park, Boston, a round distance of 54 miles. German made the trip up and back six times and finished with a spurt ride to Stoughton. He finished the 342 miles just seven minutes before the expiration of the 24 hours.

DIXON'S SERMONS

HE ADVOCATED LOW'S ELECTION AGAINST CHOIR.

Low was Opposed by Choir Leaders.

New York, Nov. 8.—Sunday about 40 singers, constituting the chorus choir of the church of which the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., is pastor, refused to sing out of sympathy with Professor Agramonte, their leader, because the pastor advocated the election of Seth Low for mayor last Sunday.

REV. THOMAS DIXON, JR.

Professor Agramonte is a Cuban and a member of the New York junta. His son has been in a Spanish prison on the Island of Cuba for two years. The Cubans say that Seth Low opposed any intervention of this country in Cuban affairs, and stood against the cause of Cuban liberty since the outbreak of the last war.

Mr. Dixon said yesterday in his sermon that he sympathized with Professor Agramonte and added: "I can only say that I did not advocate my congregation voting for Low with any enthusiasm. I considered it my duty to do so because I saw that he was the strongest candidate against Tammany, and even he was preferable to Tammany. I cast my own vote for Low, but I cast it early in the morning, and took a train and got away from the city as fast as I could, and went shooting. I didn't care to be at the funeral. I had felt for some days a premonition of the inevitable.

"This shows what a thorny path a preacher has who insists on saying what he thinks. I hope that Professor Agramonte will come back to us with his choir. I don't say a word against him for feeling as he did about Mr. Low; in fact, I rather sympathize with him. Yet if all our supporters leave us, if there are only three, two or one of our friends left, we will still be found doing business in the best way we know how in the old stand."

ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLING.

Lubec, Me., Nov. 8.—As a result of an investigation into the closing of the Lubec savings bank, Micah M. Foster, treasurer of that institution, was placed under arrest Saturday charged with embezzling $20,000 of the funds of the bank. Mr. Foster says that he will establish his innocence when the case comes to trial.

His bail was fixed at $20,000.

The bank closed its doors last summer. The amount of assets and liabilities is not exactly known yet. Most of the depositors were sardine packers and fishermen. An examination of the bank's books has been going on for weeks, with the result that an apparent shortage of about $20,000 was discovered.

The bank is one of the smallest institutions of the kind in the state. The treasurer's bond is only $3000, and the bondsmen will be called upon to pay that amount providing the trial goes against Foster. It is claimed that the bank's affairs have been loosely managed, and that several irregularities in the transfer of certain securities have been found. Treasurer Foster is 70 years old, and has always been highly respected.

IN INTEREST OF ECONOMY.

Portland, Me., Nov. 8.—Important changes on the Maine Central are announced, being a consolidation in the operating department. The mountain and Quebec divisions are to be consolidated and both superintendents, Jones Hamilton and Wellington Sprague, are removed. George F. Black has been appointed division superintendent. From $4000 to $7000 of a saving will be effected by the changes.

TRIBUTES TO FAITH, PATRIOTISM, AND TO THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF SCIENCE.

THE WESTMINSTER STANDARD: AGED 250.

This Month Witnesses An International Celebration In Honor of the Event.

HOW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HISTORY WAS MADE

The Great Day Will Be Observed By a National Celebration in New York City.

The national celebration of the 250th anniversary of the adoption of the Westminster Standards of Faith will take place in New York City on the 8th and 9th of November, by services in which the most prominent officials of the denomination from all parts of the country will participate. The Standards of Faith consist of the Confession of Faith, the Large and Shorter Catechisms, the Form of Government, the Book of Discipline, and the Directory for the Worship of God. These were completed by the Westminster Assembly of Divines about November 19, 1647, and were presented to the Houses of the English Parliament on the 25th and 26th days of the same month. They were approved by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, July 28th, 1648; by the English Parliament, about September 5, 1648; and by the Scottish Parliament, February 7, 1649. The Westminster Confession of Faith was adopted by the General Synod of New York in the year 1729, and in 1758 the Synods of New York and Philadelphia united on the basis of these standards. The constitution of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, containing the Standards of Faith and Catechisms, the Form of Government, the Book of Discipline and the Directory for the Worship of God, was ratified and adopted by the Synods of New York and Philadelphia in 1788.

The Confession of Faith is in many respects a remarkable document, well written, and in a style at once forcible and perspicuous, yet easily intelligible, and not to be misunderstood. It is professedly and thoroughly Calvinistic, setting forth the distinctive features of that system with undisguised frankness. Its fundamental doctrines, apart from the question of predestination, are those of nearly all classes of evangelical Protestants. In America it is also the basis of the Cambridge and Saybrook platforms.

The celebration in New York will be elaborate and interesting. On the afternoon of Monday, November 8, at 3 o'clock, a meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, on Fifth Avenue, 11th and 12th Streets, of which Rev. Howard Duffield, D. D., is pastor. This meeting is under the auspices of the Historical Committee of the New York Presbytery, the Chairman of which committee, Rev. George W. F. Birch, D. D., L. L. D., of Bethany Church, has prepared a programme of marked excellence. Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, D. D., Moderator of the Presbytery of New York, will preside. Rev. Benjamin Warfield, D. D., Professor of Systematic Theology in Princeton Seminary, will speak on "The Westminster Standards—Their Significance as a Creed." Rev. Wm. S. Plummer Bryan, D. D., Pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Chicago, will speak on "The Westminster Standards as Tested by History." Rev. F. F. Ellinwood, D. D., L. L. D., one of the Secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, will speak on "The Westminster Standards, and the Evangelization of the World." The singing will be of special excellence, under the management of William C. Carl, A. G. O., Organist and Choirmaster. A feature of special interest will be the rendering of a hymn, almost as old as the church, which Rev. Dr. Birch discovered in an old church in Pennsylvania. It contains six verses, each of which exemplifies a doctrine of Presbyterianism. The text of the stanzas is as follows:

Let me, my Saviour and my God,
On sovereign grace rely,
And own 'tis free, because bestowed
On one so vile as I.

Election! 'tis a word divine!
For, Lord, I plainly see,
Had not Thy choice prevented mine
I ne'er had chosen Thee.

For perseverance strength I've none,
But would on this depend -
That Jesus, having loved His own,
Will love them to the end.

Empty and bare, I came to Thee
For righteousness divine;
O! may Thy glorious merits be
By imputation mine.

Free grace alone can wipe the tears
From my lamenting eyes,
And raise my soul from guilty fears
To joy that never dies.

Free grace can death itself outbrave
And take the sting away;
Can sinners to the summit save
And give them victory

The exercises opened with the "Te Deum," written for Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

On the evening of Monday, November 8, a banquet will be given in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Union, Col. J. J. McCook, President of the Union, will preside. Mr. James Yeareance, Chairman of the Committee, has prepared a programme, which embraces addresses by Rev. Dr. Moffat, President of Washington and Jefferson College; the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington; the Moderators of the General Assembly, the New York Synod, and the New York Presbytery, and the Rev. Drs. Henry M. Booth and Charles Cuthbert Hall.

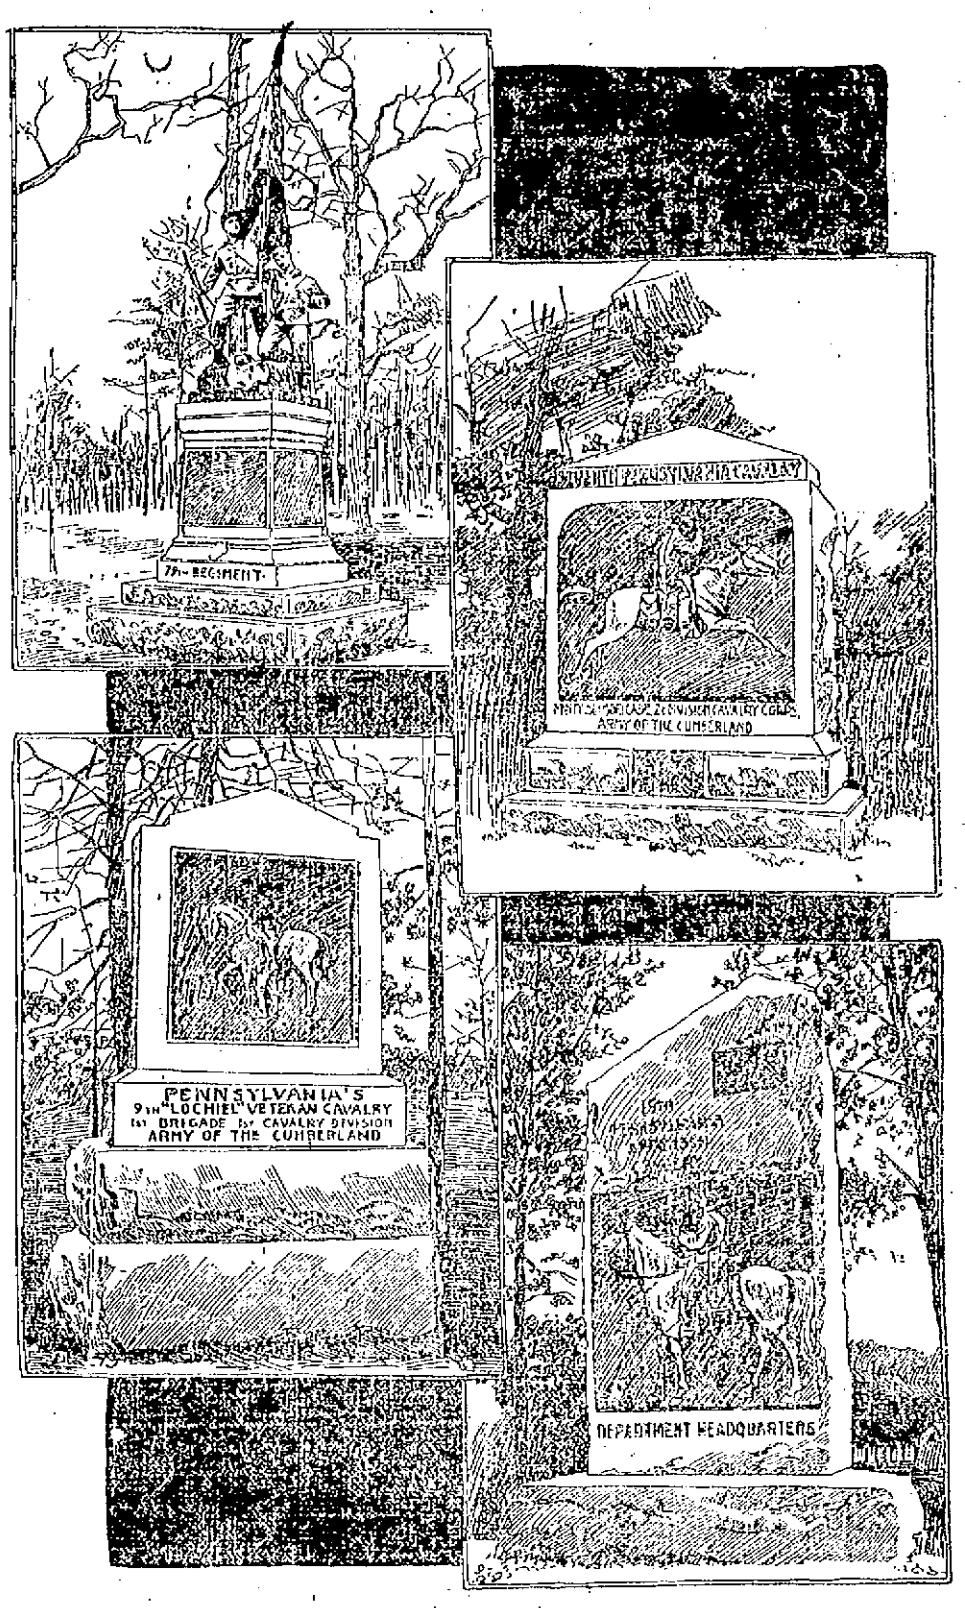

On the evening of Tuesday, November 9, the Sunday School Teachers will hold a meeting in the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. A. W. Halsey, of the Spring Street Church, will have charge of this meeting, which will embrace all the Presbyterian Sunday School teachers in the Metropolis. There will be addresses and a fine musical programme. A special feature will be the awarding of a prize of a banner and a Bible to the Sunday School, and the scholar that best recites the Catechism.

The church in which the meeting will be held is also historic. There were Presbyterians in the City of New York as early as 1707, who had principally emigrated from Great Britain and Ireland. A congregation was organized and Rev. Mr. Anderson was called as pastor in 1717. The first church edifice erected by the Society was located in Wall Street, and was dedicated in 1719. Its successor on Fifth Avenue is a splendid specimen of architecture, and is handsomely and appropriately fitted for progressive work. It is the church that Robert and James Lenox enriched by their bountiful gifts, and a tablet on its walls records the fact that Robert Lenox was its ruling elder for 50 years, and died in 1859, at the ripe old age of just four-score years. There are a number of other tablets in memory of pastors and members. One of these is of special interest. It is to the memory of Alex. McDougall, and records that he came to the Colony of New York from North Britain in 1738; that he commanded the armed vessels, Tiger and Barrington in the French War. He became a merchant. He espoused the cause of the colonies, and was made Colonel of the 1st New York in 1775, became a Brigadier General in 1776, and Major General in 1777. He commanded all the forces in the Highlands, and at West Point, at intervals from 1779 to 1782. He was member of Congress in 1780; Minister of Marine in 1781; First President of the New York Branch of the Society of the Cincinnati; Member of the New York State Senate, and first President of the Bank of New York. He died in 1786, and Washington said of him: "A brave soldier and a disinterested patriot." He might have added that he was equally devoted to the Standards—the Standard of his country, and the Westminster Standard.

WHERE THE GREAT CELEBRATION WILL TAKE PLACE.

PENNSYLVANIA'S CHICKAMAUGA MONUMENTS.

THE MONUMENTS OF THE KEYSTONE STATE AT CHICKAMAUGA.

THEIR DEDICATION TO BE A RED-LETTER DAY IN PENNSYLVANIA'S HISTORY

Men Who Will Take Part — A Description of the Shafts That will Pay a State's Tribute to Heroism.

It was a Pennsylvania regiment that led Hooker's van to the heights of Lookout Mountain—Pennsylvania boys who scaled Hanging Rock and looked down on the mist-covered Tennessee from a point 2,700 feet above it. And those who are left of that brave band will be among the veterans who will, on November 15, dedicate the monuments that mark the spots where the Pennsylvania heroes fought on Chickamauga field. Governor Hastings and staff will leave Philadelphia on the night of November 11. Special trains will leave Harrisburg, Erie and Pittsburg on the same day and day following. The exercises will be held on Orchard Knob, in sight of many battlefields, namely, Chickamauga, Wauhatchie, Brown's Ferry, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Ringgold.

Rev. Thomas H. Robinson, who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Harrisburg during the war, and who gave Governor Curtin material aid in caring for the soldiers, will open the exercises with prayer. General Robinson, of Pittsburg, will preside, and Colonel Blakely, of Pittsburg, will deliver the address offering the monuments to the State, on behalf of the Survivors' Association. Governor Hastings will accept the monuments for the State, and in return will tender them to the Secretary of War or his representative, for the National Park. Rev. J. Thompson Gibson, editor of the Presbyterian Messenger, of Pittsburg, who was a member of the Seventy-eighth Regiment, Colonel Blakely's command, will close the services with benediction. Fifteen monuments will be dedicated by the Pennsylvania commands on the positions they occupied during the fight. There should have been 17, but two fought outside the limits of the 20,000 acres comprising the military park.

Among the commands engaged were the Seventy-fifth Infantry, recruited in Philadelphia; Twenty-seventh Infantry, of Philadelphia; Seventy-ninth Infantry, from Lancaster County; Seventy-seventh, from Philadelphia and the eastern part of the State; Ninth "Lochiel" Cavalry, from about Harrisburg; Muehler's Independent Battery, Erie; Fifteenth Cavalry, Pittsburg and vicinity; Forty-sixth Infantry, Pittsburg, and Seventy-eighth Infantry, Pittsburg. The monuments of the Twenty-ninth and the One Hundred and Eleventh are located on Hanging Rock and Lookout Mountain, as the Secretary of War has decided that they attained the greatest height during the battle—2,700 feet above the Tennessee River.

The spot on which the dedication will take place, Orchard Knob, is peculiarly situated. It is a rough, steep hill, 100 feet high, covered with a growth of small timber, and on the day of the famous battle lay about half way between the Federal outer pits and the breastworks of logs and stones. At its western base, and extending for a mile beyond, both north and south of the hill, were other rifle pits, hid in part by a heavy belt of timber extending about a quarter of a mile from the foot of the hill into the plain. Between this belt of timber and the Federal lines were open fields in which there was not a tree, fence or other obstruction, save the bed of the East Tennessee Railroad. On the plain were hundreds of little mounds, thrown up by pickets, giving the appearance of an overgrown prairie dog village.

To-day it is a prettily-cleared spot, hardly recognizable by these battle-scarred soldiers. There will be many of them, however, who will go over the scene of the battle above the clouds and the climb will recall that of Hooker's regiments on that memorable November day far far back.

The most striking of the monuments to be dedicated is that of the Seventy-ninth Regiment, showing the wounding of the flag-bearer and the raising of the colors by a comrade. This illustrates an actual incident of the battle. The Seventy-ninth lost one-third of its members in the battle of Chicamauga. It was commanded in this engagement by Colonel Henry A. Hambright.

Pennsylvania's Ninth "Lochiel" Veteran Cavalry gave much of its fame to the Army of the Cumberland. Its monument is simple in design, but the bas-relief is a very effective piece of work.

But all of the monuments have much about them to attract the eye of the sightseer, and will make splendid memorials of the patriots and their deeds in the great battles that were fought about Chattanooga and Missionary Ridge.

SAVING A CITY FROM YELLOW FEVER.

ITS RESULTS DESCRIBED BY MEDICAL EXPERTS.

The prevalence of yellow fever in the Mississippi Valley has added greatly to the interest that has been excited in the ranks of the medical profession, and among the public generally, by the experiments that have been going on for several months at the Quarantine Station of the Port of New York to determine the value of the new disinfectant in quarantine work. It can well be called new, for although it was partly discovered in 1865 by the German chemist, A. W. Hoffman, it was not until twenty years after that the French investigator, A. Millat, found, as the result of his experiments, that it was valuable in preventing or delaying decomposition. After four years of close study of its properties and effects, M. Millat exhibited the results of his labor on the germicidal properties of formaldehyde to the French Academy of Sciences, where the subject was considered with close attention. This gas was first revealed to Hoffman, the German chemist, in some experiments he was conducting, and was produced by heating a platinum spiral in a lamp burning wood alcohol.

The need of a new disinfectant has been recognized by the Quarantine authorities for some time, and accordingly the experiments that Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port of New York, and Dr. E. J. Lederle, chemist of the Health Department and consulting chemist at the Quarantine Station, were conducting, were watched with keen interest and the results were awaited with lively concern. This was more particularly the case because many disinfectants, such as sulphur dioxide and chlorine have not been relied upon with as much confidence as formerly since the germ theory of disease was accepted as correct. Steam has been largely used as of unquestioned value, but it is not always available. When the disinfecting steamboat, "James W. Wadsworth," can be brought in play, steam is readily available, as that steamer has a chamber specially fitted up for such work.

But it was necessary to secure an agent fully as efficacious but more readily adaptable, and it was to this end that Drs. Doty and Lederle pushed their series of experiments. These experiments have extended over several months, and comprehended an elaborate series of tests, patiently and carefully made, in order to determine whether it was safe to rely upon formaldehyde as a substitute for steam in disinfecting operations. Different bacilli of disease, such as the organisms of cholera, diphtheria, Indian plague and anthrax were used to test the new gas. The plague cultures (bacilli nourished by selected food) were most carefully selected. They were received from Prof. Haffkine in Bombay, the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and the Hoagland Laboratory in Brooklyn. Dr. Fitzpatrick, the bacteriologist at the Quarantine Station, nourished these germs to their highest degree of virulence, inoculating with them occasionally white mice.

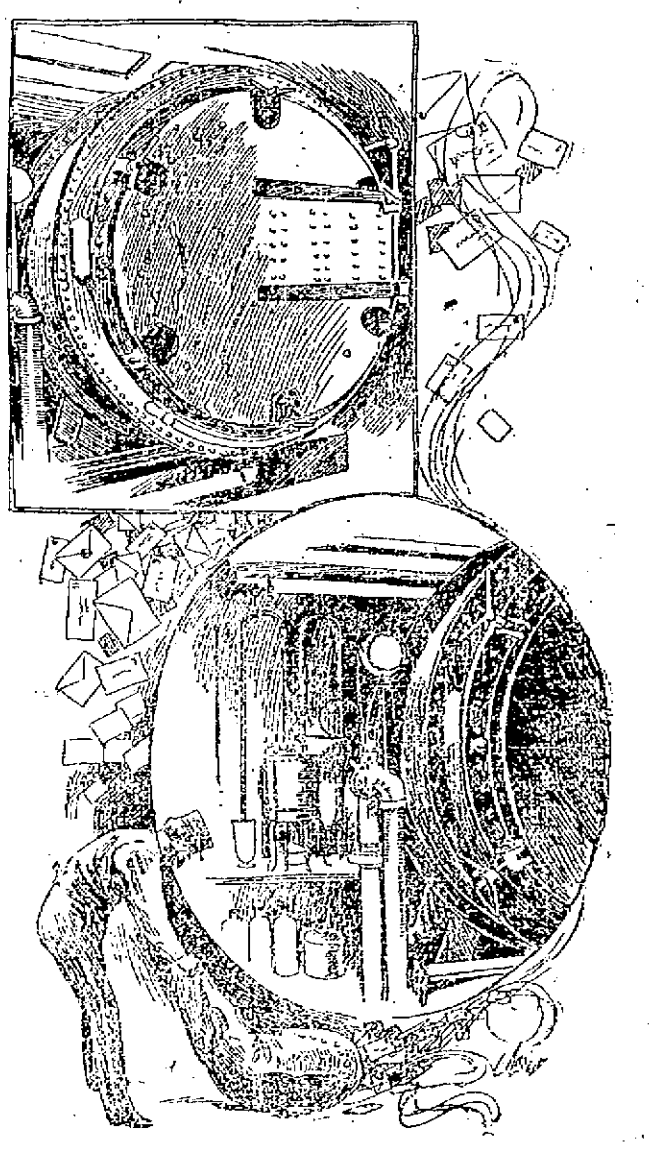

Twenty different tests, each employing three or more varieties of germs, were made by Dr. Doty, and have been minutely described by him. These experiments were conducted on the steamboat "James W. Wadsworth," and also at the laboratory in a room specially prepared, in which there was an apparatus for spraying liquified ammonia gas about the room, for the instant neutralizing of formaldehyde, if considered necessary to do so. In conducting the first experiments from four to eight ounces of the disinfectant were exposed for various periods of time in an air-tight steel box, containing 115 cubic feet of space, and also in a room containing 1,000 cubic feet of air space. In fifteen tests of all the cultures of various diseases, only that of diphtheria showed subsequent growth. In the case of the latter four ounces of solution were used, and the exposure continued for twelve hours. The cultures of all the diseases were wrapped in a woolen blanket.

In other tests, plague, diphtheria and anthrax germs on a linen disc, some wrapped in a pound of newspaper, others wrapped in a blanket, held on to life after an exposure of twelve hours, a quart of the solution being used. Others were generally killed that were put inside a single newspaper, or inside a sheet of paper, and an envelope, or inside a towel. These tests were all made in a vacuum as offering less resistance to the penetration of the gas. The tests were repeated without the vacuum, and the germs, with few exceptions, survived, and in the case of some diphtheria germs wrapped in a newspaper growth was observed.

It was found in preparing the gas that the use of a solution of some neutral salt caused the gas to be given off more satisfactorily, and a machine for extracting it more readily was employed. In this case the disinfection of the mails was accomplished in a very satisfactory degree, as every germ of cholera, plague, anthrax and diphtheria was destroyed after four hours of exposure. The infected discs were wrapped in blankets, paper, or envelopes. A pint of formaldehyde was used. Diphtheria and anthrax germs wrapped in three sheets of paper and envelopes, with the seams extra gummed, were all exterminated. Eight ounces of the disinfectant destroyed the cultures when they were wrapped in blankets, in this case twelve hours of exposure being taken. Only the cholera germs were killed, and those of plague, diphtheria and anthrax remained active when the last test was repeated for a duration of only the half the previous test.

The value of the new agent for superficial disinfection is considered of unquestioned value by Dr. Doty, and he will use it for general purposes, especially in disinfecting ships which are infected with disease. But Dr. Doty does not consider that it can be relied upon in cases where deep penetration is required. It has all the penetrating powers required for disinfecting mails and ordinary articles. From experiments conducted with fowls, insects, mice and guinea pigs it was proved harmless to animal life.

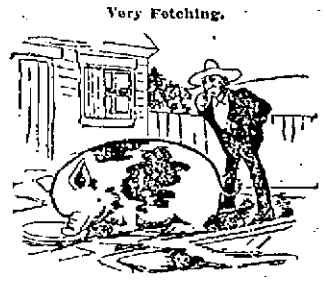

Dr. Lederle's chemical analysis of the gas, and examination of its properties and possibilities, resulted in his finding that formaldehyde may be injurious, if taken internally, to the digestive processes, although non-toxic to all the higher forms of life.

The Humpback Plays Football.

The humpback took position
And played with great precision
On the football field of our most noted ground.
His place was at the quarter,
He truly was a shorter,
And envied by the teams for miles around.

The hump was no attraction
When the boys peeled off for action.
They started play and gamboled in the dirt.
But the ball soon disappeared,
And the gridiron players feared
That the humpback had it hidden up his shirt.

The opponents cried and hollered,
And the humpback roughly collared.
They kicked him and they placed him on the rack;
They abused him and amused him,
They swore they ne'er would lose him,
And at last they kicked the hump right off his back.

To the half back it was handed
The players never banded
Or stuck so fast together in a rush.
The humpback never faltered,
His plans he never altered,
His object was to get his hump back from the push.

"Give my hump back," said the humpback
To the quarter and the full back.
"I passed it to the half back," was the quarter back's reply.
Then the half back passed the hump back
To the agitated full back,
And along the line the hump did quickly fly.

"Oh, give to me my back back,"
Said the energetic humpback.
But the full back and the half back thought the hump was fairly earned.
The humpback quickly chased them,
Calling names that sure disgraced them,
For the humpback craved his hump to be returned.

Now the sport grew quite exciting,
Every player in for fighting,
The humpback backed his back back with all his might and main,
Till the quarter and the half back
Placed the hump back on the humpback,
And the humpback has his back back once again.

A SINCERE EFFORT.

The Boy Was Doing His Level Best to Be Courteous.

It had been a matter of much difficulty to impress upon a Detroit boy the desirability of interspersing his conversation with those phrases of formal courtesy which, without being important in themselves, relieve human relationships of so much ruggedness. One reason for his backwardness in acquiring the art may have been his father's natural brusqueness of manner. Seeing his own defects reflected in his son not only made him anxious to polish himself, but increased his determination that the boy should grow up to understand the value of politeness. It was Sunday morning, and the head of the family was enjoying the sleep late into the hours of morning that is possible at no other time. His wife had gone to call on a neighbor, and the boy was in the next room reading. A sharp ring of the doorbell interrupted his nap. Nobody gave it any attention, and the ring was repeated.

"Thomas," said the boy's father, "go to the window and see who that is and what he wants."

"What do you want?" Thomas inquired.

"I want your father to sign this petition," was the reply.

"He can't come down." And Thomas shut the window.

In an instant the bell was ringing again, and Thomas opened the window and exclaimed:

"What's the matter with you? Are you going to stand there all week ringing that bell?"

"That's right," put in the father. "Give it to him. Only remember your manners."

"I want to see your father," said the caller. "I have something to say to him."

"Yes, and I've got something to say to you."

"What is it?"

"Just this. Please, sir, will you have the kindness to oblige us very much by going away from that doorbell before somebody comes down there and kicks the collar off your?"—Detroit Free Press.

A BIT OF KLONDIKE LIFE.

Or One Day With a Boy In the New El Dorado.

The little Klondike boy came into the house at 11 o'clock and said to his mother, who was gold dusting the furniture, "Oh, mamma, what can I do for fun?"

"Why don't you play with the little boy next door?" asked his mother, wiping the perspiration off her face and burning the handkerchief that no gold be lost.

"I did, and we were throwing nuggets at a yellow dog, and he threw my two pound one that I was keeping for luck right through the baker's window, and he kept it," said the little fellow, choking back the tears.

"Well, don't cry, Harry, over a little thing like that. Papa will bring you another if you ask him. Why don't you take your shovel and go out in the back yard and dig some more yourself?"

"Oh, that's no fun. Besides, they're so hard that I've bent my shovel."

"Well, I can't think what to suggest unless you take your watering pot and sprinkle the road in front of the house. We might as well lay the dust as to have it blowing all over passersby, who walk away with it." And the mother put her feather duster in the stove and went to the closet for a fresh one.

Little Harry enjoyed his new sport for awhile, and then he came in and in an angry tone of voice said: "Say, mamma, there was the meanest woman out there. She's from Chicago, for Tommy told me so, and she stood with the dust blowing on her until I laid it, and she tracked around in it until her shoes were covered with mud, and then she went away, and when I called out to her to come back and wipe her feet she only jeered at me."

Harry's mother was philosophical. "It can't be helped, my son," said she. "I noticed that Chicago girl and thought she was there for no good to us, but she can have taken not more than $10 worth of dust"—

Just then the door opened and Harry's father came in with a meal bag full of rich red gold, his reward for a day's digging, and in a moment the Chicago girl was forgotten, and Harry was happy in the possession of a five pound nugget that made the two pound one that he had lost look like 30 cents.—Charles Battell Loomis in New York Sunday World.

A Bad Actor and His Cheek.

When James O'Neill first started out with "Monte-Christo" a good many years ago, he had occasion to discharge a member of his company who proved to be a very bad actor indeed. Shortly afterward Mr. O'Neill's leading man was taken sick and after being laid off for a few weeks died in a Detroit hospital.

The discharged actor, who evidently had just heard that the leading man had left O'Neill's company, promptly wired:

"If Blank has left you, I am willing to take his place for $100 a week. Answer."

To this brazen proposition from a man whose incompetence already had been demonstrated Mr. O'Neill replied:

"I admire your courage in offering to do what you should have done long ago. Poor Blank died yesterday. If you'll take his place and let him come back to me, I'll give you $150 a week."—Chicago Times-Herald.

STORY OF A RESCUE.

HOW KARL DECKER HID MISS CISNEROS IN HAVANA.

Night Ride From the Hated Rurajidas. The Final Deed of a Thrilling Escape. The Rescuers Had Many Adventures and Were Constantly "Shadowed."

The story of the escape of Evangelina Cisneros has been told in every detail by the actual participants, with the exception of the recital of the events of the last day. The best of reasons prevented the publication of this part of the story heretofore.

Private information received from Havana recently makes it possible to narrate the final chapter of the Havana end of the story.

When the carriage containing Evangelina Cisneros rattled off over the cobbles of Egida street on a recent moonlight Thursday morning, one of the men engaged in the rescue sat upon the box. He was an American who spoke Spanish like a Castillano. He knew every turn and twist of the narrow, winding streets, and, taking a circuitous course about Havana, finally rounded into the street in which was located the house selected as the hiding place of Miss Cisneros while in Havana.

The street was deserted for several blocks. Far away toward where the Rocojidas lay in all its squalor, jostling barracks and an arsenal, could be heard the plaintive wailing alerts of the sentinels. In all that still moonlit city that night that cry was the essence of concentrated sarcasm. It rang out from the sentry boxes as the carriage containing Miss Cisneros dashed off. It was heard again threading across the silence of the city as Miss Cisneros sprang from the carriage and disappeared through the door behind which a trusted servant had been waiting for hours.

There had been sounds of revelry in that house that night. A reception had been held there during the evening, and in the late morning hours, as the guests left assuring host and hostess that various houses in Havana were at their disposition, a frightened, trembling little maiden fluttered in through the door and pressed flat against the wall within waiting for some one to welcome her or shelter her.

As the last couple passed out of the house she felt a gentle touch upon her arm and was quickly ushered into a room set apart for her exclusive use. In fact, a whole suit of apartments was reserved for her, and she was given the attendance of two servants during the time she remained in hiding.

She entered this house on Thursday morning about 8 o'clock and remained there securely secreted until Saturday afternoon.

Consequently Hernandon felt deeply grieved at the idea of carrying such freight and turned them down harshly.

"I'm going to the palace, after the captain general, to take him for a moonlight drive," he growled, and lashed his nag viciously. Twice after he had an opportunity to earn an honest peseta, but declined the chance.

Long before dawn he joined Mallory and myself in the Plaza Cristobal, and as the jangling little brass pots in the belfry of the neighboring church had untangled the hour of 4 the carriage had been turned over to the rightful driver, and, after a parting drink in an all night bodega near by, we parted for the night.

The period intervening until Saturday afternoon will never be forgotten by the five men who by this time were interested in getting Miss Cisneros from the island. A house to house search was being conducted in every section of the city.

The other men engaged in the rescue were free from espionage, as they had not fallen under suspicion, but from Thursday midday I was followed by a brace of detectives, who had been assigned to shadow me by the Havana police under orders from the Spanish minister at Washington. By this time it was generally known in Washington and in Havana that the girl had been rescued by the New York Journal, and every effort was made to detect the whereabouts of Miss Cisneros by shadowing me. For this reason I was unable to see Evangelina again face to face until I met her in New York.

On the day she left her hiding place I succeeded in shaking off my shadows by using certain methods which would have been ridiculed by a Pinkerton, but which were successful with the Spanish spies.

The other two men who were with me on the night of the rescue did not join me on that afternoon, but until Miss Cisneros reached the wharf we were never 20 feet apart. We did not speak to each other.

They sauntered along the principal street in Havana watching and guarding. The great fright of the entire occasion occurred as Miss Cisneros came out of the house in which she had been hiding. She was dressed as a young mariner, with blue shirt, flowing tie and a large slouch hat. Her hair was plastered under the hat with cosmetics. As she stepped out into the street a swift swirl of wind caught the hat and whirled it from her head. For a moment our hearts ceased to beat. Every man gripped his gun and waited.

Quickly she caught the hat from the ground, jabbed it down on her head and started off jauntily and nonchalantly down the street.

The few careless passersby had failed to note the incident, and she was safely over this hurdle.

All the way down Obispo street we followed her, guns swinging loose and ready at hand, a carriage following, ready for emergencies. Had she been detected, it was our intention to rescue her again, place her in the waiting carriage and dash off. Fortunately nothing happened. It was nearly dark. The short twilight was closing. The Seneca had waited three hours for freight and would wait another hour, and all things aided.—Karl Decker in New York Journal.

Note From the Lost Chicora.

The residents of Chesterton, Ind., are greatly excited over the finding of a long neck wine bottle by E. G. Miller on the Lake Michigan beach at that place recently, containing a note and letter supposed to be from one of the Chicora victims. It was dated "Chicora, January, 1895," and bore the signature of Edward Mason. The note stated that the ship had gone to pieces off the coast of Michigan. The letter was addressed to Robert Mason, 62 Dearborn street, Chicago, who, the writer said, was his brother, and asked the finder to see that the letter was delivered. The bottle had the appearance of being in the water a long time. The letter contained some valuable information.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Byron Bruch to me, dated the fourteenth day of June A. D., 1893, and recorded with Middlesex North District Registry of Deeds, in Book 214, page 482, I shall sell at public auction on the premises on Wednesday, the tenth day of November A. D., 1897, at four o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely: A certain piece or parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Westford, in said county, and bounded and described as follows, viz: Being situated on the southwesterly side of the Nashua & Acton railroad in said Westford, and beginning at the southeasterly corner of said lot on the county road so called, thence by said county road to land of John Murphy on a brook, thence westerly by said Murphy's land on the brook to a fence on land of one Goldsmith, thence easterly by said Goldsmith's land to said railroad, thence along said railroad to the point of beginning, containing fourteen acres and ten rods more or less, and being the same premises conveyed to said Bruch by one John Wayne.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of George H. Whitney, late of Lowell, in said county, deceased, intestate.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to William A. Webster, of Lowell, in said County, or to some other suitable person.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said county of Middlesex, on the ninth day of November, A. D. 1897, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks in The Lowell Daily Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-sixth day of October in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven.

The Law Requires

That you be clothed, but the law is silent as to the quality of your clothes, or where to go for them.

If you consulted us on the "quality" and "where to go" part of it, we should very likely recommend our $16 Tailor Made Suit.

It is a very nobby affair of fine material, and the law could not wish you better dressed than in that Suit, nor would your own sense of "just the thing."

ADJUTANT SIGALOS.

OF THE GREEK ARMY RETURNS TO LOWELL.

Among the passengers on the Campania, which docked in New York Saturday, was George A. Sigalos of Lowell, a professor of ancient and modern Greek. On the declaration of war between Greece and Turkey, he went to Athens and enlisted as a sergeant in the Philhellenic legion. Mr. Sigalos fought so gallantly in the battles of Mati, Pharsala, and Domoco that he was promoted on the battlefield to the rank of adjutant and placed in command of a section. Referring to the probability of a Spanish-American war, he said that he would forthwith enlist under Old Glory. He has returned to this city to resume work.

WORKINGMEN AND MECHANICS.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

For sale, cheap, on easy terms, located on D street, near the Shaw Stocking company, on high and dry land, with good sewerage, convenient to schools, churches, and two lines of street cars, piped for gas and water; five cottage houses and one two-tenement house. These houses have all modern improvements and are suitably arranged for families. Part of these houses have just been completed and the rest will be finished, ready for occupancy in a very short time.

Terms liberal. A small amount down and the balance can be paid in monthly instalments.

Anyone desiring to go through these houses and inquire terms and prices, call on J. W. Bennett, the owner, at 661 Middlesex street.

A NEW BUILDING.

Plans have been drawn for a five-story building to cover the entire block on the west side of Bridge street, between French and Paige streets, owned by a Boston syndicate and purchased from the Massachusetts company a few years ago. The plans contemplate stores on the ground floor and tenements above, each story to contain 32 tenements. Eight elevators are included in the plan. The syndicate has not, it is understood, decided to build, but is at work on a preliminary consideration of the enterprise to determine its feasibility.

B.T.I.'S MEMORIAL

Impressive Service at Michael Sexton's Grave.

EXERCISES IN THE BURKE'S HALL LAST NIGHT.

Addresses by Rev. Fr. McDonough and Mr. Hogan

Memorial Sunday, the one day in the whole year sacred and dear to the members of the Burke Temperance Institute, had a fitting observance yesterday.

The program usual to Memorial day was carried out.

Early in the afternoon, the members assembled in front of the society building on Middle street and formed for the march to the graves of deceased members.

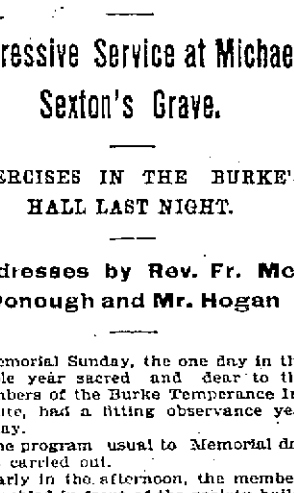

The Lofell Military band played sorrowful dirges as the line of 175 men marched slowly down Merrimack, to Central, to Gorham to the Catholic cemetery. These streets were crowded with people and many followed the procession to the cemetery.

The grave of Michael E. Sexton, ex-president of the Burkes, was first visited. Rev. Fr. McDonough prayed after which he spoke briefly on the uncertainty of life and of the immortality of the soul. The Mozart quartette sang an appropriate selection and the dirge by the band ended the service.

The grave of Joseph McElroy was then visited. He was also a member of the band and the service here consisted of prayer by Rev. Fr. McDonough and selections by the band.

The line then formed and returned to the Burkes' hall where it was dismissed.

JOHN C. O'NEIL, Ald.

EVENING EXERCISES.

The exercises in the Burkes' hall last night attracted a large audience. James J. Dacey, the president, delivered the opening address, in which he said:

"In our meetings we endeavor to teach the members to be good and true. When one of our members departs this life, we want it said that he was a good man. The good and the true never die. We always call the attention of each other to the fact that those who have gone from us still live. Today we have endeavored to present a creditable appearance and I think we have been successful.

"I hope that many people will receive a lesson from us and will join in the noble work. Our object is commendable. We have succeeded to a great extent, in rescuing men who would otherwise cause sorrow and suffering to their friends and relatives. Let us hope that others will come into our society. The organization is on a good,

TENTH BIRTHDAY

Of the Fr. Mathew Temperance Institute

OF NORTH BILLERICA WAS OBSERVED SATURDAY.

Mr. Slattery the Founder Assists in Exercises.

The Father Mathew T. A. society of North Billerica celebrated their tenth anniversary on Saturday evening at their hall, to which all the townspeople were invited.

An elegant banquet was served in the upper hall, after which a concert program was rendered by the following well known Lowell artists.

The opening of the program was an address of welcome by the president, M. J. Coughlin, followed by an address of congratulation for their porgressive work in the temperance cause for the past ten years by County Director Edward F. Slattery of Lowell, founder of the society and a life-long friend.

Piano solo, Miss Julia Keniley; song, Miss Laura Bernier; quartette, C. Hickey; J. B. McAloon, M. Nestor; J. J. McKenna; song, Mr. M. Gorman; reading, Mr. D. Donahue; song, Mr. C. Hickey; duet, the Misses Maggie and Katie McCaffrey; reading, Mr. J. J. McKenna; quartette, C. Hickey, J. B. McAloon, M. Nestor, J. J. McKenna.

Afterwards the guests assembled in the lower hall and indulged in dancing for the remainder of the evening. The committee in charge consisted of the following members: General manager, M. J. Coughlin; assistant, J. B. Kearney; floor director, — E. Costello; assistant, P. J. Mahoney; aids, F. E. Hannon, E. T. Morris, J. S. Welch, E. Costello, J. J. McHoney; reception committee, E. Costelo, M. J. Coughlin, J. S. Welch.

This society was organized Nov. 1, 1887, with thirty members and has since grown to a prosperous society whose proud boast is that they have one of the finest monuments dedicated to the temperance cause in the state of Massachusetts. The society has had but two deaths in its large roll of membership, which is constantly increasing, as the younger element grows to manhood. A word must be said for the splendid assistance of the Ladies' Auxiliary connected with this society. On entering the hall you can see the results of their zealous labor, for they have by their thrifty hands and inventive brains beautified that hall which is the pride of the memebrs of the society.

Miss Kittie Garvin, a prominent young lady of the town, is president of the auxiliary and she is ably assisted by a large corps of able workers. This society has had for its presidents the following well known young men: Richard J. Conway, John R. Conway, Lawrence Buckley, Edward L. McMahon, Robert Crawford, John J. Mahoney, Thomas Mullen and J. J. Mahoney. Rev. Fr. Paquette, spiritual director, in every way and manner renders all aid and assistance in making the organization the leading one in the state.

LIQUOR SEIZED

AT A GREEK BOARDING HOUSE ON MARKET STREET.

The Greek, he make on big celebrate and hees been get the pinch.

The swarthy sons of the Hellenic empire had a big time at the boarding house of James Kucaroo at 402 Market street and whn Inspectors Goodwin and Donaldson went there in the forenoon yesterday, they found two half barrels and a keg of beer, a half case of beer, two gallons of whiskey, half a gallon of wine and an empty keg.

As the inspectors had no search warrant, they had to come away with Then the Greeks had a royal time out the wet goods.

and about 6 o'clock they got so noisy that Lieutenant Kew cleared out the boarding house in the evening and at 10 o'clock everything was peaceful.

This morning with a search warrant the inspectors went over the house and found some liquor left over and took it to the station.

The Greek proprietor said they were celebrating a festival and that he had provided all the liquor at his own expense.

KELLEY'S TRIAL NOW ON

The Somersworth Murders to Occupy the Courts Attention.

JOSEPH A. STICKNEY, the Murdered Cashier.

Insanity Will be the Plea for the Defense—The Prisoner Insists That His Intellect is all Right—But He Says He is Under Contract With Satan.

Dover, N. H., Nov. 8.—Saturday evening all preliminaries were completed for the trial of Joseph E. Kelley, the murderer of Joseph A. Stickney, cashier of the Great Falls National bank at Somersworth, on April 16 last. The trial began here just before noon with the impanelling of the jury from a list of 88. It promises to be one of the most interesting cases in the history of Strafford county, or in the granite state. It is expected the trial will last from 10 days to two weeks. The government is represented by Attorney General E. C. Eastman of Exeter and Mayor William F. Nason, solicitor for Strafford county, while James A. Edgerly of Somersworth and Postmaster James Ryan of Dover are looking after the interests of the murderer.

The residents of Amesbury, Mass., where the youthful murderer passed his boyhood days, are greatly interested in the case and not a small number are already here. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley, the father and mother of the prisoner; Frank W. Kelley, a brother, and his two sisters, Annie and Lizzie Kelley, will be the only relatives from Amesbury, while there will be at least 11 more witnesses, including Drs. Murphy and Fitzhugh, who attended Kelley during sickness while he was under the parental roof. The defense have been unable to secure an important witness in the person of Dr. Norton, who attended Kelley when he is said to have fallen from the roof of a building and injured his head several years ago. Dr. Norton, when last heard from, was in Washington, but a most diligent search failed to locate him.

Since Kelley's arrest he has frequently told how he took the life of Cashier Stickney and accomplished the theft of the money belonging to the bank after the deed was committed. The trial will be of unusual interest from the fact that his counsel will endeavor to show that their client was not responsible for the murder on account of insanity.

"I was hard up and wanted money," said Kelley. "I had thought of going to my father at Amesbury to ask him to help me. The idea of robbing the bank had not entered my head at that time. On the Wednesday before the murder, while sitting at my window opposite the bank, I saw Cashier Stickney putting great piles of bills and rolls of gold into the vaults of the bank. It seemed to come as a sort of inspiration that only a few feet away, across the street, was a large quantity of the very cash I needed so much. Then I knew I should rob the bank."

The most careful preparation had been made for carrying out the crime. The murderer entered the bank at a time when he knew the cashier would be alone, as it was Mr. Stickney's practice to let his assistant, Miss Parcher Swasey, go to dinner first. Having seen Miss Swasey leave, the murderer went up the stairs without being observed by any person. He softly turned the knob in the unlocked door, and entered the banking room. Stepping up to the wicket behind which the cashier was at work, he demanded money. Mr. Stickney refused and the desperado then sprang against the light door in the partition, burst it open with one tremendous kick, and fell upon the aged bank official before that person could make an outcry. Blows were rained upon his head in quick succession, until the blackjack broke and was dropped from the hands of the murderer to give place to a razor with which to finish the work. The blows from the leather-covered ball of lead were sufficient in themselves to cause death, for the first one must have rendered the victim unconscious, but the murderer apparently wished to make sure that he would not be interrupted. After dispatching the cashier it was quick work then to seize the money in sight, about $4100 in all, and leave the place.

The murderer went up a street which runs along one side of the bank and threw a pollow case, into which he had placed the money, over a wall. Then he went back to the business section of the city, ate dinner, hired a team, drove along and picked up the bag and disappeared. He was followed to Milton, N. H., where he left the team and took a train for Montreal, at which place he was arrested, in a house which he had entered disguised as a woman. About $2700 were found on him at that time. Kelley at once acknowledged that he was the man wanted and later confessed his guilt.

CATARRH CURED

And in Lowell Too; Full Report of the Case.

Nasal catarrh must be cured by local treatment, and in this, cleanliness of the nasal passages is the chief end and aim. The custom of habitually hawking and snuffing should be immediately stopped; besides being disgusting, it is unecessary and productive of positive injury.

As proof that this disease can be easily and quickly cured, we present to you the testimony of people in your own city, from whose lips, if you wish you can learn if it is true. Here is a case:

Mrs. Annie Burns, who lives at 88 Elm street, says, "I got C. C. C. for my daughter Lizzie, who has suffered for the last two years with catarrh, it causing her much trouble and annoyance, by keeping her continually snuffing, hemming, hawking and spitting to keep her voice clear. She also had severe headaches. Now all these symtoms have entirely vanished and to C. C. C., California Catarrh Cure, we give credit and canont speak too highly in its praise."

California Catarrh Cure is for you, too; in case of colds it is invaluable, as it helps in breaking them up, and entirely prevents a cold "hanging on" as well as attacks of acute catarrh which so often follow a severe cold in the head.

whether from the elongated palate, In the case of tickling in the throat or superabundant secretions, gargling with California Catarrh Cure will afford relief and cure. Remember two things: Catarrh in any form is a local not a blood disease. It can be cured by California Catarrh Cure.

All dealers, 50 cents; three times as much, one dollar.

ALBIONS PLAYED WELL.

SUCCEEDED IN DRAWING WITH THE ANDOVER TEAM.

The Albions took the following team with them to Andover Saturday to play the team of that place, a team which thought itself invincible, having played several games this season, two of which were won by 10 to 1, and 13 to 1, whereas the Albions had not even practised together: Jesse Whitworth, goal; Crane and Townsend, backs; Summerscales, E. Whitworth, and J. Aspin, half backs; Nelson W. Flinn, H. Ellison, Waterhouse and Broadbent, forwards. Each side scored a goal and the game ended a tie.

Do not forget the very important and useful fact, that Johnson's Anodyne Liniment cures every form of inflammation, internal or external. It is a fact, proven by the investigations of medical science, that the real danger from disease is caused by inflammation; cure the inflammation and you conquer the disease.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

Could a remedy have existed for over eighty years except for the fact that it does possess extraordinary merit for very many Family Ills? There is not a medicine in use today which has the confidence of the public to so great an extent as this wonderful Anodyne. It has stood upon its own intrinsic merit, while generation after generation have used it with entire satisfaction, and handed down to their children a knowledge of its worth, as a Universal Household Remedy, from infancy to good old age.

All who use it are amazed at its wonderful power and are loud in its praise ever after. For Internal as much as External Use. Originated in 1810 by an old Family Physician. OF POLICE DOINGS

Application Made for Officer's Arrest.

CLARA HAMILTON ARRESTED FOR ALLEGED LARCENY.

Other Larceny Cases—Runaway Boys Returned.

A very interesting fight is on between Harry Doherty, a well known and respected employe of the lands and buildings department and Lieut. Kew and Officer Denis Breen.

It seems that Mr. Doherty has in his family a young orphan nephew, whom he has given a good home. But the boy, according to the police, had committed an offence which necessitated his arrest.

A few nights ago Lieut. Kew and Officer Breen called at Mr. Doherty's house in Adams street and arrested the boy. There was some hot discussion in the house at the time, owing to what Mr. Doherty claimed was an illegal entrance to his house by the officers. The next day he went down to court and he claims that on the way thither and in the police station Officer Breen abused him and called him mean names, while he did not reply to the abuse. Whatever passed between them will probably come out later, when the case is tried, for Mr. Doherty, while sitting in court a few minutes later, awaiting the calling of the boy's case, was much surprised when an officer stepped up to him and placed him under arrest for alleged profanity on the complaint, it is said, of Officer Breen. Mr. Doherty was taken down stairs and registered, after which he was returned to the court room where he pleaded not guilty of profanity, and asked for a continuance until Monday, which was allowed. E. D. McVey, Esq., was his counsel and he was speedily bailed.

On Saturday Mr. Doherty applied for the arrest of Lieutenant Kew and Officer Breen for alleged illegal entry of his house and a warrant for Officer Breen's arrest on the charge of profanity. Judge Hadley, it is said, declined to issue a warrant without giving a hearing on the matter and tomorrow is the date fixed for the hearing.

A $14 TOUCH.

A woman giving her name as Clara Hamilton was arrested Saturday night for alleged larceny of $14 from a man whom she picked up on the street and took to a room on Church street where she robbed him.

Lieut. Kew and Officer Ingalls arrested her and while waiting for the wagon, she threw herself on the ground and appeared to go into a fit or swoon, which, however, didn't work with the officers. Her "angel" was taken to the station with her. The police recovered $12 of the money.

LINNEHAN HOUSES RAIDED.

Inspectors Goodwin and Donaldson and several other officers were out after liquor law volators late Saturday night at about midnight visited the house of Michael Linnehan, 4 New street, where they seized two cases of beer and two gallons of whiskey.

The officers then visited the house of Patrick F. Linnehan, 151 Crosby street, where they seized a case of beer.

THOMPSON LIKED BUTTER.

Edward Thompson, residing over the Union market on Middlesex street, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of larceny, and the circumstances of the case are odd. Thompson, it seems, went into a neighboring shoe store and purchased a pair of shoes for a child. Soon after he returned, expressing a desire to exchange the shoes. While the exchange was being made, it is said that Thompson purloined another pair. Complaint was made to the police and Lieut. Kew and Officer Corcoran visited Thompson's room, where they found a new pair of shoes and a sleeping baby. Investigation showed that while the baby's feet were undoubtedly mates, the shoes were not, one being three sizes larger than the other. As the officers were looking over the room they spied a new five-pound box of butter without a cover. In the market there was a cover without a box and the clerks on having their attention called to it, concluded that it had been "pinched." Thompson was arrested and taken to the station.

WANDERING BOYS RETURNED.

"Just till we see Woodsey. We'll punch his face full of holes," was the remark of the three Lowell boys who ran away from home, to Secretary Martin J. Courtney of the Overseers of the Poor, at the Chardon Street Home in Boston Saturday, when he went for them to take them home. They are Harry Etu, 148 Cushing street Walter Ford, 15 Rock street, and William McCarty, 15 Broadway, all about 14 years of age.

It seems they were induced to go to Boston by another boy named Woods, who painted for them a very gorgeous picture of life in Boston. Since they were arrested in Boston, their parents appeared to take no interest in them and accordingly Secretary Courtney went to Boston for them. They were perfectly willing to return having had all they wanted of Boston life. They would like to meet "Woodsey," however, for as soon as he got them in Boston he shook them most unceremoniously.

DIONNE DISCHARGED.

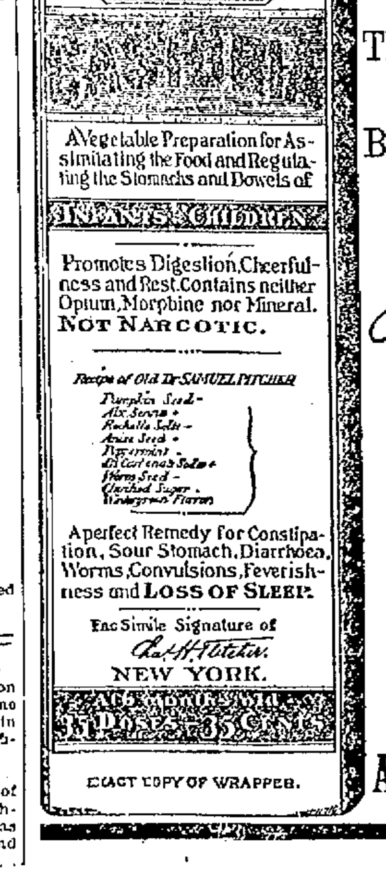

In the municipal court at Lewiston, Saturday, Constable Dionne was discharged from his recognizance in the case brought against him for alleged cheating by false pretences in this city. The case was nol prossed by the district attorney of Middlesex county and on notification of this, the court discharged Dionne.

READY TO FIGHT

Local Democracy Armed for the Fray.

CITY COMMITTEE WILL CONDUCT CAMPAIGN.

A Meeting of That Body Tonight.

Hon. Fisher H. Pearson has found no rest the past few days.

Democrats have poured into his office to offer congratulations and many came to suggest means of conducting the campaign. Mr. Pearson is in fine fettle and ready for the siege to come. He had little to say of his plans, but stated that from now till the close of the polls next month, his every effort will be for the election of a democratic Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

"I have many good friends in Lowell," he said, "and I feel grateful to them. The real fight comes next month and I do not fear its result. I will have a united democracy at my back and with such a phalanx I must win. Mr. Cummings is a loyal democrat and always has been. He is my friend and I am his. Of course two of us could not be chosen at the caucuses."

The campaign begins in earnest this evening. It will be directed from city committee headquarters where all business relating to the campaign will be transacted. The first few weeks of the campaign will be devoted to registration and it is expected that at least 700 names will be added to the list.

Registration will open this week and will close about November 24. This will leave a few weeks intervening till election day and during this time an active canvass of the city will be made, and possibly some rallies held.

It has not been decided when the mayoralty convention will be held. Many friends of Mr. Pearson advise an early convention, possibly during this week.

At the convention besides the mayoralty candidate the candidates for purchasing agent and aldermen will be placed in nomination. Several candidates have been spoken of for the place and yesterday a quiet boom for John J. Riordan was started.

Mr. Riordan is a representative of the young democracy. He was a Cummings man in the campaign. From personal acquaintance with Mr. Riordan, it may be said that he possesses qualities that recommend him for the place and he has the judgment of one more advanced in years. He would prove strong with the business element of the city. It is not certain that he would accept the nomination but his friends intend to bear down upon him with a request to allow the use of his name. Friends of Henry Hamer have already started an active canvass of the delegates elected in behalf of their candidate for aldrman. The other candidates have not as yet approached the delegates.

The city committee will decide on the time for the councilmanic caucuses, but they will possibly not be held till after registration closes.

CITY COMMITTEE MEETING.

Saturday, Chairman Hennessey and Secretary Muldoon issued a call for a meeting of the city committee to-night. The meeting will be held in Jackson hall. While the object of the meeting is not given, it may be stated, that it is to decide on a date for the councilmanic caucuses. The sentiment among some members of the committee is that the caucuses should not be held till after registration closes. Such a course they argue will keep all the candidates hustling for registration and naturalization.

Editor of The Sun—Allow me to say a word to Ward Five voters in behalf of Councilman Michael Sullivan, who seeks a nomination and deserves it. He is a democrat who stands by his party every time. He is now serving his first term and according to an unbroken custom is in line for a second term.

He is one of the young democrats who has buckled on the armor to make the fight that will land the democratic party a winner. His service to the party has always been freely rendered and has been valuable in aiding democratic success. During his term in the Common Council his conduct was such as to earn praise from his constituents and believe that they will reward such service by giving him a nomination and re-election. Councilman Sullivan is a prominent member of Court Wamesit, F. of A., and the Young Men's Catholic Institute.

—Ward Five Voter.

The friends of John C. Wilson held a meeting in Runels' hall, Saturday evening, and gave his candidacy quite a boom.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor of The Sun—It is with pleasure that I notice the candidacy of a gentleman that Ward Four may well feel proud to honor. In the person of Daniel F. Reilly, the democrats of the fourth ward have a man, who, if elected, as their representative in the councilmanic chamber, will serve their interests such as a democrat should; a man well versed in municipal affairs, having given much thought and study to the management of a city government and one not inclined to spend the city's money without due deliberation, as to the expendiency of appropriations that may be called for.

Mr. Reilly is an excellent parliamentarian, in consequence of his years of affiliation with fraternal organizations, he having served faithfully and efficiently in every position the Mathew Temperance Institute could accord him, including that of president. He is also associated with several other local organizations.

In consequence of the infamous gerrymander the democrats are a small minority in the council. We can, however, by sending faithful and efficient men who are not afraid to speak for the rights of their constituency, call a halt upon many a scheme and trick that our republican brethren may seek to levy upon us. Such qualifications, I have no hesitancy in saying Mr. Reilly possesses. Now, then, to my democratic brothers of Ward Four, I would say, let us see to it that the next caucus night we shall place in nomination Daniel F. Reilly and thus secure a faithful representative of our interests in the lower branch of the city government.

—Democrat of Ward Four.

THE Y. M. C. I. BAZAAR

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE BY REV FR. McMANUS.

The bazaar of the Y.M.C.I. will open this evening in Huntington hall. Last night an introductory lecture and concert were given in the hall with a large audience present. Rev. Fr. McManus of St. Peter's church delivered his illustrated lecture on his tour of Ireland. Many of his views were very beautiful, especially those of Killarney Glendalough, Gougane Barra on the River Lee, the Giant's Causeway, and the ruined towers and cathedrals of Ireland. The lecture was interspersed with songs. Mrs. Williams sang the Kerry Dance; Mrs. Walker, Killarney; Miss Murphy, The Harp, with harp accompaniment by herself, and Mr. Martin, the Meeting of the Waters. The gem of the evening was The Girl of Kildare, by Miss McCaffrey. Tonight there will be dancing at the hall. Tomorrow night the tables will be all in readiness to do business. The young men are working hard for the success of the bazaar.

DEATHS.

GUTHRIE—Sarah J. Guthrie died this morning at 7 Nelson avenue. She leaves a family.

Funeral Wednesday morning from the Sacred Heart church.

McCAFFREY—Delia McCaffrey, wife of Charles McCaffrey, died at St. John's hospital yesterday, aged 28 years.

SCHENCK—Mary Schenck, aged 61 years, died at 12 North street, yesterday.

CAREY—Charles A. Carey, the well known letter carrier, has the sympathy of his many friends in the loss of his infant child, a girl, which was born on Saturday at 4 o'clock from the family residence, 28 London street and the interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

POLICE COURT.

The court room was packed this morning and there were 33 drunks.

Edward Armstrong, who is mentioned elsewhere under the fictitious name of William Thompson, was fined $20 to be paid in three days, otherwise three months for larceny of butter and a pair of shoes.

Two Poles, John and Joseph Vinal, were arrested for disturbing the peace and when called it was found that John had failed to appear. He will be hunted up before tomorrow.

Frank Maynard got six months at the state farm.

William Smith and Charles Fay, two peripatetic young men, were sent to jail for three months each for larceny.

William Tighe and John Knight, who escaped from the workhouse were sent to jail for four months each.

John Allen received six months in the state farm.

Clara Hamilton, who touched a "gentleman friend" for $14, received six months in jail.

The two Poles named Vinal showed up in court later and were fined $5 each.

Celia Martindale was awarded a four months' stop at the workhouse.

BOULEVARDS WIN AGAIN.

The Boulevards played a return game with the Albions at Atherton, Saturday, in which the Boulevards won again by the score of 4 to 0. The star feature of the game was the touchdown made by Captain Thomas who scoured the ball on the Albions' second down after the kick-off. Thomas also made a run of forty yards behind the fine interference of McCarthy, Bassett and Morrison. Anderson and Gallagher played well for the Albions.

The committee on appropriations will meet this evening.

FOR COMPROMISE

Fred Lawton's Friends Want Wilson to Withdraw.

AND UNITE IN FIGHT AGAINST BENNETT.

All Candidates Catering for French Vote.

The republican mayoralty fight is becoming complicated.

Alderman Chas. Howe is no longer a factor in the contest, for after announcing his withdrawal from the contest, his friends immediately went over to Lawton. It is understood that such a course is to the big alderman's liking.

Mr. Howe's friends conceded that he had no chance to win and it was due to their advice and the change in his business plans that he decided to abandon politics, for a time at least.

During the past week John Wilson has gained strength and the concensus of opinion among republicans is that the real fight will be between Col. Bennett and Hon. Frederick Lawton.

At present the Colonel seems to have the lead and if that is really so, then he will be nominated for Colonel Bennett never loses any advantages and is always eager and ready to grasp any strength that may be within reach.

It is true that the candidacy of Mr. Lawton has caused some defection in the Bennett ranks, but he has more than made up for this loss by receiving support from quarters that opposed him last year.

Prominent republicans are now trying to arrange a deal between Lawton and Wilson, by which the latter will withdraw from the contest in favor of the former. They claim that Lawton stepped aside last year for Wilson and that now "Honest John" should reciprocate. But Wilson will not hearken to this and members of the good government club with which Captain Mitten, Dunklee, and some more of the "boys" are associated are urging Wilson to refuse to accept any such overtures. The "good government" club, by the way, is playing a game worthy of political novices and their attempt to straddle the span between Col. Bennett's office and the home of John Wilson is very laughable.

The caucuses will be held some time between November 16 and 22, and the candidates will establish down town headquarters this week. Several meetings in the interest of the different candidates are slated for this week, and the active workers will be asked to report the result of their labors.

All three are catering for the French vote and are making all sorts of promises and pledges. Bennett apparently has been most persuasive and convincing with the French republicans and will probably receive their support. On this account, he figures on carrying Ward Seven, Lawton's own ward, where the bulk of the French vote is located.

PURCHASING AGENT.

The friends of Purchasing Agent Barnard are canvassing the democratic ranks for support for Mr. Barnard. They confess that he will meet with violent opposition from republicans who are in business in this city because he has failed to accord them a share of the city trade. They will oppose him at the polls and republican friends of Mr. Barnard, realizing that the defection will be great, are making a special and particular effort to get democratic votes.

THOSE VILE TRANSFERS.

Mr. Daniel W. Aldrich, who is going to sue the Lowell & Suburban railroad as a result of the new transfer system, has retained counsel and a lodge of Odd Fellows has agreed to furnish him with the finances necessary to stand the expense of his suit.

The chainless bicycle in the show window of the Thompson Hardware company is attracting great attention from the bicycle cranks. It is sport to stand around and hear the comments made on the merits of the new wonder.

firm footing and we expect to have from 800 to 900 men in our ranks instead of 175 as we had today. I hope that this work will continue. It is something to know that our graves will always be kept green."

Then James E. Donnelly, a member of the Burkes, sang with grand expression and effect the hymn, "I Love to Hear My Savior's Voice."

William A. Hogan, Esq., was introduced and said:

"It is to commemorate and keep alive in your hearts, not alone the good which you and your deceased brothers have accomplished as humble followers in the footsteps of the great apostle of total abstinence, Father Mathew, but also to bring to mind the many other good qualities which you know they possessed as sons, husbands and fathers, that once a year you have consecrated to your dead one of these latter autumn days, when nature herself is sad because the beauties of her spring and summer have passed away, leaving her naked and unadorned on the threshold of winter.

"What sweet sad memories today must conjure to each of you, of the many whose life oil has burnt out. Here in this hall you meet in friendly greeting, day after day, year after year, those whose memory you honor today; here you have listened to their counsel and advice and been guided by it, and here you have shared with them those fleeting worldly pleasures which we now enjoy, but now you mourn for them. They have left this dull, plodding world; the hand which was wont to clasp yours in hearty greeting is now lifeless clay; the voice which you loved to hear has become hushed in death. It soothes you to mind their many characteristics, the kind words which they have spoken, their many acts of benevolence and charity, their upright, God-fearing life, and it strengthens your determination to be ever faithful and true to your obligations, it teaches you to

"Act well your part,
There all the honor lies."

"Though their deeds may never be told of in story or in song they were true heroes. Just as the Spartan band of old held the pass at Thermopylae to save their altars and their sires, so they stood with you shoulder to shoulder and fought for the home and the family against the ever vigilant and implacable enemy, intemperance, who is no respecter of persons or places; who has made the highest and the lowest his slaves who separates husband and wife, children and parents, who has filled our jails with criminals and our institutions with paupers. With no blaring of trumpets and roll of drums did they seek to drive out this insidious foe, but quietly and unostentatiously by force of moral suasion and their own example, they strove to gain recruits in the workshops, in the factories, in the homes, and though their field was limited to our own city, there are many tonight, some within sound of my voice, who have reason to bless you and them for a father rescued from the abyss down which he was plunging, for a son turned from the paths of inebriety and dishonor to those of sobriety and honor.

"And while it is fitting that on this day you should sorrow for those who have gone out from among you, whose friendship you miss, whose assistance you need, the thought should comfort you who are left to fight life's weary battles, that they died not sulking in their tent, but on the battlefield with their face to the foe, a true soldier's death.

"Could I but interpret the voice of your dead, it would bid me tell you to push on and fear not, to strive ever upward, ever onward, to write on your hearts in letters of gold the principles on which your institute is founded, to sink all personal aggrandizement, to have none but honest differences among you, to follow firmly, unfalteringly, the star of temperance."

The Mozart quartette sang "The Vacant Chair," and Miss Adelaide Sullivan rendered "Calvary" after which Rev. Fr. McDonough spoke.

After speaking of the lessons to be learned in the contemplation of the dead, Fr. McDonough said "We should be prepared at any time, for we are to enter upon a life which is eternal. What that future will be for us depends upon the character of our life in this world. For all we do, good or bad, we must be held accountable to the God who gave us life. Are there no men who can serve as a pattern for us? Yes. There men are speaking from their graves and are telling a story of a noble life.

"There has just died in New York a man named Henry George. I do not want to discuss him from a political standpoint. I simply wish to impress upon you the honesty and the honor of the man. His character must always live as a model, an inspiration to mankind. We must be honest with our fellowmen if we wish to live in this world.

"You may look upon Michael Sexton as a model. He was a self-sacrificing man who gave his time and energy to a noble work. Among yourselves you may find men who are worthy of emulation."

The quartette closed the program with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

RESIGNATION WITHDRAWN.

REV. T. S. SAYERS, JR., WILL REMAIN IN LOWELL.

Rev. Thomas S. Sayers, Jr., pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, who recently resigned from his pastorate, has withdrawn his resignation. He will remain until the church is out of debt.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

VISITED BY REV. LOUIS WALSH, INSPECTOR FOR THE ARCHDIOCESE.

Rev. Louis Walsh, inspector of parochial schools in the archdiocese of Boston made his first official visit to Lowell last week to visit the local parochial schools. The office of inspector was recently created and Fr. Walsh who was a professor at St. John's seminary was chosen to fill it.

He has commenced his work by studying the methods of teaching used by the different religious teaching orders within his jurisdiction. In Lowell St Joseph's and the Immaculate Conception schools are taught by the Gray Nuns, St. Joseph's college by the Marist Brothers, St. Patrick's school by the Xaverian Brothers, St. Patrick's schol for girls and Notre Dame academy by the Sisters of Notre Dame St. Michael's school by the Sisters of St. Dominick and the Sacred Heart schol by the Sisters of Mary. Each of these orders has a method of teaching. To select the best from all and secure a uniform method of teaching will be the first aim of Fr. Walsh. When this is done, he will be able to visit the school rooms and inspect the work personally.

READER GETS OUT

On Account of Marrying a Couple

IN A LION'S DEN AT BOSTON.

The Methodists Don't Want Such Exhibitions.

Boston, Nov. 8.—Rev. George A. Reader, who officiated at the recent sensational wedding in a den of lions, has withdrawn from the Boston university school of theology at the request of the faculty of that institution. President Warren stated that Mr. Reader had ample warning from the faculty that his action, if he took any part in the proposed wedding, would not be sanctioned. President Warren says Mr. Reader was not expelled, though the effect of the faculty's action in the matter is virtual expulsion.

FUNERALS.

BATCHELDER—The funeral of the late Orrin S. Batchelder of Chelmsford took place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family home in Westford street, many relatives and neighbors being present. Rev. E. C. Bartlett of the Central Congregational church officiated. Two selections were sung by Misses Harriet Woodworth and Alice M. Stearns. Beautiful floral tributes rested upon and around the casket. The bearers were W. W. Kilbourne, A. B. Wodworth, P. F. Litchfield, and Samuel Hagerman. Burial was in the cemetery at North Chelmsford.

The bearers were William Cookin, Frederic McSorley, Peter McManiman, Edward Caffrey, Frank Duggan and Frank Murphy. Among the many beautiful flowers sent by loving friends were: Pillow, inscribed "Lawrence" from the family; cross Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Meigs; sprays of chrysanthemums, Thomas Fee, Jr., A. J. Doyle, Miss Boulger, Miss Kittie and Master John Queenan, Miss Bessie Lynch; sprays of pinks, Miss Ethel Johnson and John W. Simonds; spray of asters, classmates of the Immaculate Conception school, harp inscribed "Rest," Miss B. Surlis.

The ushers were Joseph McCaffrey of Holy Cross college, Thomas F. Fee, Jr., and Augustine J. Doyle. The burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

FOLEY—John Foley, child of Michael and Margaret Foley, died this morning at 81 Fulton street. The funeral took place this afternoon and interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

ASH—The funeral of Sabina Ash occurred from St. Patrick's church this morning. Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Walsh. The bearers were John J. Barrett, Peter Connors, Patrick Kenney, and John J. Morris. Interment was in the Catholic cemetery.

A BAD ACCIDENT

Occurred on the Boulevard Yesterday.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL INJURED IN COLLISION.

And His Valuable Pacer, Lizzie M. Killed.

A serious driving accident occurred on the Boulevard yesterday afternoon as a result of which Charles H. Campbell, the Centralville house dealer, lies seriously injured at the Lowell General hospital, while his valuable pacing mare, Lizzie M., whose record was in the 30's, is dead.

As is usual on Sundays, there were many fast drivers on the Boulevard yesterday afternoon, some with fast ones, all trying to go fast as Mr. Campbell went up with a friend behind Lizzie M. It is customary for the racers to drive slowly up the right side of the Boulevard and come down fast on the speedway. Mr. Campbell, it is said, instead of adhering to the custom, turned into the speedway and started to drive up.

He had not gone far when he noticed a couple of drivers coming toward him at a 2.30 clip. He tried to get out of the way of one, but in doing so, drove into the path of the other. It was too late for the other driver to pull up and the two came together with a crash. Mr. Campbell and his friend were thrown out, the latter turning a complete somersault, while horses and carriage were thrown together in a hopeless mix-up.

Lizzie M., upon finding herself free of the harness started off and for a short distance gave a beautiful exhibition of riderless pacing, but she had not gone far when she ran into another carriage and fell to the ground with a broken forelog and other injuries. Shortly afterward the animal was shot. She was valued at $600.

Mr. Campbell in the meantime was carried to the Lowell General hospital, and was found to be badly injured. His leg was badly torn and it is supposed that a shaft entered his body, for a deep wound requiring many stitches was inflicted.

Mr. Campbell's companion and the driver of the other horse were not injured.

VESPERS AT PROVIDENCE.

About 20 members of the Vesper-Country club were guests of the Providence Athletic club Saturday night, when pin polo was played and a royal entertainment given.

THE SUN IS

A Member of the Associated Press

Even the Middlesex Women's club will acknowledge that Nansen is an expensive fad.

The assassin has reached Brazil, and the president of that republic has had a most narrow escape from death at his hands. It is another proof that one political crank will imitate the acts of another.

There is a general feeling that the withdrawal of $50,000,000 of circulating medium at the present juncture will cause a slight stringency in the money market. This is a result of the sale of the Union Pacific railroad.

The republican press of Lowell will now turn its attention to undermining Mr. Pearson's candidacy. It was very successful during the anté-caucus canvass in causing dissensions in the democratic ranks. It may have enough to do, however, in harmonizing the factions headed by Bennett, Lawton, Miller and Wilson.

Hon. Fisher H. Pearson has now an opportunity to carry out his promises in regard to swelling the check list of democratic voters. The party will look for the edition which he has promised and we have no doubt it will not be disappointed. He has an opportunity to be elected if he only carries out his promises and if the party gives him its undivided support.

The case of General Weyler shows how little appreciation there is for a man's services to his country unless he succeeds. Weyler was cruel and tyrannical in Cuba and he did all perhaps that any man could do in the service of his country, yet because he failed and became ill-tempered over the treatment accorded him by the home government, he is now to be tried by court martial yet no one would be sorry to see Weyler punished for the heartless crimes he committed in Cuba.

ELECTION RESULTS.

The republican press of the country is now endeavoring to belittle the showing made on election day by the supporters of free silver and to magnify the vote of the gold democrats. The Boston Herald is assiduously harping on this key and misrepresenting the results of the election in the most flagrant manner. For example, it says that the vote received by Everett does not represent the full vote of the gold democrats, claiming that many of the latter voted the republican ticket. Now if they voted for Governor Wolcott, why should they be called democrats at all, or if the vote received by Dr. Everett does not represent the full strength of that element, why should not the Herald also say that the vote received by George Fred Williams did not fully represent the strength of the free silver democrats. There is just as much reason for the one statement as for the other. But there is the evident effort to disparage the results of the free silver vote and to magnify the opposition, but the fact remains that throughout the country there was a distinct and decided advance in the direction of the free silver cause on election day. This is evidenced first of all in the New York election, next in the defeat of Gorman in Maryland because he never endorsed the free silver movement and had on several occasions straddled the financial issue, refusing either to approve or condemn the free silver party. It is also evidenced in the election in Ohio where McKinley's chief lieutenant has been all but beaten; in Kentucky, in Michigan and in Chicago, where the municipal election is to be conducted on free silver lines. These are but indications, however of the general trend of sentiment throughout the country, but still they are indications which have alarmed the republican party. They encouraged democrats and proved conclusively that the fight between the gold standard and bimetallism must be fought to a finish, that it will come up again next year and for a final contest in 1900. Mr. Bryan as a leader of the free silver forces is more confident than ever and he has good ground for his confidence in the returns of last Tuesday's election throughout the country.

TRUE DEMOCRATIC POLICY.

After his nomination, Mayor-elect Van Wyck of the Greater New York outlined the policy he intends to put in practice when he shall have assumed the reins of government. It is worthy of study by every democrat in the land as an ideal policy for democrats to follow as a party and to demand of the officials they raise to power. It is the exact policy which The Sun has been preaching to democrats for years but which has heretofore never been so well enunciated. In order that it may be read and studied by every Lowell democrat who has not as yet seen it we reproduce it here. It is as follows:

"As to the men I shall call to fill office under me, I will be frank and plain. Put none but democrats on guard,' shall be the motto of my adplain. Put none but democrats on worth as a citizen shall together make up my first demand in selecting a man for an office. The man I appoint to office must own this trio of requisites. I must have proof that the public is to be honestly, faithfully, efficiently served, and that no call of duty on the part of an official is to be denied I must know that the man I name will do his whole, full duty to this city.

"But to find such a man for every place of appointment under me I need not leave the ranks of the democracy and I will not. The man for office under me must be honest, worthy, fit, yes; but he must be a democrat and the record of that man's democracy must be pure and must be straight.

"This is my notion of city government and by that idea I will guide. I do not do this on any 'To the victor belongs the spoils of the enemy' sentiment. It is not a question of victory or of spoils. The sole proposal is good government according to the expressed will of the people. These latter have elected its candidates and accepted its platform of principles. With those as the conditions, what fashion of political man should be named to carry out those principles and keep the promises of that platform? Should he be a republican? Or should he be a democrat who aided to make the platform, who believes in the principles set forth, who has fought for their success, and who has a heart to carry them into expression? There can be but one answer to all this. My appointees will be democrats; none but democrats. I do not understand the policy or the justice of going to the enemy to select your officers. In the ranks of the democracy can be found thousands who answer every requirement that the public weal demands and from the ranks of the democracy shall come my whole list of appointments.

"From first to last it will be my work to execute the principles laid down in the platform upon which I ran, and to enforce the law. In doing my full duty to the public in that behalf neither I nor those over whom, by my office, I have control, will know any difference of race, color, creed, or politics. As all share the burdens, so, too, shall all share the benefits of government and find even, equal protection under the law."

If Van Wyck lives up to this declaration of executive policy ,he will indeed be the model democratic executive of the country.

CRISP GOSSIP.

Those half-hour trips to Tyngsboro on the electrics, provided there are no fare punching inconveniences going with them, will be a great treat to poor people in the summer weather. The ride to Tyngsboro is prettier than to Lawrence and not long enough to be tiresome. It has become popular already with the Tyngsboro young ladies who attend High school here. The people of Tyngsboro and vicinity were out in force on the opening day to welcome the first cars and the town cannon was fired off from the Merrill house in honor of its appearance. The cannon, however, was out of practice and kicked so when fired that the shock smashed all the windows in the side of the car. The people, however, gave their word that such an occurrence will never be heard of again, and that all may visit the pretty little town without fear.

Recently a young couple came to the parsonage and signified their desire and intention to become one. The young man was a stalwart broad-shouldered youth with an exceedingly kindly and honest face. She was small and dainty and pretty. When the clergyman put the question to her, "Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" she dropped the prettiest little courtesy imaginable, and with a modesty which lent to her beauty an additional grace, said softly, "If you please, sir."

The richest hoax of years is "Major" Garland, the spurious "powder boy of the Constitution," who was wined and dined and feted at Boston during the celebration of the old ship's centennial and who now proves to have been a glorious old fakir who never served on the Constitution, never fought in the war of 1812, never acted as chaplain of a Maine regiment and never did anything worthy of note except to gull the Boston people to the top of his bent.—Concord Monitor.

But it's Lowell people who will appreciate the bad part of the joke. Garland was not only carried around Boston in a barouche with bowing multitudes on all sides and wined and dined but he also had a poem written in his honor by P. J. Lynch, formerly of the Mail and well known in this city. It's regularly moved and seconded that Percy sets 'em up when we meet again.

Judging by the names of those elected to office, the Dutch, as well as the Tammanyites have taken New York. Van Wyck, Guggenheimer, Haffen, Sohmer, Wuest, Fromme, and Van Brunt are some of the leading candidates chosen.

The Taunton Herald says that the editor of a Bath newspaper caught the measles by kissing a Boston girl. Serves him right. He ought to have kissed a Bath girl.

Edward F. Brady formerly wine clerk at Joseph Clark's Emblem saloon in Liberty Square, has taken the management of James Cawley's saloon at the corner of Thorndike and Worthen streets.

William H. Harrigan and William J. Reardon of this city were bearers at the funeral of Mrs. Catharine Hamilton, the victim of the Worcester murder, in Lawrence, on Friday.

A BURGLAR SHOT

By an Officer While Resisting Arrest.

THE LITTLE TOWN OF HOLBROOK ALARMED.

The Burglar May Not Recover.

Holbrook, Mass., Nov. 8.—James Boyle of Randolph, 23 years old, while attempting, it is supposed, to burglarize the store of George F. Wild, was shot by Officer Webster. The officer used his revolver only after a long tussle with Boyle, who fought savagely in resisting arrest. Webster had expected a break in the store and was prepared for Boyle when the latter, breaking a front window, entered the building. As soon as the man was inside the officer jumped out and told Boyle to throw up his hands. Instead of doing so, Boyle made a rush for the officer, and for a few minutes there was the liveliest kind of a fight.

At last the officer fired, the bullet entering Boyle's side below the heart, where it glanced upward so as to be removed easily. The alleged burglar was too weak to resist arrest afterwards.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Sunday morning the Green mountains were snowcapped for the first time this season. The first fall last year was three weeks earlier.

Friday night the general supply store of George A. Rowe of China, Me., was broken into and a large amount of general merchandise stolen, together with a small amount of cash.

While a number of students and officers were lounging in a coffee house at Vienna a dispute arose—which culminated in a serious affray. Three of the students and a waiter were badly wounded.

Captain Robert H. Coomba, a prominent ship captain in the days when shipping boomed at Belfast, Me., dropped dead last evening while walking with his grand-daughter. The summons came unexpectedly, as he had been in good health up to this time.

James Ranger of Holyoke, Mass., a freshman in Amherst college, in attempting to board a train from Northampton to Amerst slipped under the cars and his left foot was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. His head was also badly injured.

WANTED—MURDERER.

Boston, Nov. 8.—The police spent all Sunday in running down clues on the murder of Alice Brown, who was found strangled in a lodging house last Thursday, and the only one which gave them any encouragement was that relating to a man who was seen in a restaurant with the girl on the night when the murder is supposed to have been committed. A fairly accurate description has been obtained of this man, and the police think that when apprehended he may be able to give some definite clew to the perpetrator of the crime, if indeed he does not prove to be the murderer himself.

A number of persons visited the morgue, among them being Owen Brown of New Bedford; he, as well as all the others, was unable to identify the body. Mr. Brown said at once that she was not his daughter, whom he stated he had not seen or heard from since last July.

It did not take long to clear James McMillan, who was arrested Saturday night as a possible witness of the crime, from all connection with it. Some one heard a blind singer use rather peculiar language in speaking to McMillan, and the latter was arrested on suspicion. Sunday, however, he was released, as he was able to prove to the police that, while knowing the girl, nevertheless he knew nothing of the crime. The mystery surrounding the whole affair appears as thick as ever, and the police are singularly baffled in trying to identify the woman.

SUICIDE OF A MURDERER.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 8.—Charles Pinkerton, under sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of his nephew and son-in-law, cut his throat in the county jail. Death was almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Pinkerton was an inmate of the same cell with her husband, the precaution being taken to prevent the prisoner from carrying out threats of suicide, but there is evidence that she furnished the knife with which her husband killed himself.

SUGAR SCHOONER SANK.

Halifax, Nov. 8.—The ship John McLeod, Captain Stewart, with a cargo of sugar bound to this port, struck on Black rock, entrance of this harbor, Sunday morning, during a thick fog. The ship sank soon after the crew left, going down in about 30 fathoms, and is a total loss. She was 1519 tons and 12 years old, and owned by Troop & Son of St. John. She was worth about $40,000, and her cargo was valued at about $100,000.

ACCEPTED THE SITUATION.

Columbus, Nov. 8.—There have been no new developments in the legislative situation, the Democrats having apparently abandoned all further efforts to contest the election of Republican representatives in close counties. The Republican majority of five on joint ballot in the general assembly will probably not be changed unless the fusionist members in Cincinnati vote with the Republicans.

TECHNOLOGY WON.

AN INTERESTING GAME WITH THE LOWELLS.

The Technology freshmen defeated the Lowell team in an interesting game of football on the Fair grounds Saturday afternoon. Tech scored 10 points, while the Lowell boys were blanked.

The Glenmores were to be the opponents of the Lowell team but they did not play, and there are two stories as to the reason. One is that the Glenmores kicked late Friday night for more than the agreed purse. The Lowells threw up the game and telephoned Tech to come up and play, which they did. The other story is that the Lowells failed to keep their engagement and called the Glenmores hard names.

The local men kicked off and the ball was sent 30 yards down the field, and Tech held it till Kennard scored a touch down.

Evans kicked against the wind and failed to make a goal.

Lowell kicked off again and Smith got the ball and went out of bounds five yards into the Lowells' territory; Tech lost the ball on a forward pass. Lowell tried a punt and got 25 yards. Tech pushed the ball for ten yards on the next few downs; then Danforth got the ball for a fine run around the right end, throwing a lot of tacklers on the way, for a touchdown; Evans kicked the goal; Lowell kicked off for 30 yards. Tech pushed to enter and got five yards on an off side. Time was called with the ball on Lowell's 25-yard line.

Tech kicked off in the second half for 25 yards; Ford Coburn for Lowell punted to center; Smith of Tech fell on the ball, but fumbled; Danforth made a run for the goal, but the referee said the ball was down at center.

Smith of Tech made a pretty play, jumping over the runner and tackling the quarter before the could pass the ball.

Banks punted for 15 yards; Tech got the ball and pushed to within one yard of the goal when time was called.

COUNTING SILVER.

IT WILL COST THE GOVERNMENT $20,000 TO DISCOVER THE LOSS.

Washington Nov. 6.—The count of the silver in the treasury may show a larger deficiency than was anticipated when treasurer Roberts ordered it begun months ago.

The big vault contains $101,000,000 in silver and all but $28,000,000 of these dollars have ben counted in the two months. Treasury officials will not give out the amount of the shortage fund, but admit that it is over $200.

The count will last for several months yet. It progresses at the rate of about $750,000 a day. Twenty-eight women do the counting of the silver dollars. They sit at four long tables and the jingle of silver is heard in all directions. Each counter has a tray before her. With dollars stacked high, this tray holds $100. As a tray is filled a senior takes charge of it, puts the dollars in bags, and sends them to the weighers, any discrepancy in weight calling for another count.

Whatever loss the count shows will fall on former Treasurer D. N. Morgan. The count will cost the government $20,000.

MUSIC HALL.

"PAY TRAIN" TONIGHT.

"The Pay Train" will, no doubt, be received tonight by a very large audience at Music Hall, as there has been considerable interest taken in the appearance of this splendid company here. One of our exchanges speaks of the performance as follows: The play is rich in exciting situations and thrilling climaxes, while a liberal sprinkling of pure comedy brightens the whole play in a pleasing manner. The several specialties by Ollie Hanford, Roch & Whiting, and Elliott -- Zuckert add their share of interest to the production. The scenery of the "Pay Train" is magnificent and the mechanical effects very realistic. The first act represents the deck of the big ocean steamer, City of New York, with the Brooklyn bridge and New York harbor in the distance. This set is illuminated by hundreds of electric lights making it a most beautiful scene and requires the entire stage from wall to wall for its production. The thrilling incline railroad wreck and the marvelous boiler explosion are the greatest mechanical devices ever presented on the stage. The company is the strongest ever seen in this city. Tonight at Music Hall.

The beautiful burlesque queen, May Howard, who has created a furore and won a name second to none in the vaudeville, is announced to appear at Music Hall next Thursday, Friday and Saturday accompanied by twenty-five well known comedians and burlesque artists. Miss Howard has been recognized as a leading singing comedian for the last five seasons. Her engagements at Hammerstein's, the Casino, and Koster & Bial's being one of the most successful ever shown any artist in New York. This season she heads her own company of merry makers, who will present two burlesques written up to the minute by Fred Solomon, entitled "The Naughty French Girl." It will be seen as the opening and after a strong olio, the closing act of "The Three Lost Brothers."

Lowell Mothers Keep Them, But With a Little Light There Need be None.

How carefully mother guards the secrets of her boys and girls. At night as she carefully tucks the bed clothes round them she chides and warns that mother will be angry if they repeat last night's offence, softly saying to herself, it's only a habit, but I must break them of it. This is mother's mistake. The children cannot help it, and sweet, clean dry beds can be the resting place of every child when it is understood that the cause is not a habit, but a weakness that can be cured. Active life of the little ones tends to weakening of the kidneys, and weak Kidneys means inability to retain the urine. This is a condition, not a habit, and should have the same prompt attention you would give to the marked symtoms of any disease. Doan Doan's Kidney Pill taken twice a day and at bed-time will strengthen the kidneys of a child and in a short time there will be no cause to scold, for the so-called habit will disappear promptly.

Here's a grateful mother that adds her endorsement to our words:

Mrs. Wm. Wood, who lives at No. 30 Colony street, Meriden, Conn., says: "My little boy of ten years of age has always been troubled with weakness of the kidneys, causing him to wet the bed. So many mothers punish their children for this, but I knew he couldn't help it. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills curing an incontinence of urine in adults and thought they might help the little fellow. I procured a box and their use produced a marked benefit at once. It is very seldom he does it now. I shall continue giving him Doan's Kidney Pills until the kidneys are strong. It is only out of gratitude that I permit publication but this trouble is a very prevalent one, and most people from a matter of modesty or diffidence do not speak of it. Physicians don't appear to be able to cope with this trouble, and I consider it a mother's duty to tell others about it when she has found a specific for this terrible annoyance."

BITTERNESS IN SPAIN.

New York, Nov. 8.—Captain William Wyndham, who has been transferred as British consul at Chicago after three years service in a similar capacity at Barcelona, Spain, was a passenger on La Bretagne, which arrived here from Havre yesterday. He said: "The feeling in Spain against the United States is one of great bitterness, particularly so in Barcelona. Before the Cuban war Barcelona, one of the great manufacturing centers of Spain, prospered chiefly on its trade with Cuba and Manila. The war in Cuba and the Philippine Islands has cut off this trade. Barcelona has lost the best and most lucrative market she enjoyed. Only one-third of the men hitherto employed in her factories are now working, and they are on reduced time. All over the manufacturing centers of Spain there is similar commercial prostration. The Spanish cannot understand why the United States, a friendly nation, should allow so many filibustering expeditions to get off safely to Cuba. That fact makes them additionally bitter."

THE ARENA OF POLITICS

ATTENTION, REPUBLICANS!

A Few Propositions That Should Have Careful Thought.

Republicans, the last Republican platform pledged the party to endeavor to secure international bimetallism. That plank was a condemnation of the gold standard. To promise to rid the nation of the gold standard is a confession that it is bad. President McKinley asked congress for authority to appoint a commission to visit Europe and ask the leading nations of the old world to help the United States to let go of a gold standard. The commission went to France, and France consented to bimetallism, thereby declaring the gold standard to have been injurious to France. The commission went to Germany and found Germany disposed to wait on England. The commission went to England and remained there for three months, hoping for aid. When the government and the Bank of England intimated that England might be willing to make some slight concessions, the bankers of London met in secret session on Sept. 22 and protested. Now the English government has bowed to the will of the London bankers and refused to lend any assistance.

Republicans, your party turned over the control of our finances to Europe, Europe turned the matter over to England, England turned the matter over to the London bankers, and the London bankers declared against bimetallism and pledged themselves to secrecy.

Republicans, are you willing to allow the London bankers to meet in secret and determine the financial policy of the American people?

Republicans, are you willing to allow the London bankers to meet in secret and control the destinies of the American people?

Republicans, are you willing to allow the London bankers to meet in secret and determine the conditions which shall surround your children?

Republicans, are you not now ready to join those who favor the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation?—Omaha World-Herald.

THE FEDERAL COURTS.

By Their Arbitrary Rulings the Will of the People Is Annulled.

"Government by injunction" was first invented in the federal courts in this country in order to suppress labor strikes and terrify the working population from demanding increase of wages, diminution of hours of labor and similar regulations for its benefit and advantage. It was seldom or never resorted to by state courts, the reason, as it is generally believed, being that the judges of the latter are mostly elected by popular vote for terms of office, while the federal judges are appointed by the president of the United States and hold their places for life, irresponsible to the people.

From labor troubles the next step was not a long one to take to interfere in officeholding troubles. It was taken when, lately, a federal court issued an injunction forbidding the renewal of two officeholders of the internal revenue, and it was followed up by another construction of law by which was maintained the right of a head of department to change a civil service employee from a high salary to a small one, although he was supposedly protected in his first place by his appointment after competitive examination. In this last case the court and the department dealt a pretty nigh fatal blow at the supposed immunity of the civil service appointees.

As we are going on in this experience of injunctions it is evident that we shall soon reach a point where we will have nothing to do but to obey them. As every statute passed by the elected representatives of the people is subject to "construction" by the life tenure judges of the federal courts, as injunctions are issued upon ex parte affidavits and applications, and as contempts are adjudged without indictment or trial, we are all marching forward to a condition of things which leads—whither? —New York News.

FRUITS OF PROTECTION.

High Tariffs Enrich a Few at the Expense of the People.

Prices of the necessaries of life have all gone up. The rise in the price of flour is due to the famine abroad, but it should not be forgotten that if the famine were in this country the people would have to pay a heavy tax on the imports of food stuffs. In other cases the rise is due to protective tariffs.

Higher prices in foods are matched by higher prices in shoes, clothing and household goods. The poor will suffer.

While the Dingley law is now burdening the people and is putting millions of their hard earned dollars in the coffers of trusts and combines it is putting little money in the treasury. Imports have fallen off. The increased prices the people pay are not paid in taxes to the government, but in tribute to the favorites of the government.

Instead of promising prosperity high tariffs blight it. They enrich a few plutocrats at the exponse of the people and with a loss to the revenues.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sound Money Patriots.

The Louisville Post deplores the fact that a "sound money" Democrat was removed by McKinley to make room for "a sound money" Republican and declares that because of such things the administration is becoming obnoxious to "sound money" Democrats. This gives us a deep pain, for we were assured that the "sound money" Democrats were not actuated by any desire to hold on to the offices when they supported McKinley, but were impelled by an overwhelming patriotism to succor and support Republicanism. The Louisville Post is giving the "sound money" Democrat snap dead away.

CREW OF NINETEEN LOST

On a Lake Erie Steamer Through Vessel's Weakness.

The Captain Thought His Ship was Much Stronger Than She was—Terrific Fate of the Entire Crew.

Buffalo, Nov. 8.—The Western Transit company's steamer Idaho, which left Buffalo Friday afternoon for Chicago, laden with package freight, foundered on Lake Erie during a furious gale. The first mate and one sailor, who succeeded in reaching the rigging, were rescued by the Mariposa Saturday afternoon, and were brought here. The balance of the crew, numbering 19, were undoubtedly drowned.

Captain Root had this to say regarding the storm on the lake and the rescue of the two men, who are Louis Laforce and William Gill: "It was one of the worst gales I ever experienced in all my years on the lakes. We started from Chicago with a load of oats. All the way down the lakes we had to fight with the storm, and I thought once or twice of putting in somewhere until it blew over. I am glad I did not, for I fear that if I had these two men would have joined their mates.

"It was about 12:30 Saturday afternoon when I first learned of the wreck. I was on deck when my first mate came to me and told me that he had sighted a spar off to the north, and he thought there was a couple of men clinging to it. When I got my glasses on it I could distinguish the men plainly. We were running under a good head of steam, and I put on more and headed for the spar. When I got near I was puzzled how to help the men off, for I could not lower a boat in such a storm. Finally I circled about the spar until I ran alongside and my men picked the poor fellows off. They had to drag them away from the spar by force, for they had been there so long that their arms had become almost paralyzed and were twisted about the mast and almost frozen fast to it. When we got them on board we put them in bunks and gave them warm food and soups, and had them feeling pretty good physically when we reached harbor."

The Idaho went out of commission three or four years ago, but this summer she was thoroughly overhauled, after which she was placed at the disposal of the Naval Veterans' association and by that organization used as the flagship during the G. A. R. encampment in August. At the close of the encampment she was put into commission again as a freighter. The captain of the ill-fated steamer, Alexander Gillies, was one of the most widely known of the lake seamen. He was 41 years old and knew the lake waters like a book.

The lost comprise the following: Alexander Gillies, captain, Buffalo; George Gibson, first mate, Buffalo; William Clancy, chief engineer, Buffalo; John D. Taylor, steward, Buffalo; Nelson Skinner, first assistant engineer; Louis Gilmore, watchman; Richard McLean, wheelsman; Robert Williams, wheelsman; J. J. Richard, lookout; Henry Thompson, lookout; Conrad Blanker, fireman; William Gregory, fireman; John Healy, assistant steward; Frederick Milfort, oiler; Edward Smith, deckhand, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. Bell, deckhand. The names of three of the men drowned are unknown to the steamship company. One was a fireman, another a deckhand and a third a porter.

A Thrilling Recital.

William Gill, the rescued deckhand, has sailed on the lakes for many years. His story of the disaster is a thrilling one. He said: "We left here Friday night bound for Chicago with a cargo of general merchandise. Everything seemed to be all right until we got outside the breakwater, and then we were struck by the worst storm that I ever saw. When the first big wave struck us we were tossed into the air like a top, and a second later a big roller came over the port bow and rolled down amidships a foot deep. The wind shrieked and howled, but we did not pay much attention to the storm. We had felt the wind before. The captain consulted with the mate and decided that we could weather it, and he kept on his course.

"As we headed up the lake, dead against the gale, it appeared to be getting worse every minute. The waves were running high and the wind threw the tops from the breakers like dust. We moved slowly against the heavy wind and sea, and when we were well up the lake we found the boat was making water. It kept coming faster and faster, and the bilge pumps were put to work, but the water gained, and every minute the ship kept getting less buoyant and the big combers kept breaking over her.

"We were near Long Point at this time, and the captain started to put in there with the intention of beaching her, but the water gained so rapidly that it was too late. She was already laboring, and the two men at the wheel could do nothing. A couple more men went to work with them, and brought her around and headed her towards land.

"Captain Gillies started the pumps and ordered the men to the fire buckets. We formed a line and began to bail, but it was no use. The water gained on the pumps and the buckets, and soon the water put the fires out. When it was found that the power had gone and that she could not move, we knew we could not live in the trough of the fearful sea, and the only hope left us was to run out the anchor and bring her head up to the sea and let her ride out the gale. Every seaman realizes the danger of attempting to do that in the face of a hurricane, and when Captain Gillies decided to do it he ordered the lashings of the boats cut and told the men that they were forced to take one last chance for their lives.

"At the word the anchor dropped from the bow and the chain began to pay out; but the sea was too heavy, and instead of the anchor catching with a firm grip and bringing the ship's head up to the storm with a jerk, it went too slow, and she simply tumbled into the trough of the seas, which broke over her in torrents. In an instant she was as helpless as a log, and she was tossed here and there and taking every wave aboard. From port to starboard the great mountains of water poured, rolling into the hold, and this added to the quantity already weighting her down. The load was too much, and after a moment, when we all felt that we were lost, the ship keeled over to starboard and went down, stern first.

"What became of my mates I do not know. I remember that the boats had been loosened, and that some of the men were ready to take to them if the vessel went under, but no boat could have lived for a minute in that terrible sea, and if any of them did get in the boats it was simply to be swamped as soon as the first wave struck them. Maybe they did not leave the ship at all. I was near the spar, and when the stern of the vessel began to go under I went for the rigging and went up as fast as I could. Another man went with me—the second mate—and I thank the Lord that he was with me, or I would have gone mad during all the long hours that I was up there hanging on and trying to keep off the frightful cold that was surely killing us both.

"There was a rolling to and fro as the vessel struck the bottom and slowly righted to an even keel, and then a second later she rolled over to one side. I thought she was going all the way over, but she did not. She settled on the bottom, and though the waves rolled her from port to starboard the spar remained out of the water, with my mate and myself clinging to it. All this time the hail and sleet was coming down in a cutting sheet and we were covered with ice in a few minutes, for though the top of the spar on which we were hanging was 25 feet above water, the big waves struck us and broke over us, and the hail cut us like shot. I knew that it was about 3 o'clock when we went down, and it seemed to me that daylight would never come. For what seemed to be an age we hung on to the rigging, and we twisted our arms about the spar and let them freeze in position, for we would have fallen into the fearful sea.

"When daylight came we could not see a sail anywhere near us, and the sea was as bad as ever. There did not seem to be any chance of it going down. Hour after hour we waited there, and then we saw the Mariposa coming. For a long time we did not know whether she would sight us, and we watched her from the time she was a little, smoky haze up the lake until we could see that she was a big vessel. When she finally sighted us and we saw her head for us, I tried to tell my mate, but I could not, and he looked at me with a happy look in his face. It was a terrible time to us before she came up to us, and then I knew we were not yet safe, for the sea was running mountains high and the big steel boat was rolling like a skiff. Every wave sent her up in the air until we could see her white bottom under her waterline. We knew at once that her captain would not attempt to lower a boat, for it would have been chewed up. When the Mariposa got within a cable length of us a man with a strong voice yelled to us to hang on. Then the boat circled around us, coming as near as she could, but then she went off to starboard, rolling heavily when she got in the trough of the sea. Then she came back again and again missed us, and we could not take a line had one been thrown to us. Again she went around, and we watched her and watched the men on her rail waiting to give us a lift when they could. On the third trip around she ran right alongside our spar, and as she went past a dozen men reached for us. I do not know who got the mate, but Mr. Smith, the engineer, got hold of me and dragged me from the spar and over the rail of the Mariposa. An instant later we had passed the little stock on which I and the mate had been hanging almost a day, although it seemed a week."

The second mate, Louis Laforce, told a harrowing story. He said that in the rush of the men from the hold, one of them, a watchman, was trampled to death. The crew was frantic to get out of the place. Six or eight, he said, must have been drowned like rats in the hold. They were not warned of the sinking of the boat. The first long dip of the stern was the first intimation they had that the final danger was at hand, and then they made a grand rush to get on deck. The hatchway was too small to let them through together, and the result was that one of them was trampled to death and several were left to drown.

Oh, How They Hurt.

Neuralgic pains are often so acute, that the poor sufferer becomes, almost, frenzied with the intensity of the pain. Salvation Oil will instantly relieve and effectually cure neuralgia, so there is no reason why a moment's pain should be endured. Mr. Jacob Klein, 1036 Main St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "My wife suffered from neuralgia for seven years and since she used Salvation Oil, she has not had a spell. I think it is the best liniment I have ever tried, and I would not be without a bottle of it in the house. I had the rheumatism for five years and had tried a great many liniments, and must say that Salvation Oil did me more good than any other remedy." Salvation Oil is sold everywhere for 25 cents.

LIVELY FIRE AT LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Nov. 8.—A fire of considerable proportions broke out at midnight this morning in the wholesale business district. The flames originated on the top floor of a building occupied by Bareford & Lawson, wholesale millinery dealers, and quickly spread to the four-story building on the west occupied by Benjamin S. Weller, wholesale dealer in boots and shoes. The flames were fed by a large quantity of wax used in making flowers, and despite the fact that tons of water were thrown into both buildings continued to blaze furiously for an hour. At 1 o'clock the fire was brought under control. A conservative estimate places the total loss at $150,000, fully covered by insurance.

VENGEANCE OF A MOB.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 8.—Saturday night a large mob broke into and looted the office of The Republican. Although the plan was generally known, the police were powerless to prevent the attack. The Republican had made itself particularly obnoxious by its criticisms upon the government policy in connection with recent campaign against the fanatics, and upon its attacks upon President Mornes and General Marcado Bittencourt, the minister of war, who was fatally stabbed during the disturbance that followed the attempt upon the president's life last Friday afternoon.

FELL AND WAS KILLED.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 8.—William Robinson, 53 years old, fell from a bridge over the Boston and Albany track Sunday afternoon and died a few minutes afterward from the effects of his injuries. Robinson was standing one one of the buttresses of the bridge, and it is supposed he slipped and fell a distance of 25 feet, striking on his head. He was a widower and leaves one child.

ROBBED THE SAFE

Hold-Up by a Gang of Highway Men.

WHO OPENED THE WRONG SAFE.

And Consequently Missed a Big Haul.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Nov. 8.—No. 2 passenger train of the Santa Fe Pacific, which was held up at Grant's station Saturday night, reached this city at 11:30 Sunday morning. Conductor Aldrich states that just as the train came to a halt at Grant's, a fusillade of shots rang out in the air, and several men boarded the train, one going on the engine. He and Engineer McCarthy were on the platform, but caught the train as it was moving out. The fireman, Henry Abel, was compelled, at the point of a revolver, to pull the train up to the stock yards, about two miles distant. The conductor realized that something was wrong and left the train at the stock yards, where the robbers had ordered the train stopped. He ran back to the station and telegraphed the news to Division Superintendent Hubbard at Gallup and Sheriff Hubbell.

In the meantime the robbers cut the mail coach, the day and chair coaches and the Pullman sleeper from the engine and express car, and the fireman was ordered to pull the latter further up the road. They commenced dynamiting the express car, and the third explosion blew out one end of the car, Abel being forced to assist the robbers. Once inside, they picked out the safe which they surmised contained considerable money and valuables, and placed it on a stick of dynamite.

A few lumps of coal were put on the dynamite, a fuse was attached to the safe and lighted, and in this way the robbers blew a hole in the safe. They helped themselves to a number of packages containing gold and silver coin, which they placed in a sack, and then left the car, going in the direction of Malpoirt rocks, where their horses were picketed. The express car was on fire and Abel, thoroughly frightened, backed the engine and express car into the other portion of the train at the stock yards. In consequence the express car, day coach and chair car were telescoped, and all three destroyed by fire.

Express agents who went out to the scene state that the robbers did not get into the most valuable safe, which, with two others, was badly warped by the fire. They think, however, that the robbers secured several thousand dollars, but the exact amount will not be known for some time, as all the papers and records of the car and safe were burned. The baggage was all removed before the fire got under headway. The passengers were not molested. The robbers are thought to be desperate cowboys who are familiar with that section of the road. A posse of officers is in pursuit.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 8.—A soap factory belonging to the estate of Edward F. Marsh was burned Sunday morning. The fire was probably of incendiary origin, and the loss is about $2000.

Halifax, Nov. 8.—The residence of George Tullock, about three miles from Halifax, was burned to the ground Saturday night. Maria Walker, sister of Mrs. Tullock, and a 4-year-old child of the Tullocks, who were sleeping together, were burned to death.

POPULAR FOOTBALL GAMES

The Baltimore Team Outplayed—New Record for Entire Days Wheeling on the Bicycle—Other Notes From Sporting Fields.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—The aggregation of ball players from the east made its appearance Sunday at Recreation park. The All-American players played all around the men from Baltimore. It was an ideal day, and the size of the crowd was only limited by the capacity of the grounds. Every seat in the grandstand and the bleachers was taken, and a fringe of humanity surrounded the entire field, greatly interfering with the fielding of the players and being partly responsible for the large score. The grounds, too, were very rough, having been used for football when soft and slushy.

Dr. Pond, for the Baltimores, did not prove much of a puzzle to the nine gathered from the cream of the National league. They batted him hard and often, and after the sixth inning the crowd set up a continuous howl for Joe Corbett, but the latter did not respond. All the Californians, namely, Lange, Reitz, Clark and Nash, received a warm welcome from the 12,000 or more spectators. Lange was fairly smothered with floral tributes, the most attractive of which was a large shield of white roses, with the words, "Little Eva," in carnations. Lange responded by lining out the first ball pitched against the centre field fence for two bases.

The fielding of the All-Americans was clean and snappy. The only feature in the playing of the Baltimores was Jennings' quick and clean fielding. He made a remarkable double play, catching a straight liner by jumping in the air and throwing the batter out at first. Donahue's work behind the bat for Baltimore was very slow. Score:

READY TO MEET JACKSON.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—Joe Choynski, the California heavyweight, has arrived in San Francisco. He announces that he is in perfect condition and ready to fight Jefferies at any time. The meeting will probably occur on the 15th of Nov. He was asked about the prospect of a meeting between Jackson and himself. "I am ready to meet Jackson," he said, "as soon as my present engagement is over. I have never shirked anyone, and stand ready to meet any man in the business."

While Choynski is here to meet Jefferies, it is the opinion of sporting men that he is anxious for another match with Goddard. At all events it is likely that Choynski will have as many engagements on his hands before he leaves San Francisco as he can take care of.

FREAKISHNESS OF BICYCLISTS.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Charles D. Campbell and William J. Nixon, members of a local cycling organization, have left this city on a tandem for a 16,000-mile ride. They were escorted as far as Wilmington by about 300 riders. The men ride as the result of a wager that they cannot complete the distance inside of one year and on their return show $1000, the start to be made without any money and only the necessary clothing that can be carried in a traveling case. They are required to visit the leading southern cities and to strike westward and be in Indianapolis at the National L. A. W. meet next year. The men expect to earn the $1000 by selling bicycle sundries.

BICYCLE RECORDS BROKEN.

Brockton, Nov. 8.—Frank B. German of this city broke the American 24-hour bicycle road record by riding 342 miles. He started at 4 p. m. Friday. The former record was held by Davis of Cleveland at 316 miles.

German also broke Davis' 12-hour record of 176 by riding 192 miles in the same time. The course was from this city to Franklin park, Boston, a round distance of 54 miles. German made the trip up and back six times and finished with a spurt ride to Stoughton. He finished the 342 miles just seven minutes before the expiration of the 24 hours.

DIXON'S SERMONS

HE ADVOCATED LOW'S ELECTION AGAINST CHOIR.

Low was Opposed by Choir Leaders.

New York, Nov. 8.—Sunday about 40 singers, constituting the chorus choir of the church of which the Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., is pastor, refused to sing out of sympathy with Professor Agramonte, their leader, because the pastor advocated the election of Seth Low for mayor last Sunday.

REV. THOMAS DIXON, JR.

Professor Agramonte is a Cuban and a member of the New York junta. His son has been in a Spanish prison on the island of Cuba for two years. The Cubans say that Seth Low opposed any intervention of this country in Cuban affairs, and stood against the cause of Cuban liberty since the outbreak of the last war.

Mr. Dixon said yesterday in his sermon that he sympathized with Professor Agramonte and added: "I can only say that I did not advocate my congregation voting for Low with any enthusiasm. I considered it my duty to do so because I saw that he was the strongest candidate against Tammany, and even he was preferable to Tammany. I cast my own vote for Low, but I cast it early in the morning, and took a train and got away from the city as fast as I could, and went shooting. I didn't care to be at the funeral. I had felt for some days a premonition of the inevitable.

"This shows what a thorny path a preacher has who insists on saying what he thinks. I hope that Professor Agramonte will come back to us with his choir. I don't say a word against him for feeling as he did about Mr. Low; in fact, I rather sympathize with him, but if all our supporters leave us, if there are only three, two or one of our friends left, we will still be found doing business in the best way we know how in the old stand."

ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLING.

Lubec, Me., Nov. 8.—As a result of an investigation into the closing of the Lubec savings bank, Micah M. Foster, treasurer of that institution, was placed under arrest Saturday charged with embezzling $20,000 of the funds of the bank. Mr. Foster says that he will establish his innocence when the case comes to trial.

His bail was fixed at $20,000.

The bank closed its doors last summer. The amount of assets and liabilities is not exactly known yet. Most of the depositors were sardine packers and fishermen. An examination of the bank's books has been going on for weeks, with the result that an apparent shortage of about $20,000 was discovered.

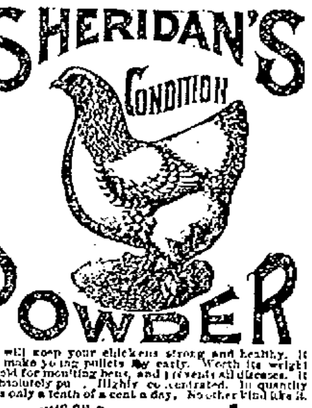

The bank is one of the smallest institutions of the kind in the state. The treasurer's bond is only $3000, and the bondsmen will be called upon to pay that amount providing the trial goes against Foster. It is claimed that the bank's affairs have been loosely managed, and that several irregularities in the transfer of certain securities have been found. Treasurer Foster is 70 years old, and has always been highly respected.

IN INTEREST OF ECONOMY.

Portland, Me., Nov. 8.—Important changes on the Maine Central are announced, being a consolidation in the operating department. The mountain and Quebec divisions are to be consolidated and both superintendents, Jones Hamilton and Wellington Sprague, are removed. George F. Black has been appointed division superintendent. From $4000 to $7000 of a saving will be effected by the changes.

TRIBUTES TO FAITH, PATRIOTISM, AND TO THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF SCIENCE.

THE WESTMINSTER STANDARD: AGED 250.

This Month Witnesses An International Celebration In Honor of the Event.

HOW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HISTORY WAS MADE

The national celebration of the 250th anniversary of the adoption of the Westminster Standards of Faith will take place in New York City on the 8th and 9th of November, by services in which the most prominent officials of the denomination from all parts of the country will participate. The Standards of Faith consist of the Confession of Faith, the Large and Shorter Catechisms, the Form of Government, the Book of Discipline, and the Directory for the Worship of God. These were completed by the Westminster Assembly of Divines about November 19, 1647, and were presented to the Houses of the English Parliament on the 25th and 26th days of the same month. They were approved by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, July 28th, 1648; by the English Parliament, about September 5, 1648; and by the Scottish Parliament, February 7, 1649. The Westminster Confession of Faith was adopted by the General Synod of New York in the year 1729, and in 1758 the Synods of New York and Philadelphia united on the basis of these standards. The constitution of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, containing the Standards of Faith and Catechisms, the Form of Government, the Book of Discipline and the Directory for the Worship of God, was ratified and adopted by the Synods of New York and Philadelphia in 1788.

The Confession of Faith is in many respects a remarkable document, well written, and in a style at once forcible and perspicuous, yet easily intelligible, and not to be misunderstood. It is profoundly and thoroughly Calvinistic, setting forth the distinctive features of that system with undisguised frankness. Its fundamental doctrines, apart from the question of predestination, are those of nearly all classes of evangelical Protestants. In America it is also the basis of the Cambridge and Saybrook platforms.

The celebration in New York will be elaborate and interesting. On the afternoon of Monday, November 8, at 3 o'clock, a meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, on Fifth Avenue, 11th and 12th Streets, of which Rev. Howard Duffield, D. D., is pastor. This meeting is under the auspices of the Historical Committee of the New York Presbytery, the Chairman of which committee, Rev. George W. F. Birch, D. D., L. L. D., of Bethany Church, has prepared a programme of marked excellence. Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, D. D., Moderator of the Presbytery of New York, will preside. Rev. Benjamin Warfield, D. D., Professor of Systematic Theology in Princeton Seminary, will speak on "The Westminster Standards—Their Significance as a Creed." Rev. Wm. S. Plummer Bryan, D. D., Pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Chicago, will speak on "The Westminster Standards as Tested by History." Rev. F. F. Ellinwood, D. D., L. L. D., one of the Secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, will speak on "The Westminster Standards, and the Evangelization of the World." The singing will be of special excellence, under the management of William C. Carl, A. G. O., Organist and Choirmaster. A feature of special interest will be the rendering of a hymn, almost as old as the church, which Rev. Dr. Birch discovered in an old church in Pennsylvania. It contains six verses, each of which exemplifies a doctrine of Presbyterianism. The text of the stanzas is as follows:

Let me, my Saviour and my God,
On sovereign grace rely,
And own 'tis free, because bestowed
On one so vile as I.

Election! 'tis a word divine!
For, Lord, I plainly see,
Had not Thy choice prevented mine
I ne'er had chosen Thee.

For perseverance strength I've none,
But would on this depend—
That Jesus, having loved His own,
Will love them to the end.

Empty and bare, I came to Thee
For righteousness divine;
O may Thy glorious merits be
By imputation mine.

Free grace alone can wipe the tears
From my lamenting eyes,
And raise my soul from guilty fears
To joy that never dies.

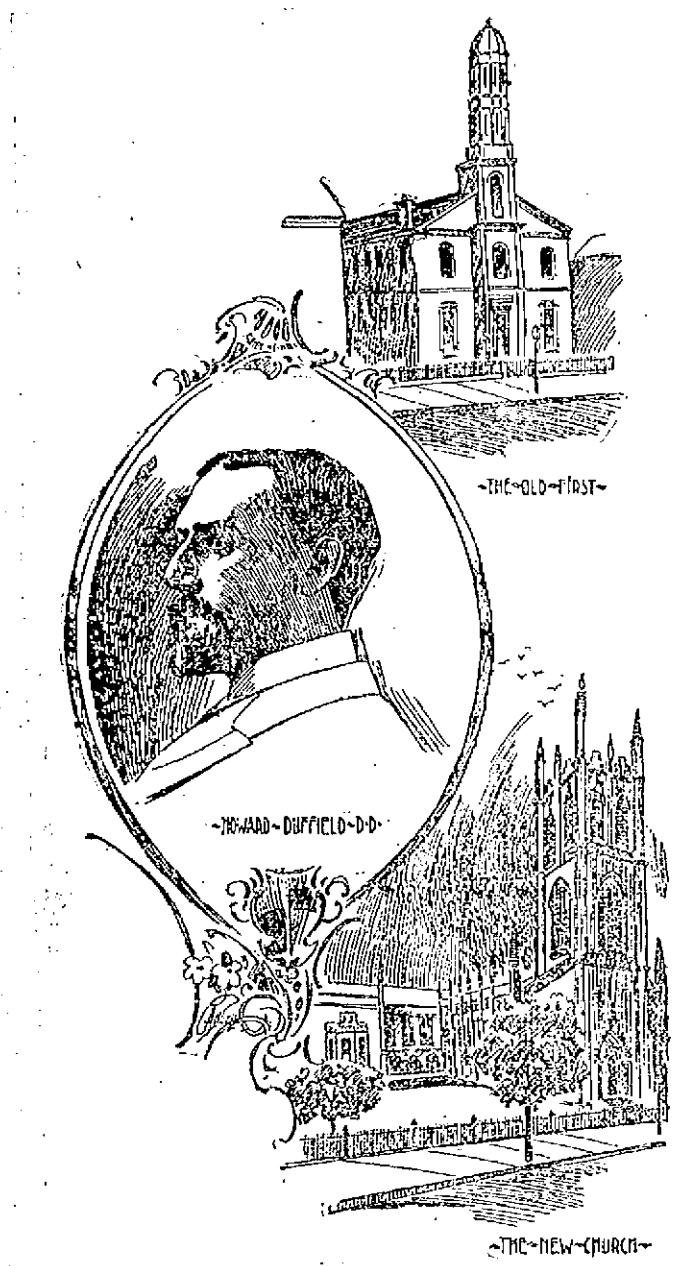

Free grace can death itself outbrave
And take the sting away;
Can sinners to the utmost save
And give them victory

On the evening of Monday, November 8, a banquet will be given in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Union, Col. J. J. McCook, President of the Union, will preside. Mr. James Yeareance, Chairman of the Committee, has prepared a programme, which embraces addresses by Rev. Dr. Moffat, President of Washington and Jefferson College; the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington; the Moderators of the General Assembly, the New York Synod, and the New York Presbytery, and the Rev. Drs. Henry M. Booth and Charles Cuthbert Hall.

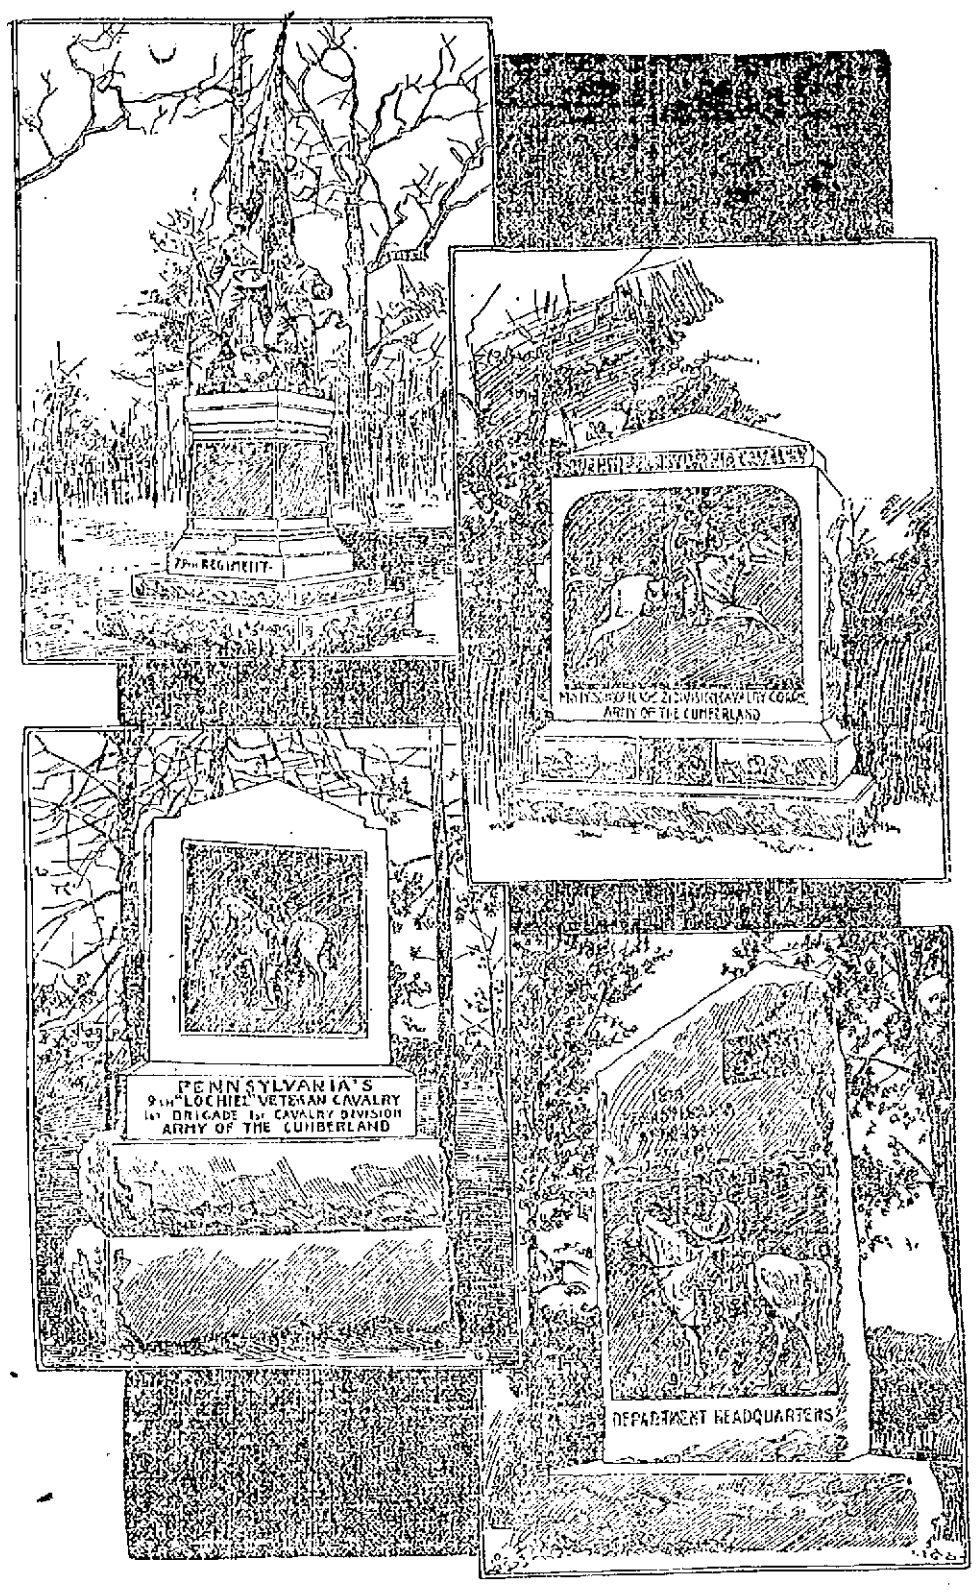

On the evening of Tuesday, November 9, the Sunday School Teachers will hold a meeting in the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. A. W. Halsey, of the Spring Street Church, will have charge of this meeting, which will embrace all the Presbyterian Sunday School teachers in the Metropolis. There will be addresses and a fine musical programme. A special feature will be the awarding of a prize of a banner and a Bible to the Sunday School, and the scholar that best recites the Catechism.

The church in which the meeting will be held is also historic. There were Presbyterians in the City of New York as early as 1707, who had principally emigrated from Great Britain and Ireland. A congregation was organized and Rev. Mr. Anderson was called as pastor in 1717. The first church edifice erected by the Society was located in Wall Street, and was dedicated in 1719. Its successor on Fifth Avenue is a splendid specimen of architecture, and is handsomely and appropriately fitted for progressive work. It is the church that Robert and James Lenox enriched by their bountiful gifts, and a tablet on its walls records the fact that Robert Lenox was its ruling elder for 30 years, and died in 1850, at the ripe old age of just four-score years. There are a number of other tablets in memory of pastors and members. One of these is of special interest. It is to the memory of Alex. McDougall, and records that he came to the Colony of New York from North Britain in 1738; that he commanded the armed vessels, Tiger and Harrington in the French War. He became a merchant. He espoused the cause of the colonies, and was made Colonel of the 1st New York in 1775, became a Brigadier General in 1776, and Major General in 1777. He commanded all the forces in the Highlands, and at West Point, at intervals from 1779 to 1782. He was member of Congress in 1780; Minister of Marine in 1781; First President of the New York Branch of the Society of the Cincinnati; Member of the New York State Senate, and first President of the Bank of New York. He died in 1786, and Washington said of him: "A brave soldier and a disinterested patriot." He might have added that he was equally devoted to the Standards—the Standard of his country, and the Westminster Standard.

WHERE THE GREAT CELEBRATION WILL TAKE PLACE.

PENNSYLVANIA'S CHICKAMAUGA MONUMENTS.

THEIR DEDICATION TO BE A RED-LETTER DAY IN PENNSYLVANIA'S HISTORY

Men Who Will Take Part — A Description of the Shafts That will Pay a State's Tribute to Heroism.

It was a Pennsylvania regiment that led Hooker's van to the heights of Lookout Mountain—Pennsylvania boys who scaled Hanging Rock and looked down on the mist-covered Tennessee from a point 2,700 feet above it. And those who are left of that brave band will be among the veterans who will, on November 15, dedicate the monuments that mark the spots where the Pennsylvania heroes fought on Chickamauga field. Governor Hastings and staff will leave Philadelphia on the night of November 11. Special trains will leave Harrisburg, Erie and Pittsburg on the same day and day following. The exercises will be held on Orchard Knob, in sight of many battlefields, namely, Chickamauga, Wauhatchie, Brown's Ferry, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Ringgold.

Rev. Thomas H. Robinson, who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Harrisburg during the war, and who gave Governor Curtin material aid in caring for the soldiers, will open the exercises with prayer. General Robinson, of Pittsburg, will preside, and Colonel Blakely, of Pittsburg, will deliver the address offering the monuments to the State, on behalf of the Survivors' Association. Governor Hastings will accept the monuments for the State, and in return will tender them to the Secretary of War or his representative, for the National Park. Rev. J. Thompson Gibson, editor of the Presbyterian Messenger, of Pittsburg, who was a member of the Seventy-eighth Regiment, Colonel Blakely's command, will close the services with benediction. Fifteen monuments will be dedicated by the Pennsylvania commands on the positions they occupied during the fight. There should have been 17, but two fought outside the limits of the 20,000 nerves comprising the military park.

Among the commands engaged were the Seventy-fifth Infantry, recruited in Philadelphia; Twenty-seventh Infantry, of Philadelphia; Seventy-ninth Infantry, from Lancaster County; Seventy-seventh, from Philadelphia and the eastern part of the State; Ninth "Lochiel" Cavalry, from about Harrisburg; Muehler's Independent Battery, Erie; Fifteenth Cavalry, Pittsburg and vicinity; Forty-sixth Infantry, Pittsburg, and Seventy-eighth Infantry, Pittsburg. The monuments of the Twenty-ninth and the One Hundred and Eleventh are located on Hanging Rock and Lookout Mountain, as the Secretary of War has decided that they attained the greatest height during the battle—2,700 feet above the Tennessee River.

The spot on which the dedication will take place, Orchard Knob, is peculiarly situated. It is a rough, steep hill, 100 feet high, covered with a growth of small timber, and on the day of the famous battle lay about half way between the Federal outer pits and the breastworks of logs and stones. At its western base, and extending for a mile beyond, both north and south of the hill, were other rifle pits, hid in part by a heavy belt of timber extending about a quarter of a mile from the foot of the hill into the plain. Between this belt of timber and the Federal lines were open fields in which there was not a tree, fence or other obstruction, save the bed of the East Tennessee Railroad. On the plain were hundreds of little mounds, thrown up by pickets, giving the appearance of an overgrown prairie dog village.

To-day it is a prettily-cleared spot, hardly recognizable by these battle-scarred soldiers. There will be many of them, however, who will go over the scene of the battle above the clouds and the climb will recall that of Hooker's regiments on that memorable November day far far back.

The most striking of the monuments to be dedicated is that of the Seventy-ninth Regiment, showing the wounding of the flag-bearer and the raising of the colors by a comrade. This illustrates an actual incident of the battle. The Seventy-ninth lost one-third of its members in the battle of Chickamauga. It was commanded in this engagement by Colonel Henry A. Hambright.

Pennsylvania's Ninth "Lochiel" Veteran Cavalry gave much of its fame to the Army of the Cumberland. Its monument is simple in design, but the bas-relief is a very effective piece of work.

But all of the monuments have much about them to attract the eye of the sightseer, and will make splendid memorials of the patriots and their deeds in the great battles that were fought about Chattanooga and Missionary Ridge.

SAVING A CITY FROM YELLOW FEVER.

ITS RESULTS DESCRIBED BY MEDICAL EXPERTS.

The prevalence of yellow fever in the Mississippi Valley has added greatly to the interest that has been excited in the ranks of the medical profession, and among the public generally, by the experiments that have been going on for several months at the Quarantine Station of the Port of New York to determine the value of the new disinfectant in quarantine work. It can well be called new, for although it was partly discovered in 1868 by the German chemist, A. W. Hoffman, it was not until twenty years after that the French investigator, A. Millat, found, as the result of his experiments, that it was valuable in preventing or delaying decomposition. After four years of close study of its properties and effects, M. Millat exhibited the results of his labor on the germicidal properties of formaldehyde to the French Academy of Sciences, where the subject was considered with close attention. This gas was first revealed to Hoffman, the German chemist, in some experiments he was conducting, and was produced by heating a platinum spiral in a lamp burning wood alcohol.

The need of a new disinfectant has been recognized by the Quarantine authorities for some time, and accordingly the experiments that Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port of New York, and Dr. E. J. Lederle, chemist of the Health Department and consulting chemist at the Quarantine Station, were conducting, were watched with keen interest and the results were awaited with lively concern. This was more particularly the case because many disinfectants, such as sulphur dioxide and chlorine have not been relied upon with as much confidence as formerly since the germ theory of disease was accepted as correct. Steam has been largely used as of unquestioned value, but it is not always available. When the disinfecting steamboat, "James W. Wadsworth," can be brought in play, steam is readily available, as that steamer has a chamber specially fitted up for such work.

But it was necessary to secure an agent fully as efficacious but more readily adaptable, and it was to this end that Drs. Doty and Lederle pushed their series of experiments. These experiments have extended over several months, and comprehended an elaborate series of tests, patiently and carefully made. In order to determine whether it was safe to rely upon formaldhyde as a substitute for steam in disinfecting operations. Different bacilli of disease, such as the organisms of cholera, diphtheria, Indian plague and anthrax were used to test the new gas. The plague cultures (bacilli nourished by selected food) were most carefully selected. They were received from Prof. Haffkine in Bombay, the Pasteur Institute in Paris, and the Hoagland Laboratory in Brooklyn. Dr. Fitzpatrick, the bacteriologist at the Quarantine Station, nourished these germs to their highest degree of virulence, inoculating with them occasionally white mice

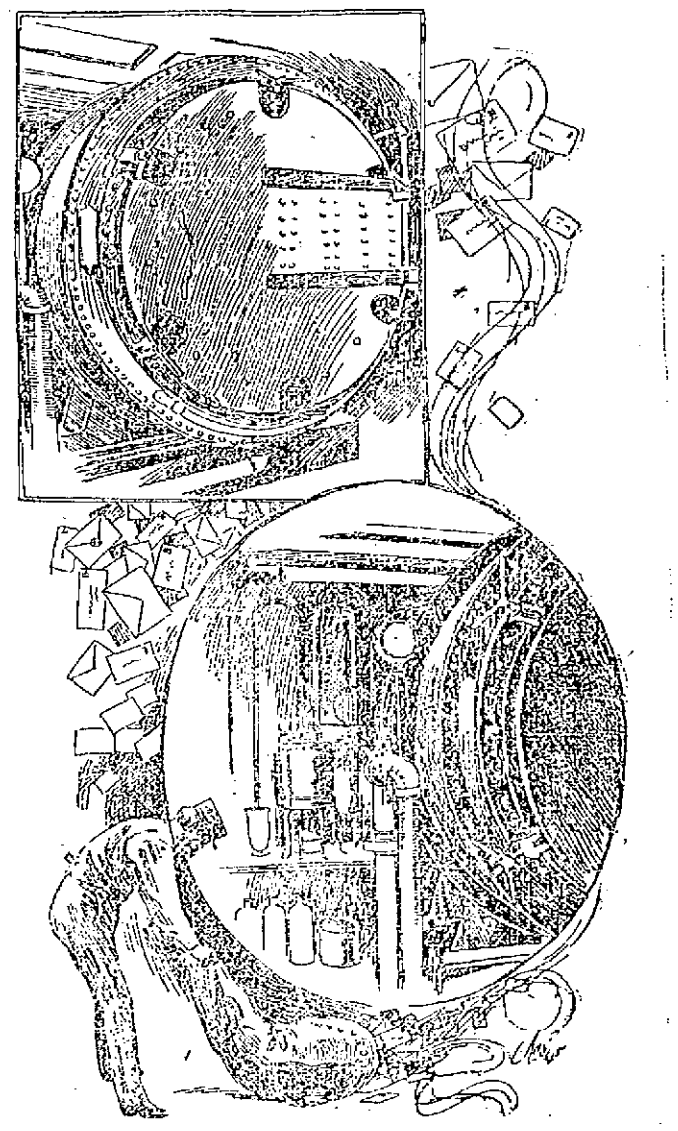

Twenty different tests, each employing three or more varieties of germs, were made by Dr. Doty, and have been minutely described by him. These experiments were conducted on the steamboat "James W. Wadsworth," and also at the laboratory in a room specially prepared, in which there was an apparatus for spraying liquified ammonia gas about the room, for the instant neutralizing of formaldhyde, if considered necessary to do so. In conducting the first experiments from four to eight ounces of the disinfectant were exposed for various periods of time in an air-tight steel box, containing 115 cubic feet of space, and also in a room containing 1,000 cubic feet of air space. In fifteen tests of all the cultures of various diseases, only that of diphtheria showed subsequent growth. In the case of the latter four ounces of solution were used, and the exposure continued for twelve hours. The cultures of all the diseases were wrapped in a woolen blanket.

In other tests, plague, diphtheria and anthrax germs on a linen disc, some wrapped in a pound of newspaper, others wrapped in a blanket, held on to life after an exposure of twelve hours, a quart of the solution being used. Others were generally killed that were put inside a single newspaper, or inside a sheet of paper, and an envelope, or inside a towel. These tests were all made in a vacuum as offering less resistance to the penetration of the gas. The tests were repeated without the vacuum, and the germs, with few exceptions, survived, and in the case of some diphtheria germs wrapped in a newspaper growth was observed.

It was found in preparing the gas that the use of a solution of some neutral salt caused the gas to be given off more satisfactorily, and a machine for extracting it more readily was employed. In this case the disinfection of the mails was accomplished in a very satisfactory degree, as every germ of cholera, plague, anthrax and diphtheria was destroyed after four hours of exposure. The infected discs were wrapped in blankets, paper, or envelopes. A pint of formaldehyde was used. Diphtheria and anthrax germs wrapped in three sheets of paper and envelopes, with the seams extra gummed, were all exterminated. Eight ounces of the disinfectant destroyed the cultures when they were wrapped in blankets, in this case twelve hours of exposure being taken. Only the cholera germs, were killed, and those of plague, diphtheria and anthrax remained active when the last test was repeated for a duration of only the half the previous test.

The value of the new agent for superficial disinfection is considered of unquestioned value by Dr. Doty, and he will use it for general purposes, especially in disinfecting ships which are infected with disease. But Dr. Doty does not consider that it can be relied upon in cases where deep penetration is required. It has all the penetrative powers required for disinfecting mails and ordinary articles. From experiments conducted with fowls, insects, mice and guinea pigs it was proved harmless to animal life.

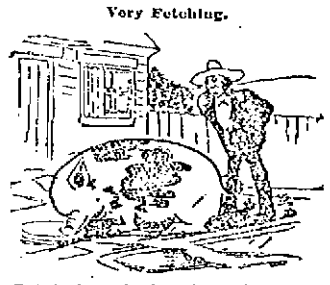

Dr. Lederle's chemical analysis of the gas, and examination of its properties and possibilities, resulted in his finding that formaldehyde may be injurious, if taken internally, to the digestive processes, although non-toxic to all the higher forms of life.

The Humpback Plays Football.

The humpback took position
And played with great precision
On the football field of our most noted ground.
His place was at the quarter,
He truly was a snorter,
And envied by the teams for miles around.

The hump was no attraction
When the boys peeled off for action.
They started play and gamboled in the dirt.
But the ball soon disappeared,
And the gridiron players feared
That the humpback had it hidden up his shirt.

The opponents cried and hollered,
And the humpback roughly collared.
They kicked him and they placed him on the rack;
They abused him and amused him,
They swore they ne'er would lose him,
And at last they kicked the hump right off his back.

To the half back it was handed.
The players never banded
Or stuck so fast together in a rush.
The humpback never faltered,
His plans he never altered,
His object was to get his hump back from the push.

"Give my hump back," said the humpback
To the quarter and the full back.
"I passed it to the half back," was the quarter back's reply.
Then the half back passed the hump back
To the agitated full back,
And along the line the hump did quickly fly.

"Oh, give to me my back back,"
Said the energetic humpback.
But the full back and the half back thought the hump was fairly earned.
The humpback quickly chased them,
Calling names that sure disgraced them,
For the humpback craved his hump to be returned.

Now the sport grew quite exciting,
Every player in for fighting,
The humpback backed his back back with all his might and main,
Till the quarter and the half back
Placed the hump back on the humpback,
And the humpback has his back back once again.

A SINCERE EFFORT.

The Boy Was Doing His Level Best to Be Courteous.

It had been a matter of much difficulty to impress upon a Detroit boy the desirability of interspersing his conversation with those phrases of formal courtesy which, without being important in themselves, relieve human relationships of so much ruggedness. One reason for his backwardness in acquiring the art may have been his father's natural brusqueness of manner. Seeing his own defects reflected in his son not only made him anxious to polish himself, but increased his determination that the boy should grow up to understand the value of politeness. It was Sunday morning, and the head of the family was enjoying the sleep late into the hours of morning that is possible at no other time. His wife had gone to call on a neighbor, and the boy was in the next room reading. A sharp ring of the doorbell interrupted his nap. Nobody gave it any attention, and the ring was repeated.

"Thomas," said the boy's father, "go to the window and see who that is and what he wants."

"What do you want?" Thomas inquired.

"I want your father to sign this petition," was the reply.

"He can't come down." And Thomas shut the window.

In an instant the bell was ringing again, and Thomas opened the window and exclaimed:

"What's the matter with you? Are you going to stand there all week ringing that bell?"

"That's right," put in the father. "Give it to him. Only remember your manners."

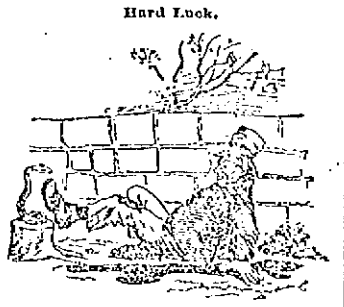

"I want to see your father," said the caller. "I have something to say to him."

"Yes, and I've got something to say to you."

"What is it?"

"Just this. Please, sir, will you have the kindness to oblige us very much by going away from that doorbell before somebody comes down there and kicks the collar off you?"—Detroit Free Press.

A BIT OF KLONDIKE LIFE.

Or One Day With a Boy In the New El Dorado.

The little Klondike boy came into the house at 11 o'clock and said to his mother, who was gold dusting the furniture, "Oh, mamma, what can I do for fun?"

"Why don't you play with the little boy next door?" asked his mother, wiping the perspiration off her face and burning the handkerchief that no gold be lost.

"I did, and we were throwing nuggets at a yellow dog, and he threw my two pound one that I was keeping for luck right through the baker's window, and he kept it," said the little fellow, choking back the tears.

"Well, don't cry, Harry, over a little thing like that. Papa will bring you another if you ask him. Why don't you take your shovel and go out in the back yard and dig some more yourself?"

"Oh, that's no fun. Besides, they're so hard that I've bent my shovel."

"Well, I can't think what to suggest unless you take your watering pot and sprinkle the road in front of the house. We might as well lay the dust as to have it blowing all over passersby, who walk away with it." And the mother put her feather duster in the stove and went to the closet for a fresh one.

Little Harry enjoyed his new sport for awhile, and then he came in and in an angry tone of voice said: "Say, mamma, there was the meanest woman out there. She's from Chicago, for Tommy told me so, and she stood with the dust blowing on her until I laid it, and she tracked around in it until her shoes were covered with mud, and then she went away, and when I called out to her to come back and wipe her feet she only jeered at me."

Harry's mother was philosophical. "It can't be helped, my son," said she. "I noticed that Chicago girl and thought she was there for no good to us, but she can have taken not more than $10 worth of dust"—

Just then the door opened and Harry's father came in with a neat bag full of rich red gold, his reward for a day's digging, and in a moment the Chicago girl was forgotten, and Harry was happy in the possession of a five pound nugget that made the two pound one that he had lost look like 30 cents.—Charles Battell Loomis in New York Sunday World.

A Bad Actor and His Check.

When James O'Neill first started out with "Monte-Christo" a good many years ago, he had occasion to discharge a member of his company who proved to be a very bad actor indeed. Shortly afterward Mr. O'Neill's leading man was taken sick and after being laid off for a few weeks died in a Detroit hospital.

"If Blank has left you, I am willing to take his place for $100 a week. Answer."

To this brazen proposition from a man whose incompetence already had been demonstrated Mr. O'Neill replied:

"I admire your courage in offering to do what you should have done long ago. Poor Blank died yesterday. If you'll take his place and let him come back to me, I'll give you $150 a week."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Wise Boy.

"Willie, if you can spell the plural of penny, I will give it to you."

"Give me what—the singular or plural?"

"Plural, of course."

"All right. 'Ere goes. D-i-m-e."

"But, Willie"—

"Isn't that the plural of penny?"

Of course in the end it had to be compromised on that basis.—Chicago Post.

A Reformer.

"You know that saying, 'Let me make the songs of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws?'"

"Yes. What of it?"

"It ought to be amended to read, 'Let me make the laws of a nation, and I'll put in jail half the people who make its songs.'"—Chicago Record.

The One Thing Needed.

"I am glad," said the ardent patriot, "that the Russian flag no longer floats over Alaska."

"So am I," replied the man who wants to go, but is afraid. "Now, if they could only get rid of the cold wave flag, the country would be all right."—Washington Star.

Her Suggestion.

He was young, but ardent. "I wish I were the glove that presses your lovely hand," he said to the charming maid.

She glanced at him with a bewitching smile.

"Aren't you enough of a kid as it is?" she softly asked.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

STORY OF A RESCUE.

Night Ride From the Hated Rocojidas. The Final Deed of a Thrilling Escape. The Rescuers Had Many Adventures and Were Constantly "Shadowed."

The story of the escape of Evangelina Cisneros has been told in every detail by the actual participants, with the exception of the recital of the events of the last day. The best of reasons prevented the publication of this part of the story heretofore.

Private information received from Havana recently makes it possible to narrate the final chapter of the Havana end of the story.

When the carriage containing Evangelina Cisneros rattled off over the cobbles of Egida street on a recent moonlight Thursday morning, one of the men engaged in the rescue sat upon the box. He was an American who spoke Spanish like a Castillano. He knew every turn and twist of the narrow, winding streets, and, taking a circuitous course about Havana, finally rounded into the street in which was located the house selected as the hiding place of Miss Cisneros while in Havana.

The street was deserted for several blocks. Far away toward where the Rocojidas lay in all its squalor, jostling a barracks and an arsenal could be heard the plaintive wailing alerts of the sentinels. In all that still moonlit city that night that cry was the essence of concentrated sarcasm. It rang out from the sentry boxes as the carriage containing Miss Cisneros dashed off. It was heard again threading across the silence of the city as Miss Cisneros sprang from the carriage and disappeared through the door behind which a trusted servant had been waiting for hours.

There had been sounds of revelry in that house that night. A reception had been held there during the evening, and in the late morning hours, as the guests left assuring host and hostess that various houses in Havana were at their disposition, a frightened, trembling little maiden fluttered in through the door and pressed that against the wall within waiting for some one to welcome her or shelter her.

As the last couple passed out of the house she felt a gentle touch upon her arm and was quickly ushered into a room set apart for her exclusive use. In fact, a whole suit of apartments was reserved for her, and she was given the attendance of two servants during the time she remained in hiding.

She entered this house on Thursday morning about 8 o'clock and remained there securely secreted until Saturday afternoon.

Consequently Hernandon felt deeply grieved at the idea of carrying such freight and turned them down harshly.

"I'm going to the palace, after the captain general, to take him for a moonlight drive," he growled, and lashed his nag viciously. Twice after he had an opportunity to earn an honest peseta, but declined the chance.

Long before dawn he joined Mallory and myself in the Plaza Cristobal, and as the jangling little brass pots in the belfry of the neighboring church had untangled the hour of 4 the carriage had been turned over to the rightful driver, and, after a parting drink in an all night bodega near by, we parted for the night.

The period intervening until Saturday afternoon will never be forgotten by the five men who by this time were interested in getting Miss Cisneros from the island. A house to house search was being conducted in every section of the city.

The other men engaged in the rescue were free from espionage, as they had not fallen under suspicion, but from Thursday midday I was followed by a brace of detectives, who had been assigned to shadow me by the Havana police under orders from the Spanish minister at Washington. By this time it was generally known in Washington and in Havana that the girl had been rescued by the New York Journal, and every effort was made to detect the whereabouts of Miss Cisneros by shadowing me. For this reason I was unable to see Evangelina again face to face until I met her in New York.

On the day she left her hiding place I succeeded in shaking off my shadows by using certain methods which would have been ridiculed by a Pinkerton, but which were successful with the Spanish spies.

The other two men who were with me on the night of the rescue did not join me on that afternoon, but until Miss Cisneros reached the wharf we were never 20 feet apart. We did not speak to each other.

They sauntered along the principal street of Havana watching and guarding. The ... est fright of the entire occasion occurred as Miss Cisneros came out of the house in which she had been hiding. She was dressed as a young marinero, with blue shirt, flowing tie and a large slouch hat. Her hair was plastered under the hat with cosmetics. As she stepped out into the street a swift swirl of wind caught the hat and whirled it from her head. For a moment our hearts ceased to beat. Every man gripped his gun and waited.

Quickly she caught the hat from the ground, jabbed it down on her head and started off jauntily and nonchalantly down the street.

The few careless passersby had failed to note the incident, and she was safely over this hurdle.

All the way down Obispo street we followed her, guns swinging loose and ready at hand, a carriage following, ready for emergencies. Had she been detected, it was our intention to rescue her again, place her in the waiting carriage and dash off. Fortunately nothing happened. It was nearly dark. The short twilight was closing. The Seneca had waited three hours for freight and would wait another hour, and all things aided.—Karl Decker in New York Journal.

Note From the Lost Chicora.

The residents of Chesterton, Ind., are greatly excited over the finding of a long neck wine bottle by E. G. Miller on the Lake Michigan beach at that place recently, containing a note and letter supposed to be from one of the Chicora victims. It was dated "Chicora, January, 1895," and bore the signature of Edward Mason. The note stated that the ship had gone to pieces off the coast of Michigan. The letter was addressed to Robert Mason, 52 Dearborn street, Chicago, who, the writer said, was his brother, and asked the finder to see that the letter was delivered. The bottle had the appearance of being in the water a long time. The letter contained some valuable information.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ADJUTANT SIGALOS

OF THE GREEK ARMY RETURNS TO LOWELL.

Among the passengers on the Campania, which docked in New York Saturday, was George A. Sigalos of Lowell, a professor of ancient and modern Greek. On the declaration of war between Greece and Turkey, he went to Athens and enlisted as a sergeant in the Philhellenic legion. Mr. Sigalos fought so gallantly in the battles of Mati, Pharsala, and Domoco that he was promoted on the battlefield to the rank of adjutant and placed in command of a section. Referring to the probability of a Spanish-American war, he said that he would forthwith enlist under Old Glory. He has returned to this city to resume work.

WORKINGMEN AND MECHANICS, THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

For sale, cheap, on easy terms, located on D street, near the Shaw Stocking company, on high and dry land, with good sewerage, convenient to schools, churches, and two lines of street cars, piped for gas and water; five cottage houses and one two-tenement house. These houses have all modern improvements and are suitably arranged for families. Part of these houses have just been completed and the rest will be finished, ready for occupancy in a very short time.

Terms liberal. A small amount down and the balance can be paid in monthly instalments.

Anyone desiring to go through these houses and inquire terms and prices, call on J. W. Bennett, the owner, at 564 Middlesex street.

A NEW BUILDING.

Plans have been drawn for a five-story building to cover the entire block on the west side of Bridge street, between French and Paige streets, owned by a Boston syndicate and purchased from the Massachusetts company a few years ago. The plans contemplate stores on the ground floor and tenements above, each story to contain 32 tenements. Eight elevators are included in the plan. The syndicate has not, it is understood, decided to build, but is at work on a preliminary consideration of the enterprise to determine its feasibility.

Members of the Bunting Cricket club had a pleasant social time at the home of D. T. Flanegan Saturday night.

WHAT IS IT?

This question has been asked so very often that it is almost "Thread-bare." What is it that draws the enormous throngs of people the (best people of Lowell) to our store?

Our public can answer this best themselves, but we suspect (excuse us), that with our efforts, our methods, our bargains, our modern, captivating merchandizing

They Are Satisfied.

Saturday's verdict "by the people" was conspicuously in our favor, for which we are exceedingly grateful and return the compliment with still greater

BARGAINS!! BARGAINS!!!

ALTERATIONS, ALTERATIONS. ALTERATIONS.

The carpenters are pegging away down stairs. They have got through, however, with the hum-drum screech, bang, whizz, etc. They're putting on the finishing touches, and oh, what a change. It's looking better every minute, but we must have room. Half of the stock in our basement must be sold right away. We, therefore, will sacrifice approximating TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS on Chinaware, Glassware, Tinware, Silverware, Woodenware and Wireware. The goods must go. They will. They always have on former occasions. This occasion leaves all others in the shade.
